The Dying Never Weep. It is a striking fact that the dying nev- er weep. The sobbing, the heart-break- ing agony of the circle of friends around the death bed call forth no responsive tears from the dying. It is because he is insensible and stiff in the chill of dis- solution? That cannot be, for he asks for his father's hand, as if to gain strength in the mortal struggle, and leans on the breast of his mother, sister or brother in still conscious affection. Just before ex- piring, he calls the loved ones. and with	co, to which he unflinchingly adhered- refusing all proffers of wines, even at pub- lie dinners, and elsewhere, with polite- ness but with the decisive answer : "I am pledged to total abstinence." A Dog Story.

About the biggest pile of knowledge at it. The negro moves. He is showwe ever heard of possessed by a dog, was ing the greatest knowledge and educatold us by his owner, who was a great polititions ; attested by the fact, for which excian. He said that dog always knew when there was to be an election as well amination is challenged, that in the free schools of the South, where he has equal as he did, and always went to the polls admission, there are more black children and stood around listened to what was than white ones in proportion to the said and the next morning would make population of each race in the given comhim read the returns aloud. At one election the votes were going to run very vagabond that the pessimist theorizers close; the dog had beard the matter diswould have him after emancipation, he is cussed and he seemed, more than usually exemplarily industrious ; attested by the excited. On the day of election he startfact that to day the negro represents neared and made believe he was mad, and bit every voter of the opposite ticket that he could find, and scared the rest so that they did not care to go to the polls, and the result was the party he worked for carried the election by a big majority .--We never should have believed that, had we not heard it directly from the owner of the dog, and it illustrates the intelligence and reason of the dog better than any anecdote we ever heard.

One word more and we are done. It is perhaps no more than common justice to the reader that we should state So far from being improvident, the wonthat we afterwards learned that the man der is how the negro economizes, gets so who told us the story-lied, and that he many good clothes and real comforts out never owned a dog in his life. Still, if it of his very scanty wages. As a voter he had been true, it, would have been a beautiful illustration of canine intelligence .- Belfast Journal.

How to Dwarf a Town.

Horace Greely presents the following as a sure means of destroying the properi ty of the most promising town. There can be no doubt of its efficacy. If you wish to keep a town from thriving don't put up any more buildings than you can conveniently occupy yourselves. If you should accidentally have an empty dwelling, and any one should want to rent it, ask him three times the actual value of it. Demand a Shylock price for every spat of ground that God has given you his work in all humility and with all substewardship over. Turu a cold shoulder to every mechanic or business man seek. casting his vote there against the party ing a home among you. Look at every of his employer. Such an instance of new comer with a scowl.
