

The Jeffersonian.

THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 4, 1873.

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

JUSTICE OF THE SUPREME COURT, ISAAC G. GORDON, of Jefferson County. STATE TREASURER, ROBERT W. MACKAY, of Allegheny.

We have had delightful weather for a week past, each day verifying the prognostications of Old Probabilities to a dot.

N. Ruster is in New York at present, buying his Fall and Winter goods. Look out for a Big Stock of Clothing, Hats, Caps, Furnishing Goods, and Dry Goods, by the first of next week.

If you want a real good Cigar, go to Charley Mick's, down town, and get one. Charley never keeps any but good ones on sale, and his stock of Cheiving and Smoking Tobacco and Pipes cannot be beaten.

Mr. Wm. Altemose lost a valuable Stallion at Camp Meeting, on Sunday. The horse had been driven quite hard, and the death is supposed to have been caused by the exhaustion consequent thereon.

THE Democratic State Convention, at Wilkes Barre, nominated Judge Ludlow, of Philadelphia, for Judge of the Supreme Court, and F. M. Hutchison, of Allegheny, for State Treasurer. The ticket will not receive votes enough to elect it.

THREE hundred and eighty-five wagons passed Bossardville, on Sunday last, on their way to the Camp Meeting at the Lake near Saylorburg. As the wagons were filled chock full of people, some idea of the attendance may be formed from this data.

As Mr. Kistler, was returning from Camp meeting, on Monday evening last, accompanied by a young lady, owing to some cause his vehicle was turned over a bank, and he and his companion were severely bruised. The lady has several teeth knocked out and was otherwise, but not seriously injured. The wagon was a complete wreck, and the horse was instantly killed.

We learn that the next term of our Public Schools, will commence on Monday the 15th inst, and that it is proposed to continue them in operation for the nine months ensuing. The Board of Directors has secured the services of Prof. Morey, as principal for the term, which is a sure guarantee that the schools will be properly managed, and that if the pupils do not improve the fault will lie somewhere else than in the management. Mr. M. is an excellent teacher, and will be ably assisted by his assistants.

A DECIDED improvement is being made, and about completed, in the Engine House, under the supervision of the Borough Street Committee. The old floor, which was badly rotted, has been torn out, and the building filled up, even with the street line, with gravel, and sand, and neatly paved with hard burnt brick. Track ways for the Steamer and Horse Carriages have also been laid with the best quality of flag-stones.

We learn that the Rev. John Kohler, of Trappe, Montgomery county, Pa., has accepted the call to the Pastorship of the St. John's Lutheran Church of this borough, and that he will enter upon the duties of his position about the 1st of October. We congratulate the congregation upon their securing the services of so able a Divine, and cannot but prognosticate from his advent among us, prosperity to the church, and an excellent harvest in the noble field to which his talent and energies are devoted.

We have been favored, by the publisher Mr. Joe (Judge we would like to call him after the Election) Lynn, with the 2nd No. of the "Monthly Souvenir," a periodical of large size, published at Mauch Chunk, Pa. The "Souvenir" is devoted to the interests of the Lehigh and Wyoming Valleys, and will doubtless prove to be a magazine of more than ordinary merit and deserving. The number before us is filled with choice reading matter, and is illustrated with a number of wood engravings, executed in the best style of the engravers art. The magazine is furnished at the mere nominal price of $1.50 per annum, which should draw it a host of subscribers. It beats the city monthlies all hollow.

The new Masonic Temple in Philadelphia is almost finished. The dedicatory ceremonies will begin on the 25th of September and continue three days. It is estimated that over 100,000 members of the mystic tie will be present and assist in the ceremonies.

Judah P. Benjamin, formerly a rebel Senator, now a member of the English bar, has notified two ladies named Campbell and Chambers, of Madison, Georgia, that they are joint heirs to $12,000,000 from a French estate.

S. Wells Williams, the oldest inhabitant among the foreigners in China, and Secretary of the United States Legation, has just finished his dictionary of the Chinese language. It is the result of 40 years' labor, and contains explanations of 12,500 Chinese characters.

Pittsburg is said to be building a pair of the most powerful engines in the world. The pair will weigh 1500 tons and will cost $423,550. They are to be used in raising water, and are expected to be of sufficient capacity to lift 14,240,000,000 gallons every 24 hours.

THE GLORIOUS DEMOCRACY.

