

The Jeffersonian.

THURSDAY JANUARY 30, 1873.

For Sale.—Two new seven Octave Pianos, for sale at the Washington Hotel. Dec. 19 '72-4f.

The "beautiful snow" gave us a specimen of its falling qualities on nearly every day for the past week. It knows how.

Go to Phillips' for fruit candies and oysters, prices lower than before the fire.

The excitement about the Postmaster's office of this place is beginning to lull up. Applicants are said to be plenty and as a consequence the market is lively.

Go to Phillips' restaurant and confectionery for good cigars and tobacco, opposite the M. E. Church.

No body says anything about a library for the Engine House. What would the ladies say to a festival, or a series of them, as a means of raising the wherewithall.

M. L. Phillips' has the largest and best stock of French and American candies in town. Try them.

Scranton, and surroundings, has twenty-two applicants for Hotel licenses, and eleven to sell by the quart. There appears to be a determination in this that if any body, in that city of magnificent distances goes dry, it shall be his own fault.

Don't forget that M. L. Phillips has just opened his place of business up town, opposite the M. E. Church.

Sacide appears to be the prevailing fashion all over the country just now. How foolish! If these throat cutting and rope suspending chaps would just hold on a while they would die just as easy and certainly and without half the trouble.

Go to M. L. Phillips, restaurant and confectionery for oysters, the largest and best in town. Only $1 per hundred.

Theodore F. Hallock and N. H. Shaffer, have formed a co-partnership, for the purpose of carrying on the painting and paper-hanging business. They are worthy young men and deserve a liberal support. Read their advertisement in another column.

Read the new advertisement of C. R. Andre & Co., in another column. The firm means business, and when they say "sell cheap," why sell cheap it is. If you don't believe us call on them and see how it is yourself.

Mr. J. M. Singer, the accomplished and successful teacher of vocal music, assisted by the East Stroudsburg Singing Class, proposes giving a Grand Concert, at Union Hall, in that borough, this (Thursday) Evening. A rich treat is in store for all who attend, and the Hall should be crowded.

The street passenger rail-way continues to be, as it has been for many days, blockaded with ice. The unusually frequent snow storms we have this winter has led the company to believe that it is better to lay down the shovel and the hoe for the present, and we do not know but they are right.

Wm. E. Henry, passed through town, on Friday evening last, with a four horse sleigh load of East Stroudsburg's little folks. They were happy as angels and made the town as lively with their sweet singing and merry prattle, as do the Blue birds and Robbings at their coming in the spring time.

Mr. Wm. H. McGarrah, of Scranton, and Miss Lizzie Walton of this place, were married by Friends' ceremony, at the residence of the bride's mother, on Wednesday of last week. The Printers were kindly and liberally remembered. May the young couple experience nothing but prosperity and happiness in their journey through life.

The Temperance folks hereabouts are busy at the work of enlisting voters in the crusade against granting licenses for the sale of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in this neighborhood. We do not presume that the opposite side is idle, and hence the spring election day promises a busy and exciting time.

Our Masonic friends are busy at work fitting up their new Hall. Their new furniture reached here a few days ago, and "splendid" is hardly word of sufficient strength of meaning to describe it. Sofas, chairs and carpets, fit for a palace were unboxed and stowed away by the happy brethren. We hope to have an opportunity, ere long, to examine and describe the Hall as completed.

Foult's team, hooked to a sled, on Tuesday, decided to break up the monopoly usually prevalent here, by having a little go to themselves. They ran, the people ran, "Joe" was around after them, and the excitable thermometer was just beginning to rush up, when a tree in front of Mrs. Keiser, brought the nags up standing. No bones broke, no work for Doctors, nothing but a crowd out of breath, and a broken tree was the result.

Our town, for a week or two past has been suffering from a miniature coal famine. But for an opportune wreck on the rail road, by which a mixed lot of coal sought a country customer. Friday, Saturday and Sunday last, would have found wood a staple much in demand here. Why is this. Does the railroad monopoly, by which we are blessed, (you may use the other word if you choose reader,) think nobody gets cold or need "fired vittles" but city folks? Disabuse your mind of such nonsense-gentlemen monopolists.

IMPROVEMENTS.—We understand that Mr. Stephen Kistler contemplates making extensive additions and improvements, to his already large Tannery, at East Stroudsburg.

Geo. E. Stauffer is making preparations for the erection of a two story brick residence in the same "burgh."

We also hear of improvements contemplated in Stroudsburg, but can learn nothing definite.

The Local Option bill is beginning to be discussed and criticized with considerable spirit throughout the State. Even the friends of the law are seeing flaws in it, which they think may react to the prejudice of the Temperance cause. It is seriously contended, that as the present excise law was created as a revenue measure, rather than as a preventative, to an excessive indulgence in liquor, the restriction, or prohibition, of the granting of licenses, by the vote of the people of a district, will open the door to the promiscuous and free sale of the ardent in that district. It is argued, and with some reason, that the repeal of the revenue portion of the law, by the power delegated to the people by the local option law, annihilates the whole excise law so far as the district deciding against license is concerned. The law will, doubtless, furnish food for law suits in more ways than one.

