

Remedy for Sore Shoulders.

A correspondent of the Canada Farmer writes relative to sore or galled shoulders of horses—"Wash them well every night and morning with a strong solution of oak bark, made by boiling the bark in water, then rub them well with lincseed oil. Anoint them every night and morning with a salve made of three parts of lincseed oil and one part of quick lime. To make horses, shoulders tough, wash the shoulder well twice a day, for a week before working, with the oak bark solution.

Whiskey.

"Ten gallons of kerosene, three pounds of potash, one ounce of strychnine, mixed with soft water." It was according to this cheerful, not to say convivial formula, that a quantity of whiskey seized last week in Newton, Mass., was compounded, the recipe having also been found in the possession of the unfortunate dealer. If you want "gin," add quantum sufficit of oil of juniper! The mystery is that men who drink this diabolical fluid do not drop down stone dead at once.

The Cost of Small-Pox.

That "prevention is better than cure" was emphatically demonstrated in London recently. Dr. Lankester, in his report to the vestry of St. James, Westminster, says: "The small pox is now slowly departing from the metropolis, after slaying five thousand persons, and maiming, disfiguring and pauperizing about one hundred thousand more. It must cost the metropolis at least, $100,000, a tenth part of which sum, judiciously expended, would have cut short this epidemic at its very commencement."

Kangaroo Leather.

A consignment of 7,000 salted kangaroo skins was received in San Francisco, several months since, from Australia, and purchased by parties who propose to convert them into leather. The skins are now being tanned at tannery located on the beach opposite Yerba Buena island, on the northern outskirts of the Oakland. The skin of the kangaroo is quite thin, but exceedingly tough, and when tanned into leather is exceedingly pliable and soft, wearing a long time without cracking, and turning water better than calf skin. Tanned alligator skins from Mexico and Central America are a common article in the San Francisco market, and are used to a considerable extent in manufacturing boots where strength and capacity to resist water are more desired than a fancy fit or elegance of appearance, but kangaroo is emphatically a new sensation in the leather line.

A Tough Story.

A smart yankee was one evening seated in a bar-room of a country tavern in Canada whittling with a jack-knife. There were assembled several Englishmen, discussing various matters connected with the pomp and circumstance of war. In the course of his remarks one of them stated that the British government possessed the largest cannon in the world, and gave dimensions of one he had seen. The yankee would not let such a base assertion pass uncontradicted. "Poh! gentleman," said he I won't deny that it is a fair sized cannon, but you are a little mistaken in supposing it is to be named the same minute with one of our Yankee guns which I saw in Charleston last year. Why, sir, it was so large that the soldiers were obliged to employ a yoke of oxen to draw in the ball! "And pray" exclaimed one of the hearers "can you tell us how they got the oxen out again?" "Of course I can," returned the yankee; "they unsyoked 'em and drov 'em through the touch hole!"

The Fruit Crop of Michigan.

The Spring Lake (Mich.) Independent says:—Fruit growers in the vicinity of Frankfort report the prospects for a beautiful crop the coming season to be even more flattering than one year ago. While we have had an unusual amount of snow and cold winds, yet the thermometer indicated but four degrees below zero, the coldest morning we have yet had, while the mercury has marked seventeen degrees below zero at Milwaukee, on the opposite side of lake, at Chicago, one hundred miles south, it has been eighteen degrees below zero, and at St. Joseph, eighty miles south, ten degrees below zero. Thus it will be seen that the lakes and lakelets have been a great protection of the "fruit belt." Within a radius of three miles from our village there have been 60,000 peach trees set out during the past four years, besides a large quantity of other fruits. An effort is being made to secure a location of an extensive fruit preserving and drying establishment here at once.

"Patent Outsides."

What is known among newspaper men as "Patent Outsides" is where the first or outside of newspapers are printed at houses in New York or elsewhere, and sold to country publishers, who print the insides" and mail them to their subscribers. It has long been a mooted question whether legal notices could be properly advertised in such papers. A decision has recently been made by which publications of this character are effectually ruled out. The Hancock Conservative, one of the class referred to, says: "The court of this county yesterday decided that advertisements required by law to be published in newspapers printed and published in the county, were not published according to law when inserted in a paper, one-half of which was published out of the State."

The Conservative, accepting the situation, says: "This decision will compel us to quit 'patent plan,' or else a large portion of the county printing, and we have determined on the former, and next week our paper will be edited, printed and published at home."—Sussex Herald

True Words.

The following expresses our sentiments to a dot. It is one of the wonders of the world that it is so, and a greater one that it is women who take the lead. Good, refined, worthy women will fawn on the seducer and cast the seduced into outer darkness:

This is a curious world. A few months ago one B. F. Simmons eloped from St. Paul with a married lady, both leaving families behind them. Both were in "good society." Both were excommunicated—The other day both returned. The woman was met with reproaches and epithets. Old friends cut her on the streets. A divorce was demanded by her aggrieved husband. She was voted an outcast.

