

The Jeffersonian.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1874.

Mr. L. Raymond, Editor of the "Portland Enterprise," published at Portland, Northampton county, steped into the Dec. 3-4t.] Jeffersonian office, on Tuesday and expressed hims if very much pleased with Stroudsburg and its surroundings.

And there was joy and gladness in the Democrat office on Thursday morning last, over the appearance of the Jeff. And Mitt. and our distinguished neighbor over the way, a grand affair, and it needed but a proper report of its attendant doings and sayings to add to the honor and glory of those who participated in it. Our distinguished neighbor was equal to the occasion intellectually-and so were Mitt. and the Congressman and the Doctor equal to the occasion, but they are all modest men, as they are honorable, and their modesty forbade their going into more than a mere outline account of it-a mere dealing in the generalities without going into the particulars. They were the chief actors on the occasion, and it would look too much like "piling it on," if in their description they stuck to the text and told what the manager in our distinguished neighbor, the ring master in our distinguished Congressman, and the grimaldi, in our distinguished Doctor, and Mitt. had done. And only this they must have told, for no body else took part, if we lay aside the labors of the howers of wood and drawers of water, who did nothing more than cut the pole, dig the hole and elevate the power of Democracys hickory emblem towards Heaven; and the labors of that other class who feed the fires of the patriotic pyre by piling on the liquid fuel, and gave Democratic zest to the occasion by dose of democratic poison, administered on in lulging those laughable little contratemps your own side of the street, not very far from which always result in innocent knock-downs your own sanctum that cauled him to "peg and high-toned rowdyism. The muscular out." labors were nothing. It was the intellectual, oratorical labors that were exhausting and sacrificing, and these were undergone only by the very men who alone were expected t play the praises of the affair on Democracys organ-the Democrat. It was a dilemua in which they were placed, and but for the op portune forethought of the Jeff. in providing a way out they would have lain swamped in to our request for news items from all over men for a month and see. The order fixing the dilemma to this day. But the Jeff. always the county. Perhaps this is because of backequal to the occasion, was on hand to meet wardness in coming forward. Don't be afraid humanity, and there should be a means At Spitzbergen the longest day lasts for the emergency this time. We make no boast friends, but send in your items promptly and devised to prevent its being enforced. Corover what we did, as it is common with us we shall be thankful. to do things about right, but it does rejoice us so much to think that we so thoroughly relieved our distinguished friends from the draw from them their heartfelt thanks and eachinations over a thing so well done-so graphic in description, so truthful in particulars and so justly right in every respect. Not seeing us present "mutual friends" were fearful of neglect on our part, but they need entertain no such fears on any occasion, for we always have a little bird hovering around their heads who never fails to bring us details in full of all Democracy under our especial care, and, we has been wreathed in smiles ever since the

The New York Times says that the opinion is rendered a verdict of murder in the first delargely held in legal circles that the motion for discharge will be successful upon technical grounds. Even if this should prove true, the victory of the people over a great political robber will not be lessened. for it consisted chiefly in the fact that TWEED, who controlled courts of law as well as the myriad courts of politicians was by one of the former convicted, and, being convicted, made infamous by being on the 14th ult., and were brought here this act as a refreshing to the christmas present, branded and punished as a felon.