Monday last was a day that will long be held memorable in the annals of Democracy hereabouts. For a long time back there had been dodgings and nudgings, and winkings and blinkings among the leaders of our Democracy, and it was evident even to the most mystified beholder that there must be a very large and wonderful "Hen on," engaged in the work of political incubation. The last week's Monroe Democrat, conscious that the strain was too heavy for the body politic to bear long without danger, came to the rescue, and, in language terse and graphic, condensed to let us know what the "Hen" aforesaid was trying to do. Monroe county, said the Democrat had for a series of years been slighted and insulted by Mother Northampton and Sister Carbon, and that now, as the "old woman" had been set out side the political ring, sister Monroe would assert her rights, and would just as certainly secure them—that she intended to set up on her own account, and that she meant to inflict condign punishment upon Sister Carbon, by whipping her soundly in the coming election.

On Monday, the efforts looking this wise, were to be inaugurated, and, of course Monday became a day looked for by the curious in such matters, with more than usual anxiety. Monday came, and with it came the untirred from the North, the South, the East, and the West ends of the county, with faces rendered terrible by the determination dire to strike the terrific blow. The great Smithfield of Democratic power had Ex-Representative Place and John Coolbaugh for her champions, while Stroudsburg came with a delegation, marshaled and generated by no less a personage than he, who, through the columns of the "Organ," pumps most delectable Thunder for the amusement and instruction of the brave cohorts, who swear by and pray to the great Democratic party. It was a grand day, and in spirit with its grandeur was the terrible aspect which things were made to present.

At 2 o'clock P. M., a tap or two of the bell announced that the work was about to commence, and great was the rush that was made to the Court House, to see and hear what was to be seen and heard. Carbon had a delegation on hand, and these too rushed with the crowd. But both crowd and Carbonites were doomed to disappointment. This was an extraordinary Convention, with extraordinary objects in view, that was about to meet, and it would be degrading to its dignity to proceed in the ordinary way. Besides it was necessary to know how the Cat intended to jump, or rather, whether the Old Hen produced chicks, ducks, goslings, snakes or snapping turtles, ere the brood was presented for the consideration of the people. Instead, therefore, of a direct assembling of the convention the prospects must first be submitted to a Modoc pow-wow in the lava beds of the Jury room, or to a star chamber inquisition. No matter about time honored usages, and the fair and square transaction of the business on hand, in the presence of the people, which has ever heretofore prevailed, this Convention would do its own work in its own way, and, if need be, bury the honesty of the past in the grave of oblivion. Accordingly, with this view, the taps of the bell merely called the Delegates to secret conclave, and outsiders were doomed to await the movements of the self-constituted masters, with what patience they could.

After about an hour had thus been spent, in hatching and fixing, the Court-house bell rang out boldly, when the Delegates came sneaking into the Court-room, and quietly slid themselves into the seats within the bar. The Convention was then organized by appointing Ex-Representative Place, in behalf of those wounded honor this battle was to be fought, Chairman, and John Coolbaugh, and A. O. Greenwald, Esqs., Secretaries. It was evident, at this point that the work had not proved so genial as had been expected. Carbon's eyes were upon the Convention, and though Chairman James and Secretary John, old stagers in political crime, managed to stand up to the rack, our modest friend Amandus O— was not quite equal to the work, and hid his blushes, and terrors by setting with his back to the Delegates and the auditors. The presentation of the credentials of Delegates was next in order, after which on motion of Delegate Swink of Stroud township, William Kistler, of Pocono township, was nominated as candidate of the Democracy of Monroe, for the Legislature. It was then proposed to make this nomination unanimous, but emphatic no from Smithfield, Chestnut Hill and Coolbaugh met the proposition.

Our modest neighbor, Amandus O., who, we ardently hoped, in view of the fact that Congressional honors for Monroe are indefinitely postponed, owing to black-republican geremandering of the district, would be the unanimous nominee of the Convention for Representative, made a majestic arising at this point, and, his face suffused with blushes, proceeded to read a ponderous whereas and resolution, grand as a concentration of glittering generalities, but lamentably weak in ideas and truth. Our friend must be immensely presuming, or wofully wanting in historic knowledge of party doing hereabouts, when he asserts, in view of Beardslee vs. Dimmick, that Monroe county has never tried to overreach any of her sister counties, in their relation of Senatorial, Representative or Congressional Districts. The truths of history are the other way, and if Monroe is aggrieved now, she is only suffering because of the precedent set by her own aggressions, and should sing dumb. These bantlings of our neighbor also met with emphatic nos. A motion to adopt and embody the resolutions adopted by the Democratic State Convention met the same fate; not because the delegates voting were not wool-dyed Democrats, but because, seeing so much that was heterodox in the action of the Captains of the Convention, they had come to doubt whether it was possible that any thing Democratic could be encompassed in any proposition these same captains might be inclined to submit.