PERSONAL.—The Hon. Wm. Davis, of the Constitutional Convention, spent several days at his home here, last week. He was looking remarkably well.

Harry S. Wolfe, of this place, who is concertizing with the Eilenberger Brothers, is winning golden opinions from the public for his excellence as a singer. The Troupe sang in the Opera House, Scranton on Monday evening, in Wilkes-Barre on Tuesday, and are now working their way to Philadelphia. The season with them thus far has been a success.

The Hon. R. S. Staples, of the Penna. House of Representatives, spent Friday, Saturday and Sunday last, with his family here at home. Richard never looked better than he does now. Legislating appears to agree with him.

We inadvertently last week, omitted mentioning the departure of Mr. T. D. Parott, President of the Tanite Company, for South America. Mr. P. has been an invalid for some time and goes to that region of sunskies and balmy breezes in quest of health. He carries with him the best wishes of his many friends here, for his speedy and complete restoration to health, and return to his home, friends and business.

Look to your Horses.

People owning horses, now that the Epizootic is over, should not neglect to look after their horses and the fastenings of their stable doors. On Wednesday night of last week Mr. John Flagler's attention was attracted by the unusual bellowing of his cow. Thinking, probably, that he had forgotten to shut her in, he went out to his stable, when he found two prowlers loafing around and both his horses harnessed up, preparatory to a "big steal." On his approach one of the men ran away, while the other crawled up into the hay mow and, crawling under the chaff, played off drunk, with such good effect that friend Flagler, sat up with him until morning, when he invited him into breakfast. The chap preferred going hungry, however, and walked himself off in quick time. The design was, unmistakably, to steal the horses, which would have been accomplished, but for the bellowing of the cow. The man should have been provided with quarters at "hotel de Troch" until the Court could have provided more appropriate quarters for him.

The small pox is prevailing to an alarming extent in Luzerne county.

The pews in Beecher's church are this year rented for $60,230 50. Last year the rents amounted to $59,875.

The State Fair.

The executive committee of the State Agricultural Society has named Erie as the place for the next State Fair. It will be held on the 23rd, 24th, 25th, and 26th of September.

1873.

The 22nd of Feb. comes on Saturday; Fourth of July on Friday; Ash Wednesday, February 26th; Good Friday, April 11th; Easter Sunday, April 13th. There are fifty two Sundays in the year, March, June, August and November having five each. The year comes in and goes out on Wednesday.

Governor Hartranft's Appointments.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22. Official announcement has been made of the following appointments by Governor Hartranft:— Secretary of the Commonwealth—Colonel Matthew S. Quay, of Beaver. Attorney General—Hon. Samuel E. Dimick, of Wayne. Private Secretary—Colonel A. Wilson Norris, of Philadelphia.

After Him.

A lady came to this place a few days since, in search of her husband, who she claims, recently, and without cause, left her and married another woman. The notice of the marriage of her perfidious lord to the young and blushing widow, was published in the Journal, and the injured wife came to our office for a copy of the paper containing the same, which we cheerfully furnished her. She says she is going to make the "destroyer of her peace and happiness" smart, for stealing away from her the sharer of her joys and sorrows. She did not seem inclined to censure her husband very severely for allowing himself to be thus entrapped and carried away, but was disposed to act leniently toward him. How the affair has resulted we know not, but trust that we will be able to give our readers more of the particulars in our next issue.—Warren Journal.

HOME IN THE COUNTRY ?

The question has often been asked, why is it that so few young men become farmers? And even farmers themselves, after rearing several boys, are often astonished and perplexed to find, that in their "old days," they are left alone. The problem is not a difficult one and should command the serious and thoughtful attention of all those who are engaged in tilling the soil. Now a days, as a matter of course, a boy, as soon as he arrives at an age in which he may be useful on the farm, goes off to learn a trade, or enters a store as book-keeper or clerk, or perchance engages in one of the liberal professions. As a natural consequence, we find these places filled—overflowing with applicants. Where does the fault lie; who is to blame? The farmer, if he has any boys, will naturally say, "it certainly is not my fault. Ever since my boys were old enough to do any work, I've always made it a point to make them useful and profitable, but after all my pains and trouble to make good farmers out of them, they have left home and engaged in other pursuits." Yes, no doubt, as soon as they were large enough to pick stones or hoe corn, you kept them busy from morning till night. If after several days of constant labor at loading stones, and the end of their fingers were worn through, you may have given them this sweet consolation, "they'll get used to it in time;" or after hoeing corn until they assumed the shape of a senescent circle, you may have comforted them by saying, "it will increase your muscle and make you robust." After growing older you may have allowed them the privilege of following the plow all day for weeks; to cut brush and make stone-fence by the month. In the evening you may have granted them the pleasure of sitting in the kitchen by the cooking stove with a tallow candle to throw "light on the subject." After doing all this have you failed in your plan? Well it does seem like a rather intricate problem after looking it "square in the face." Perhaps your knowledge of human nature is somewhat limited. Man is a curious mechanism, with his appetites and passions, his desires and wants and all these must be met and to a certain extent gratified. The boy on the farm develops physically by the food he eats and the exercise he receives. But how about his mental, moral and religious growth? Do they receive the proper nourishment they require? Here is where the great secret lies, why young men leave the farm. Labor is honorable, noble and elevating, and he, who despises it or frowns on the hard laboring man, must be devoid of common sense. Its not the hard work that drives them from home, but it is the enjoyment, pleasure and society which they seek and do not find that makes them dislike farm-life.

