There is nothing we so much need as a plentiful supply of pure water; and we hope to be able to record, next week, that the spirit of liberality in which the committee of the corporators were met, give undoubted assurance, that that grand desideratim will be secured. We do not know of a locality, where every thing seems so well calculated for the purposes of a Water Company, as is the borough of Stroudsburg, and its surroundings.

SEVERAL orthographical bones, which in our carelessness of proof-reading, fell to the share of the hungry dogs which yell around the "Democrat" office, furnished the theme for rather a lame attempt at criticism on the part of one of its correspondents - "Inquirer" - last week. "When wit is out, wind is in," a homely adage, was never better exem plified than in the production of "Inquirer."