Mr. Secretary Coolbaugh, (we love to hear John say things, for he says them so modestly and smoothly, you know,) then offered a resolution of encouragement for the nominee—pledging the party to support him, &c.—There was no opposition to this resolve, as the few who had determined not to be contaminated by the bolt had retired previous to its presentation. After a few remarks, in good taste, by the nominee, Mr. Kistler, the Convention adjourned, and thus ended about as complete a farce as was ever exhibited to the public.

It is probably none of our business what Democrats choose to do with their own matters, or how they essay to do it, but we cannot avoid venturing the assertion, that both the Convention and its proceedings, on Monday, were both irregular and illegal. Usage, based upon agreement, as the nominee belonged to Carbon, merely required the ratification of Carbon's work by the Monroe Democratic County Committee. Acting under this view, doubtless, several of the townships failed to send representatives to the Convention, and of the thirty-seven Delegates present, but nineteen, by their votes, proved themselves bolters—leaving the inference very clear, that the majority of the Monroe Democracy favor Carbon's rights, and intend to support them.

The only redeeming feature of the Convention was the nomination of so good a man as Mr. Kistler for the Legislature; but it is lamentable to think that so good a man would consent to assist in fighting the battles, and skinning the skunks, of disappointed office-hunters and political hucksters. The end thereof can only be defeat.

IMPROVEMENTS.—His Hon. Judge Dreher who recently purchased the Dr. Stokes property, has a large force of workmen engaged in fitting it up for occupancy. The improvements contemplated are quite extensive, and being handsomely located, will, when finished, make as fine a residence as the town boasts of.

Mr. Joseph Matlack is fitting up the Judge's old residence with a view to occupying it as a residence for his family.

Jesse Albert has a large force at work upon the basement of his new residence, corner of Franklin and Monroe streets.

Jacob Knecht's new house is progressing finely, corner of Green and Ann streets.

Theodore F. Hallock's new residence on Monroe street is in the hands of the plasterers and will soon be completed.

Jerome Featherman's extensive repairs to his property on Green street, by which he has nearly made a new house out of the old one, are about completed.

Thomas M. McIlhenny has about finished a rear addition to his residence on Green street.

John S. Fisher, Esq., has just finished the job of making a new house, out of the old one on the McDermott property on Sarah street.

M. R. Brown, is getting the material for a fine residence to be erected by him this fall on the lot recently purchased by him of A. L. Lobar, corner of Ruff and Green street.

M. H. Rhodes is cogitating over a plan for a new house, which he contemplates erecting, this fall, on the south east corner of Franklin and Thomas streets.

Geo. W. Drake, remodeled dwelling, on Main street down town, is fast approaching completion. It will be a neat affair.

Mr. Thos. A. Bell has a number of workmen engaged making considerable of an addition to the rear of his residence on Center street.

The carpenters are at work fitting up the store room in Sheriff Marsh's new building. When completed it will be the finest business room in town.

From the foregoing it will be seen that the course of improvements in our Borough, has been steady during the present season. Our neighboring borough of East Stroudsburg has not been behind as in the race of improvements.

One of the results of the recent disaster to the Chesapeake and Delaware canal has been that the peach growers were compelled to send their peaches to Baltimore, that being the only market within reach. The Baltimore market was consequently overstocked, and on the 23d of August the finest peaches found few buyers at 25 cents a box, while the inferior kinds sold for 10 cents a box, and many were given away on the promise to return the box.

What we saw and heard within the week.

