

Mutilated Currency.

The Postmaster-General has issued a circular for the information and guidance of parties remitting old, defaced and mutilated currency by mail, to the United States Treasurer, for redemption, in which is stated the duty of postmasters to register without fee all letters containing fractional or other currency of the United States, sent to the Treasurer of the United States for redemption, and delivered to them for mailing under regulations prescribed in the circular.

Singular and Strange.

A harness maker, named John Locke, who resides in North Wales, on the North Penn, is the proud possessor of a pig, seven weeks old, which has six legs. He purchased it from a farmer near Doylestown. The animal is of Chester White kind, and was among a litter of nineteen. It is in perfect health and growing finely. There is no hump in the arrangement of the two legs. The latter part of the pig is double in every respect, having four perfect hind legs and four perfect hams, with but one tail however.

THE MARCH OF THE CHOLERA.

The latest foreign advices show that the cholera is making serious ravages in various parts of Europe. In Hungary, at Neuda, ninety-four cases in a day is the average, and the deaths, being twenty seven, show a mortality of over thirty per cent. In Eastern Prussia the disease has appeared at Gumbenitz, showing a wide spread of the epidemic in that portion of the Continent. But it is also said that the disease has appeared at Wexford, in Ireland, far from its seat in Eastern Europe, and separated by a vast extent of country which seems to be exempt from the malady. From these facts it may be supposed that the disease in Ireland is sporadic, and is not the true epidemic cholera which seems to be marching westward. Nevertheless, indications are that the condition of the atmosphere favors the spread of the disease, and we know not how soon it may reach our own shores. It is the duty, therefore, of our health authorities not only to be watchful, but to take such measures of a sanitary nature as will make the visit of the destroyer as light in its effects as possible. The Board of Health has done nothing in relation to the horse disease, which seems to be spreading among us, possibly, because it may be supposed that human beings are exempt from that pestilence. It may be so, but the sanitary measures of disinfection and cleansing which are believed to be good policy in regard to horses, have been proved to be, in former experience, the very best measures to guard the health of human beings. The Board of Health ought to take all the measures necessary to prevent the cholera from obtaining an easy foothold among us. This infection sometimes travels fast. Prudence requires that we should be prepared for it before it comes.

Death of Mrs. Greeley.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Mrs Horace Greeley died this morning at the residence of Mr Alvin Johnson. During the evening her symptoms were of such a favorable character as to inspire some faint hopes of her recovery. Such expectations, however, proved unfounded, as she had two chills during the night, after which she was very easy until she ceased to breathe, at 4 A. M., passing away peacefully, without any perceptible struggle. The funeral will take place at Dr. Chapin's church; at 12 o'clock on Friday Mrs Greeley, whose maiden name was Mary Young Cheney, was born in Connecticut, where her family still reside.—In 1835 or 1836 she went to Warrenton, N. C., to take charge of a school, and was married to Mr. Greeley in that place in 1836. Mr. Greeley was then conducting the New Yorker in this city, and in the establishment of the Tribune, and since, Mrs Greeley has exerted a powerful influence over her husband. They had several children, of whom only two are now living.

THANKSGIVING.

Proclamation by Governor Geary.
Believing in the Lord, our covenant God in whom our fathers trusted, and in His controlling providence over the affairs of men and nations, a public acknowledgment of His goodness and our constant dependence upon Him is eminently becoming an enlightened and civilized people. Now, therefore, impressed with these sentiments, in pursuance of a revered custom, and in conformity with the proclamation of Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, recommending that Thursday, the 28th day of November next, be set apart as a day of Praise, Prayer and Thanksgiving.
I, John W. Geary, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do most respectfully request the citizens of this State to observe that day as such with all due respect and solemnity. Let thanks be given to Almighty God that he has bestowed upon us all the common blessings of life, giving us health and relieved us from pestilence; that labor is abundantly rewarded; that we have no dread of impending famine, or fear of industrial or commercial distress; that the arts, sciences, general education and the sentiments of peace and good will are steadily advancing. Let us be especially thankful for the great privileges of American citizenship; for the untrammelled expression of opinion; that our political rights still remain safe under beneficent laws and in the hands of an order loving people; and that "equal and exact justice" is vouchsafed to all. For these, and for all other civil, social, and religious blessings we enjoy, let us yield the sincere tribute of grateful hearts, and humbly beseech their continuance.
Given under my hand the 28th day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and of the Commonwealth the ninety seventh.
JOHN W. GEARY.
By the Governor:—
F. JORDAN, Sec'y of the Commonwealth.

Lumber is now sawed in a manner to leave it almost as smooth as when put through a planer.

The Richest Man in the World.

The Khedive of Egypt is probably the richest man in the world. His yearly income is $50,000,000, and he has twenty five richly furnished palaces within the walls of Caria. He is vastly more progressive than the Sultan, his Turkish master; is rapidly extending his dominions, building railroads, and making commercial improvements, and will ultimately become independent of Turkish dominations. He is at present making arrangements for the construction of a railroad up the Nile to Dongola, and thence across the desert to London, which country he will make one of his own provinces. It has been remarked of him that "the Vicery, upon any throne in Europe, would be the greatest monarch of the age." He is not only a prince, but a merchant, a capitalist, a statesman and a cultivator. He sleeps only four hours of twenty-four, and at his desk center his railroad, steamship lines, telegraphs, postal, service, private estates, sugar mills, cotton mills, army, navy and civil service.

