Bloomington, Ill., has been exulting over some prize lambs, eleven months old, with wool sixteen inches long.

At municipal election at Burlington, N. J., on Tuesday, "for the first time" the Republican candidate for Mayor and all the city officers were elected.

A keeper who was taking two convicts to the State Prison, recently, when the train stopped at Sing Sing, called out: "Step out, gentlemen; fifteen years for refreshments."

A gentleman in this city breaking a boiled egg, yesterday, at dinner, discovered a black spot in the egg and pushed it aside. In clearing off the table, the black spot was found to have been caused by a brass pantalon button imbedded in the egg. Where the chicken got the button and how it came inside of the egg shell, is the mystery.—Peoria Transcript

Earthquake in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 26.—An earthquake shock was felt throughout the State this morning. The central force of the earthquake appears to have been in the Sierra Nevada, east of Visalia. At Visalia the shocks were sufficiently strong to throw goods from the shelves in stores, and to crack the walls of some buildings. At San Francisco the vibrations lasted 20 seconds, but were not felt by more than one-tenth of the population.

A Dog Constable

A good dog has sharper eyes than many constables, and is prompt to detect and arrest a thief after his own fashion. The following incident took place a few years ago:

Joseph Parsons, Esq., has a fine dog of the Newfoundland species, who is a very docile and affectionate fellow to all with whom he is acquainted; but he is very sparing of his friendship to strangers, nor will he hold familiar acquaintance with any one until he has seen him about the premises some time. He is by no means a savage animal, however, for he was never known to attack any person, except on one occasion, and then he doubtless felt himself in duty bound to do so in order to protect his master's property. On this occasion the subject of his displeasure was a stranger who came into the yard, and Lion, not liking his appearance, followed him about. The man, unconscious of the dog's sagacity, and therefore careless of his presence, secreted a chamouis skin and water-brush, which the groom had been using, and was about leaving the place when he was pounced upon by the dog, thrown down and kept there until some of the men came to his rescue. Before he left they elicited from him a confession of the theft he had committed, which, of course, they assigned as the sole cause of his having been so summarily dealt with by his detector, for strangers are almost every day seen in the yard by Lion, passing to and fro, without the least attempt at interference.

How a Case of Hydrophobia was Cured.

A correspondent of the Detroit Tribune describes at some length a fearful case of hydrophobia, where the man was in convulsions, "barking like a dog," frothing at the mouth, and making strenuous efforts to bite everything that came near. During these convulsions the patient would seize the pillows from his bed in his teeth, and shake and rend them with all the seeming ferocity of an angry dog. An intense dread of water also exhibited itself. The doctor decided to place the patient upon the same treatment which had been successful in a former case, which, for the aid it may be to others who suffer from this treatment, we here give, as follows:—The injection under the skin of large doses of morphia, and the administration of large doses of castor, which is a powerful antispasmodic. About one grain of the sulphate of morphia was injected under the skin once in four hours, and half a drachm of the powdered castor, mixed with syrup, given internally. The effect was to produce sleep in about half an hour, which lasted about an hour and a half, when the convulsions returned at intervals of an hour to an hour and a half until nine o'clock Sunday morning, when the last convulsion occurred, after which he suffered from obstinate vomiting until Monday at ten o'clock, when that also ceased, leaving the patient comparatively easy, but very much prostrated. Since that time he has improved, and is now quite well. In addition to the above treatment small quantities of chloroform were inhaled at times, and on Sunday morning the patient was wrapped in a woolen blanket wrung out of a warm solution of muriate of ammonia, eighteen to twenty grains to the ounce. This was the treatment which checked this fearful malady, and which the doctors, for the sake of humanity, are anxious should be published to the world, and thoroughly tested.

TRAGEDY AT THE DINNER-TABLE.

Another Case of Fatal Shooting—A mother Slain by Her Husband—Her Little Children by Her Side.

