

Sleigh bells are now the great sensation. Our young ladies are on the qui vive for prospective sleigh rides.

"Greenland's icy mountains," about which the churches so often sing, are far from being abodes of heathenism. About half the population belong to the Lutheran communion, and the whole country is well supplied with churches, pastors and catechists. The salaries of clerical men range from $800 to $1,400, which is better than the average in this country.

Mr. BRECHER's church has a membership of 2,116, of whom 825 are males and 1,291 females. There was 206 admissions and 72 withdrawals by letter, death and removal during the year. The school membership is 1,088; the Bethel Mission, 2,310. The income from pew rents for the year is $56,774; the general collections of the church have amounted to $17,882. Plymouth school collections, $28,004; the total income, $85,778. Mission salaries amounted to $7,000.

A gentleman who has recently visited the scene of the great fires in the woods of Wisconsin, says that in a potato field at Williamsville, where fifty-nine dead bodies were found, the potatoes were all roasted. The partially-roasted remains of domestic animals and deer, wolves and bear were found scattered over the district. At Peshtigo fifty houses had already been erected, and with the assistance coming they will be in good shape to commence the Spring business.

One of the most remarkable cases of death on record is that of a station agent on the Boston and Maine Railroad, who died a few days since from the bite of his little daughter, a mere child. She had been suffering with the diphtheria, and the father, for some reason not stated, put his hand on her mouth, when she seized and bit it with just force enough to break the skin. The virus from the child's teeth penetrated the wound and was diffused through the system. After a week's illness, during which time his body became much swollen, he died.

The Grand Jury of Gloucester county, N. J. have indicted the Catholic clergyman of the town of Swedesboro, and two other persons, as resurrectionists. About six weeks ago a member of the Catholic church died, and was buried in the church yard, in a lot purchased by the widow. Prior to his death deceased had been derelict in his religious duties, and the priest is alleged to have ordered the remains to be removed from the burial ground. This was done at night, by the two men also indicted, and the corpse was buried outside the ground and the grave filled up. A woman living near by saw them at work, and telling of it, an excitement was created, whereupon a party of the friends of the deceased again dug up the body and replaced it in the original grave. On the following Sunday, such of the party doing this as were members of the Catholic church were expelled by the priest, amid great disorder. The two men who were also indicted pleaded guilty, one of them turning State's evidence. The clergyman is said to contemplate bringing suits for trespass against the persons who replaced the body in the burial ground.

An exchange says that accounts of speedy and effectual cures of cancer by the use of clover tea continue to reach us from all directions. From Brooks county, Georgia, a responsible gentleman writes to the Knoxville Whig, giving the case of a lady who had been afflicted for eight years with a cancer which had resisted the efforts of the best medical skill to effect a cure or even an alleviation of the disease. The cancer had attacked her on the right cheek, just below the eye, and had eaten pretty much all of that side of her face, together with the eye, and the greatest portion of her nose. The lady has been completely cured in a few months by the use of clover tea. The red clover is used; the tops are boiled in water, and the tea is used externally and internally. About a quart a day should be drunk, and the tea should be used as a wash twice every day. The remedy should have the widest publicity. It is inexpensive, and if it should fail to effect a cure, in any case it can do no harm.

How the Cholera Lies Dormant and Re-appears.

The British Medical Journal, noticing the fortunate respite from the invasion of cholera in England, caused by the timely arrival of cold weather, adds that it is but a respite, and continues with these remarks, which are as applicable to this country as to England:
During the cold season the low temperature arrests the extension of the disease; it does not extinguish it or destroy the power of subsequent activity in the particles of contagion which await the return of a higher temperature. The Russian experience of 1847 is still at hand to teach us. The epidemic which had become general at the close of 1847 appeared to be brought to an end by the severe winter of 1847-48. From the 1st of February, 1848, there was no more cholera deaths, and every one supposed the outbreak to be over. But the months of April and May of that year dispelled these illusions. Cholera reappeared everywhere in its haunts of the previous year, and spread with frightful rapidity throughout the whole Russian Empire. The number of deaths in all Russia in the month of July, 1848, is stated by Dr. Chasseaud, of Smyrna, in his Prize Essay, just published at Constantinople, to have amounted to 80,000 weekly. The existing state of things at Constantinople, and the history of the German cholera which has just reached New York, show that what are merely local and superficial.

