The Bankrupt Act. Considerable doubt yet exists in the popular mind as to when the time expires luring which an insolvent debtor can take advantage of the provisions of the United States bankrupt act. There is the author and father of the bill, gives it us his opinion that the fifty per cent clause, which substantially terminates the practically working of the act, does not take effect until the first day of June. and his reasoning gives his opinion the weight of a decision. The thirty-third section of the bill pro vides that " in all proceedings in bankwhose assets do not pay fifty per centum of the claims against his estate," etc. while the fiftieth section provides that no petition or other proceeding under this act shall be filed, etc., until the first day of June, 1867."