Pitiable in the extreme is a fatal case of shooting which occurred in the Seventeenth ward yesterday afternoon. A German, when intoxicated, shot his wife dead at the dinner table, while surrounded by their little children. The man is William Frevert, a grocer, residing in the rear of No. 334 East Six street, where he keeps a store. His wife, Sophia, was a small woman with regular and pleasing features. They were married ten years ago, and have four children, the eldest nine years of age, the youngest a baby eight days old. For the last three years and a half, during which time Frevert has resided in Sixth street, his conduct has been most exemplary and his behavior towards his wife of the most affectionate character. Three months ago Frevert opened a lager beer saloon at No. 324 East Houston street, which he placed in charge of a young German named Louis Miller. Yesterday afternoon Frevert went into this saloon with an old friend named Peter Latimer, a German carpenter. Frevert was intoxicated. After drinking some beer they left and went into the bakery of Joseph Kneidler, No. 326 East Houston street. Mr. Kneidler's foreman had been shooting rats in the bake room, and his pistol, a seven chambered Smith & Wesson revolver, lay on a bread stand. Frevert took it up and inquired whose it was. The foreman said he had been shooting rats. Frevert put the pistol in his pocket, asking "is it loaded?" The foreman answered "no," and asked him why he put it in his pocket.—Frevert answered that he wanted to shoot some rats in his own house. The foreman said he could have the pistol, and Frevert promised to pay for it. He then invited Latimer to dinner, and they both went to the house in Sixth street. Latimer took off his overcoat, and taking the pistol out of his pocket, laid it on the dinner table. Mrs. Frevert was in the kitchen preparing dinner. The four little children were seated around the table. The youngest began playing with the pistol, and Latimer told Frevert that he should not allow them. Frevert said, "Here, it is not loaded." Saying so he pointed the pistol at the door leading into the kitchen, and snapped it. It exploded, for, although the baker's foreman thought he had fired off all the loads, one chamber had a cartridge in it. At that moment Mrs. Frevert came to the kitchen door with a tray of coffee in her hand. The ball from the pistol entered her mouth, and taking a backward and upward direction crushed through her skull into her brain.

SHE FELL DEAD ON THE THRESHOLD of the room. Frevert for a moment seemed incapable of comprehending the extent of his act, but as he woke up to the consciousness that he had killed his wife he became distracted. He bent over her face and kissed her over and over again, and called on her to come back to life. The little children began crying, and the second youngest lung inquiringly to his coat skirt and sobbed, knowing not what the trouble was. The man Latimer fled from the house, and gave the alarm. Mrs. Brant, the landlord's wife, came to the door, and Frevert, seeing her, said, "Oh, come in, Mrs. Brant, and see what I have done." From kissing his dead wife, Frevert's face was covered with blood, and he presented a horrible appearance.—Officer Burbank, of the sanitary squad, which force occupied the Seventeenth precinct yesterday, came into the house and arrested Frevert. He was locked up in Seventeenth precinct station house. He was insane, as far as could be judged from his conduct last night.—N. Y. World.

The Best Disinfectants.

Charcoal or burnt clay will generally answer all purposes as disinfectants of foul sinks, drains etc. Dry burnt clay will absorb and hold most foul odors in its substance, preventing them from contaminating the air. All families should prepare it for their own use. The ordinary clay earth, completely dried and pulverized, will answer every purpose. Powdered charcoal put in a bag and suspended in a cistern, will do much to keep the water pure and free from offensive substances. Charcoal has wonderful absorbent qualities. When the air is impure it can only be disinfected by some volatile substance that will follow the offensive substance in the air. Carbolic acid does this. Soft water is a good absorbent of poisonous substances from the air, and a little ornamental fountain that works by being wound up like a clock is of great value in a sick room. The jet that it makes, falling in a sort of spray, helps to purify the air, and in summer cools it. Such a fountain is ornamental as well as useful. Pans of pure water in the sick room are better than nothing.

The wheat crop of North Georgia is said to be immense, and promises to be one of the best ever harvested.

HALLS VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation, which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY or FADING HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-follicles. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical Hair Dressing ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."