Capt. Jack, Shoshone, Boston Charley, Black Jim, Barcho and Slotuck, of the March Chunk Modocs, scouting around the Democratic Meeting on Monday.—Two up town young ladies looking for drivers to take them to camp meeting on Sunday.—A rail still wanting on the Pocono Bridge.—The Somerville widowers and Johnnie threaten to visit our town again.—The "unfired" holding a "Pow-wow" at the Court House, with no lack of Patriots willing to sacrifice their home comforts to serve the dear people at the State Capitol.—The work goes bravely on! (?) another week rolled around, and the street down town untinged, because committee gone to Camp Meeting.—The man who came to town ten years ago, with nothing in his pockets is now the happy possessor of three "purps," Weston No. 2. Sporting a new tile, and taking his daily exercise, previous to starting on his overland trip to New-Orleans.—Our William looking happy as a weevil in a meal bag, driving Ellie to her home in the rural district—Galang, persimmons, but "wasn't their joy in Israel.—One of our female "tons" at Diddies, trying her hand at billiards, a few nights ago.—George, the champion feather-weight bruiser trying to scare a two hundred pounder at Lake on Sunday—but he didn't scare.—Ned W. Jr., the inventor of "what I saw," in town on Saturday.—Dorey and Johnnie returning from a fruitless trip to Saylorburg, looking so wobble-cropped.—A lover of the beautiful, from East Stroudsburg, viewing the Lake and its surroundings through a Sarsaparilla Bottle—but wasn't it (hic) lovely.—A high toned conductor generously halving his ginger cake with a blooming country lass.—The owl train hauled off for repairs.—Plank lying by our street crossings on the back streets preparatory to repairs.—Johnny C. of Middle Smithfield illuminating the Democratic Meeting.—A number of our city visitors taking up the line of march for home.—Shingle Johnny mourning the loss of his mate.—The borough regulators marking the course of events.—F. A. and L. making preparations for conquest on Saturday evening.—Slimly attended churches on Sunday.—Sarah Ann trying to dodge the rain drops on Sunday—and she was lovely.—The power of the Democracy at the meeting, on Monday.—The Chief Burgess, the assistant Policeman, an Embury Sawbones, and several smaller boys enjoying a game of foot ball on Main street.

Five men were killed and nine seriously injured by the falling of an old building in course of reconstruction, in New York, last Friday week.

James West, aged 20, was hanged at Baltimore, on Friday week, for the murder of Anna Gibson, last March.

James Palmer, aged 25, was hanged at Towson, Md., on Friday week for a criminal assault on a young German girl in 1870.

The reports of the fruit crop in the West indicate that a poor yield may be expected this season.

A member of the Mississippi Legislature has been arrested in St. Louis for stealing a coat valued at $25.

The enforcement of the liquor law in Massachusetts is creating a great excitement among the brewers. They are raising the point whether the United States Government has the right to collect taxes from the brewers while it is unlawful to manufacture and sell beer in the State.—A test suit has been brought and will be tried.

An Indiana judge has decided that the personal property of a man who goes to Europe is not taxable while he is gone. But the personal property of those who go to Heaven is regularly taxed and the taxes collected. Is Europe a better place to go to than Heaven?

Concerning marriages in Bavaria, C. C. Fulton writes from Munich to the Baltimore American: It may be an interesting item of news to some of your lady readers to notice the fact that on every Monday morning a list of all the engagements for marriage that have taken place during the preceding week are published in the morning papers. They proceed to state that: "John Schmidt, son of Thomas and Marie Schmidt, has entered into a contract for marriage to Katherine Von Jones, second daughter of Josef and Emile Von Jones, and that all the papers have been signed and approved by the parents of both contracting parties."—How would our ladies like this formality of proceeding, which virtually cuts them off from all gentlemen's society, except the affianced one? He is allowed only to spend one evening a week with her, in the company of father and mother, until the ceremony is performed; and how would our youthful Benedicts like this, especially as they are not expected to give much time to their lady friends after the publication of this formal announcement.

Ah! if we were not obliged to eat! Oh how many miseries, of how much indigestion, of what incompetent cooks, of what labors of mastication should we be rid, to say nothing of butchers' bills and the bills of grocers! It is interesting, therefore, merely from an abstract point of view, to know that a man in Boston—where the fish balls and the brown bread grow—has been trying the experiment of living upon nothing. Mr. Owen Thomas McDermott of that city, for twelve days and fifteen hours, ate nothing at all. From the 6th of August at 10 p. m. to the 19th of August at 1 p. m. Mr. McDermott swallowed nothing. Occasionally he rinsed his mouth with water. Every day he took a salt water bath and a long walk. All the time he slept well. For the first four days he was intensely hungry; after that he lost the desire for food, but grew gradually weaker. He weighed at the beginning of the trial 141 pounds, and at its conclusion 120 pounds. He does not appear to have experienced much inconvenience. He began to take nourishment again by swallowing a very little oatmeal porridge, cautiously proceeding to boiled rice and milk.