How about Simmons? Simmons was a man, you see, and that makes a difference, you know. His wife and weeping friends welcomed him back with embraces—the poor misled prodigal. His cronies laughed with him and jostled him gaily on his gallantry. That night he drove around town with his family behind dappled grays, bowing and smiling patronizingly. Mrs. —no matter about the name, the other reprobate—is literally spurned and driven from her home by all who know her, while her paramour and equal criminal has not even for a moment lost his business footing, and is just as much the favorite in society as ever; for he is a man, you know.

Why is it thus? It is wrong. One of three things ought to come to pass—Either a woman's lapse from virtue ought to be regarded with more charity, or else the man who drags her down ought to be held to an equal punishment, or else polygamy ought to be established at once, and Brigham Young elected president.—It is simply shameful that women should be punished ten times as severely as men for the same sin.

Elephantiasis.

Eli Perkins in the New York Commercial Advertiser thus describes a curious case of suffering at Bellevue Hospital in New York:

Albert Morrow is the patient. He is forty years old and has a most pleasing countenance. He was formerly slim in person, but twenty years ago his feet commenced swelling. That swelling went on increasing—the it began to crawl up his legs to his knees, then up his thighs to his body. Then the dreadful poison moved through his whole system below his breast bone. His legs and stomach have become immense. He now weighs 500 pounds, and is gaining fast. His legs or thighs measure four and one-half feet in circumference. His disposition is cheerful, and he doesn't seem to be any pain.

His appetite, the doctor says, is immense, though he himself don't seem to think so. "How much do you eat in a day, Albert?" I asked yesterday.

"Well, not very much," he answered.

"How much?"

"Let's see, our regular diet, three times per day, is beef, potatoes and soup. I don't know how much I do eat. I suppose one pound of beef, a half dozen potatoes, and a quart of soup, that is at my regular meals."

"That is at your regular meals; now how much extra diet do you consume?"

"The doctor allows me, besides my regular meals, six ounces of whiskey, four eggs, twenty-four oysters, six quarts of milk, one pound of beef, two quarts of beef soup, half pound of crackers, one quart of rice, and some gruel."

"I don't wonder that Albert swells up. The doctor tells me that he consumes the above amount of food daily. He eats constantly, from morning till night. His great appetite makes him financially poor, and physically at. It would take ten men to earn enough to feed him."

A Costly Grist of Wheat.

In the month of October, 1867, some twenty bushels of wheat were stolen from a barn in Clay county, Indiana, and sold early the following morning at one of the leading flouring mills in Terre Haute.—The wheat was missed early in the morning and traced directly to its destination in market, and though the nocturnal thieves had made good their escape, a combination of circumstances and identification seemed to fasten the guilt upon two men named Bemis and Miller, who were arrested the same evening at Brazil. Under the privilege of the law changes of venue were taken before there several justices' courts in Clay county, and three days and as many nights were lost in the preliminary proceedings. The parties were then bound over to the court. Subsequently Miller turned State's evidence. The case has been before the courts twice, yearly, since that time, being continued from time to time by what were uniformly understood by every party outside the courts as frivolous excuses backed by the usual affidavits.

At the present term the case was thrown out of court at the request of all the prosecuting witnesses, for the reason that justice could not be obtained and the witnesses could not afford the expense.—William Mack, of Terre Haute, was on bench, and made a few remarks, commenting that "this was one of those cases damaging to the reputation of the courts and a farce on justice." This being a State case the witnesses got no fees. The original value of the wheat was $79.59. A witness figured his outlay as follows: Attendance on court 11 times; traveling expenses $25; board $24; time, 21 days, $63; total, $111. Multiplying this amount by 34 witnesses, and we have the $3,330. The Millers and Bemises claim to have paid lawyers' fees, etc., to the amount of $2,000, making the total cost $5,330. In his final speech the prosecuting attorney remarked that during the continuance of these cases several witnesses had died, and many others had grown from boyhood to be old men.—One of the lawyers on the defence had become palsied in his right arm; another had nearly gone blind, while the third had become weak in the small of his back—all writing affidavits and studying precedents for continuance.—Terre Haute (Ind.) Express.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

It is widely known as one of the most effectual remedies ever discovered for cleansing the system and purifying the blood. It has stood the test of years, with a constantly growing reputation, based on its intrinsic virtues, and sustained by its remarkable cures. So mild as to be safe and beneficial to children, and yet so searching as to effectually purge out the great accumulations of the blood, such as the scrofulous and syphilitic contamination. Injuries, or diseases that have linked in the system for years, soon yield to this powerful antidote, and disappear. Hence its wonderful cures, many of which are publicly known, of Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Ulcers, Eruptions, and eruptive disorders of the skin, Tumors, Blisters, Boils, Pimples, Pustules, Sores, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, and internal Ulcerations of the Uterus, Stomach, and Liver. It also cures other complaints to which it would not seem especially adapted, such as Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Fits, Neuralgia, Heart Disease, Female Weakness, Debility, and Leucorrhoea, when they are manifestations of the scrofulous poison.

It is an excellent restorer of health and strength in the Spring. By renewing the appetite and vigor of the digestive organs, it dissipates the depression and listless languor of the season. Even where no disorder appears, people feel better, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. The system grows on with renewed vigor and a new lease of life.