LINCOLN AND SEWARD.

The Use of the President's Secret Service Fund.

[From the Boston Journal.]

Just before Mr. Seward handed over the Department of State to the Premier of General Grant's administration, I called on the Secretary at his official residence. He was in fine health and spirits, and spent an hour in chatty conversation, President Lincoln being the subject of the talk. Mr. Lincoln, he said, carried with him through his whole career as President, the simple habits which marked him in his law practice in Springfield. If he wanted anything of the Department, messenger, he would take his hat and run around from one office to another, just as one lawyer would run around to the office of a brother practitioner. If missed at night, those in the secret could track him from place to place and be sure to come up with the President in some one of his favorite haunts. He saw no reason why he should not enjoy himself as President as well as when he was plain Abraham Lincoln. The President had the utmost horrors of forms and red tape. He did not care how things were done provided they were done. Adjutant General Thomas was sent out to relieve General Grant. Before he had a chance to serve his papers Vicksburg surrendered and Thomas did not dare disturb matters, so he came home to make his peace with the President; for as a soldier—and in time of war—he had violated orders. He sent a friend to sound the President on the return to Washington. The President was delighted with the surrender. Rubbing his hands he said: "Tell Thomas to come in. He did just right. He ought to have been shot if he had obeyed orders."

One day a lady came to Mr. Seward's office and handed him a scrap of paper, on which was scribbled a few lines. The purport of the note was: "Let this woman have $100 on account of the Secret Service Fund, and send her on her mission." The note was signed A. D. It is well known that Congress votes the President from $60,000 to $100,000 annually as a Secret Service Fund. Of this, the Secretary of State is the custodian. He must counter-sign the President's order or not a dollar of the fund can be used. But after the President receives the money nobody can inquire what he does with it. Mr. Seward inquired of the woman what secret service she was to perform that would justify his paying her $100. "Well, she was going to England to create a public sentiment there in favor of our country." The case was what Mr. Seward supposed. The woman had been hanging round the White House, bothering the life out of the President, and to get rid of her he proposed to give her $100. "I can give you no money for such a purpose," said the Secretary of State. "Your services are worth nothing. In London you would be a damage and not a benefit to us. I can't throw away the people's money in that fashion for you." The lady was not only indignant, but astonished. "So you refuse to obey the President's order?" "I do," "And you are a greater man than Mr. Lincoln; and when he says let me have $100 of his own money, you say I shan't have it?" "Well, Madam, if the President wants to give you $100 out of his own salary, he has a perfect right to do it. But you can have no money out of the Secret Service Fund for such a Tom Fool's errand as you are starting on." "Give me my papers, sir, if you please," said the excited lady, and off she started to find the President. Mr. Lincoln groaned as she crossed the threshold. "Well, that now?" "Mr. Seward won't give me the money," and she told her story. "Well, Madam," said the President, "I can do no more for you. I told you I had very little influence with this Administration."

A Jersey paper tells a very interesting story of a little boy in that State. He was climbing an apple tree, and when upon the topmost limb he slipped and fell to the ground. He was picked up and carried to the house in an insensible condition. After watching by his bedside through many weary hours, his mother perceived signs of returning consciousness. Leaning over him, she asked if there was anything she could do for him, now that he began to feel better. Should she bathe his forehead, or change his pillow, or fan him? Was there anything he wanted? Opening his eyes languidly, and looking at her, the little sufferer said: "Yes; I want a pair of pants with a pocket behind." He got them.

To our Friends and Patrons
We announce that at the late meeting of the Monroe County Agricultural Society, the first premium was awarded to the Estey Organ.
With due regard to the energy and zeal of other parties competing for the same prize, they found their instruments, when compared with the superior merits of the Estey, to be fifth class. In other words only imitations.
The style of the Estey is pleasing, its full depth of tone combines a sweetness and power that will make it a favorite in every house circle in Monroe county.
The ORGAN is durable and fully guaranteed.
We invite the public to call and examine or send for illustrated circular.
SOLD ON EASY TERMS.

The Sixth Premium.
For six successive years the GROVER & BAKER Sewing Machine has carried off prizes at the Monroe County Fairs.
At the late meeting of the Society, it awarded the Premium to this excellent Machine for "DOING THE BEST WORK DONE ON THE GROUND." We did not import our samples from the cities, but showed the Committee the capacity of the Machine, how complete and readily every style of work could be done; sewing through nine thicknesses of heavy cloth, four thickness of leather and segar boxes; then without any change of needle or thread, sewing cambric, muslin and tissue paper.
After careful examination of the different machines on exhibition the Judges decided in favor of the working ability of the "Grover & Baker."
Therefore the very best Sewing Machine for far every Lady to purchase is the improved Grover & Baker.
Sold on monthly instalments, with full instructions.