The epizootic has re-appeared at Poughkeepsie, and fourteen horses belonging to the city railroads have been attacked by the disease. It is reported that the disease is confined entirely to the throat, and almost immediately after being attacked the horse becomes weak and debilitated. As yet but one horse has died. Immediate and careful nursing generally saves them.

A happy instance of sterling patriotism in the trying times of the war has just been brought to light at the Treasury Department. A five hundred dollar bond of the act of February 25, 1862, second series, was received a few days since, upon the back of which was written the following: "I risk this amount of my earnings with my country, having already risked my life. The old ship of State will outlive the storm. Some of my associates in arms say these bonds will never be redeemed. I half suspect some of them think of self and laurels first, the country afterward. Crippled and worn out, I shall soon leave the service; but my children will not be wrung in this. T. CLARK, "29th Ohio Infantry, "Washington, D. C., May, 1863."

The law of demand and supply received a startling illustration the other day in Troy. It was announced by the Trojans Board of Health that every one reporting a dead cat to the Board should receive fifty cents, provided he buried the cat. Immediately a ghastly procession of the youth of Troy appeared before the doors of the Health office, each bearing a dead cat in his acquisitive hands. This lasted for several days, and it was remarked that as time passed on the feline corpses looked more and more fatigued, and the air about the sanitary headquarters was loaded with a suggestion of mortality. At last Controller Albertson, alarmed at the financial prospect, concluded to stop paying, and from that moment the cat epidemic ceased in Troy.

New Oil Territory Discovered.

TITUSVILLE, Pa., August 23.—A new oil territory has been discovered four miles southwest of this city. The Bailey & Gilmore well, which was struck yesterday on the Hamilton farm, has a quality of sand rock unsurpassed by any other territory in the oil region. There is every appearance that a belt of oil has been discovered which will rival the lower Alleghany district. This is the opinion of the oldest and most experienced oil operators.

Pure Iron.

Absolutely pure iron is said to have been produced by a Russian chemist by means of the galvanic battery. During the process a large quantity of hydrogen was disengaged from the ordinary iron used. The pure iron is a silver white metal, very malleable and ductile, and so soft as to be readily cut with a pair of scissors. It is very different from iron which has been hitherto supposed to be pure. It oxidizes very rapidly, and water is decomposed by it by the rapid absorption of oxygen.

The Illinois and Iowa Corn Crop.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—The Chicago Tribune has crop reports by telegraph from about forty counties in Illinois, embracing the greater part of the corn-growing portion of the State, and from about twenty counties in different parts of Iowa. With the exception of half the counties in Illinois, all estimate the corn crop at only from one-half to two thirds of the average yield, though in some localities where the yield will be short there is greater acreage planted than usual. The reports from Iowa correspond with these from Illinois. The drought has injured the corn very materially, and the season is so far advanced that rain now would hardly benefit it.

Explosion of a Boiler at an Iron Works.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 25.—An explosion occurred about 5 o'clock this morning at the American Iron Works of Messrs. Jones and Laughlin, South Pittsburgh. It seems the engineer on duty was aroused several times by the watchman, and shortly after he got up and turned the water into the boilers. The boiler over furnace No. 4 instantly exploded with terrible force, the report being heard for miles around, arousing the most intense excitement. The boiler was torn into fragments, the largest piece crashing through the warehouse and a railway car standing near the building, and fell on the bank of the river, nearly 120 feet distant. Fortunately no one was injured, as the explosion occurred before the men began work.

Defalcation in an Albany Bank.

ALBANY, Aug. 25.—A defalcation has been discovered in the National Albany Exchange Bank amounting to $10,840, perpetrated by the teller and his assistant, who have made full acknowledgment of their guilt. The officials of the Exchange Bank were very uncommunicative about the affair until the street was full of rumors concerning it. They then told all about it, desiring to have the facts known. The names of the teller and his assistant, who are the guilty parties, are C. P. Grout and W. H. Paddock. They both had been connected with the bank for many years, especially Grout, and had the fullest confidence of the directors. Grout says not one cent of the money has been used for his personal interest, but has been lent to parties in whom he had confidence and who he believed would return it. He has said that the whole amount, $10,840, will be placed in the hands of the bank; but whether it is or not, the bank officials are of the opinion that his bondsmen will make good a portion of the deficiency. At all events, the bank's surplus, which is $140,000, will much more than cover the loss. There are many rumors as to where the money is gone, chiefly to the effect that Grout and Paddock have been engaged in stock gambling; but the statement of Grout to the effect he has loaned the money presents a contrary theory.