The Great Pennsylvania Farms.
The most celebrated farms in the Pennsylvania German country are not the enterprise of the provincial people whom I described in my letters upon that quaint region. I allude to the stock-breeding estate of R. W. Coleman's heirs, called the "Speedwell farm," which comprises 4,800 acres, of which 800 are under cultivation; and the "Elizabeth farm," of 1,100 acres, the property of G. D. Coleman, cousin of the deceased foregoing.

The Colemans were Irishmen. The original Coleman was employed as a wood chopper by the proprietor of the Mound iron works, near Lebanon, Pennsylvania. One day the proprietor received a letter from a man in his employ, beautifully written, and signed Coleman, asking for some bread and meat, the writer saying he was starving. Not the man's needs, but his handwriting moved this flinty ironmaster. He sent for Coleman and made him confidential book keeper. The Irishman, by shrewdness and growing influence, finally absorbed the business of his benefactor, and left an immense interest to two sons. One of these, recently deceased, founded the largest stock farms in the middle States. He bought a stallion called Speed well's Hambletonian, half brother of Dexter, rated at $20,000, and at present the estate is occupied by 150 mares, which are charged $150 for serving, exclusive of feeding.

To this farm Western stock is diverted on its way to market, and made big for Boston and New England draught purposes.
The Pennsylvania Germans, whatever their ignorance on matters of monetary science, are adepts at stock breeding, and there are quantities of directly imported sheep cattle and horses in Lancaster county fresh from Normandy, Alderney, Jersey and English Devonshire and Sussex.

AN ALLEGED COUNTERFEITER.
ACQUITTAL OF MARY BROWN--SHE IS TAKEN TO CINCINNATI FOR TRIAL--A SKETCH OF HER LIFE.
Mary Brown, who was tried in the United States District Court on Monday, was acquitted, the jury rendering a verdict after the usual hour of adjournment. The result, but do not suppose to let this woman, who, it is alleged, is one of the most notorious counterfeiters in the country, escape now that they have charge of her.

Immediately after the acquittal, and when the woman thought she was free, an officer from Cincinnati tapped her up on the shoulder and served a warrant for her arrest on a charge of dealing in the "queer" in that city. He left with his prisoner for Cincinnati last night, where she will be tried for offenses committed in the Southern District of Ohio. The government officers state that she is one of the most notorious counterfeiters in the United States, and her history is, in some respects, a romantic one.
It is alleged that she was at one time a partner of the celebrated Charles Ulrich, a Prussian, in the employ of the Treasury Department, and who was considered one of the very best engravers in the United States. He engraved the counterfeit one hundred dollar compound interest note, and about a million of dollars of it went into circulation before it was detected. He is now serving a term of twelve years in the Ohio Penitentiary, at Columbus. This woman, who was a friend of his at the time, has served a term of five years in Trenton for passing counterfeit money, and has been well known in the principal cities of the East and West.
Her son was arrested in New York recently, and escaped from the Ludlow Street jail. It is reported that she has been very successful, and has generally operated on a grand scale as what is technically known as a wholesale dealer. She would generally rent a house in some fashionable locality, furnish it regardless of expense, and secure admittance to respectable society, and there conduct her operations in such a manner to frequently elude the vigilance of the shrewdest government detectives. In personal appearance she is a very attractive matronly looking woman, and, when fashionably dressed, would be the last person in the world to be accused of engaging in this nefarious business. --Philadelphia Inquirer, Dec. 12.

CAPTAIN JAMES GALLAGHER

Steamboat Captain, of Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "The inventor of MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS is a benefactor to the human race. I was a victim to the worst form of Dyspepsia; my health failed to such an extent that my Physicians pronounced me incurable. I had used all sorts of remedies and even took a voyage to California; but nothing relieved me. When Mishler's Herb Bitters was recommended I refused to use it; but my friends insisting, I at last yielded. I am thankful that I did so, for it cured me, and I am now as well, hale and strong as I was fifteen years ago."

SAW MILLING at the shortest possible notice, and from his experience in this branch of business, he flatters himself that he cannot fail to give perfect satisfaction.
Before purchasing elsewhere, persons will most certainly advance their interests by calling and examining my stock of Brooms.
Country Produce taken in exchange.
Don't forget the place, on Franklin Street, opposite Wm. Huntsman's Livery Stable.