If we look into the condition of young men learning trades or engaged in business, we generally find that their evenings, or at least, some of them are left to their disposal. They have books, magazines and papers with which they can satisfy the craving demand of their intellectual wants. They have an opportunity of meeting each other and those of the "fair sex" in society. Man was not constituted a solitary being; his nature revolts against it.

If homes in the country were made more attractive and less uninviting than they are (and they can be at a very trifling cost) we would realize a great change in the minds, habits and customs of farm boys. For instance, if they were permitted after a hard day's work to enjoy the use of a room in which the family could retire and amuse themselves by reading books, papers or engaging in conversation, instead of inhaling the odor of sour-crust, onions, parsnips or some other vegetables that are all very good and agreeable as long as they are satisfying the wants of the inner man, but after that more preferable at a distance. Farmers, as a class, generally have substantial and roomy dwellings; neatly and comfortably furnished. But the over-careful and economical mother, in order to keep the carpets from fading and the furniture from getting out of place, bolts the doors and fastens the shutters, so that the bright rays of the sun and the fresh air never penetrate within these sacred precincts. Certainly the cob-webs are swept from the ceiling once a month and the furniture placed again in the exact position. The family occupy the kitchen unless there is an out kitchen in which they can huddle together. The parlor or sitting room is never used unless it's a very extraordinary occasion. At such times, before the "visitors" are out of sight, the doors are bolted again, the shutters closed, and the whole family travel to the uninviting and perhaps smoky kitchen.

Do you not believe that parents are the cause of this indifference and hatred, in their sons for farming? Then why not open your houses, let in the bright sunlight and pure air, which is so abundantly supplied for our wants. Give your children access to the whole house, supply them with books, subscribe for a few papers, purchase an organ, make your house a home instead of a place to stay and you will find that spending a few dollars in this way will have the desired effect. You need no greater inducements than those which we have mentioned to turn the balance, and then, instead of your boys leaving the old farm, so early, or engaging in other business, they will remain at their old employment.

"That's very well," says one, "but what sense is there in this useless expenditure of so much money?" Kind friend we will ask you, what are you living for? To make a few paltry dollars? Who is that being, who tells thus incessantly and laboriously for wealth; who makes that the end of life? He is an immortal being; he might aspire after an ever expanding and extending good, and that being so infinite in capacity, so endless in duration to what is he looking? To the starry heavens where shine the twinkling lamps of Jehovah; to the boundless domain of this beautiful world? Ah! no, not even that. It is to a handful of dust that he is looking. Thought cannot set bounds to his future existence; he is destined to live throughout the endless ages of eternity, but on what are his hopes fixed? On a few paltry dollars. How much better it would be if he should throw off his selfish nature and live for others. Yes, make the world better for your presence, exert your influence for good, benefit suffering humanity, then when you "shuffle off your mortal coil," you will not receive the ignoble epitaph, "Another old niggardly miser has gone to his grave, and the world the better for it." Bar Meeting.

EASTON, January 20, 1873.

A meeting of the members of the Bar of this County, was held in the Court House this morning. On motion of M. H. Jones, Esq., Hon. A. Brower Longaker was appointed chairman, and on motion of Hon. H. D. Maxwell, J. K. Daves was appointed Secretary.

Judge Maxwell, in a few pertinent remarks announced the death of Charles Davis, Esq., a member of the Bar, and moved the adoption of the following resolutions, viz:

WHEREAS Information has been received of the death of Charles Davis, Esq., the senior member of the Bar, who was admitted as an attorney of this Court on the sixth day of January, 1817, practised at this Bar for several years, afterward removed to Allentown, in the County of Lehigh, and subsequently to Reading, in Berks County, in which last named counties he had a large and successful practice for many years, and a few years ago returned to this, his native county, where he resided at the time of his decease.

Resolved, That this Bar bear testimony to the high character and great worth and accurate legal knowledge of the lamented deceased. He was ever devoted to the interests of his clients; earnest and assiduous in the faithful discharge of his duties to men and the Court, and died at an advanced age, in full Christian hope.

Resolved, That the members of the Bar will attend the funeral of the deceased in a body, and wear the usual badge of mourning, and that an invitation be extended to the members of the Bar of Lehigh and Berks counties to unite with us in paying this last mark of respect to the memory of the deceased.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the widow of the deceased, and to the Bars of Lehigh and Berks counties, and published in the newspapers of this county.

The resolutions having been submitted by M. H. Jones, Esq., with some brief remarks, were unanimously adopted, and the meeting adjourned.

A. B. LONGAKER, Chairman.
J. K. DAVES, Sec'y.
