

The Jeffersonian.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1875.

CITY drummers are raiding. THE coal trade is very good. THE genuine ground hog-sausages. TURKEYS are abundant and very high. THE lime business is brisk at Bossardsville. It would like to be winter if it knew how. STRIPED kid-gloves are becoming fashionable. No report from the hog committee this week. PAY people promptly—particularly the printer. NEXT year is leap year—young ladies take notice. DURING the last week, rain and blow and snow and mud and freeze. TREASURER MARSH takes charge of the 'spens' on Monday, January 3d. SHOOTING and raffle matches are numerous in different parts of the county. THE HON. S. S. DREHER presides over the Courts at Homestead, this week. OUR country friends should not forget that we are always thankful for news items. JUDGE DECKER will make his first appearance on the Bench Monday, January 3d.

Monroe was organized April 1, 1836, out of a part of Northampton and Pike. Pike was organized March 26, 1814, from a part of Wayne, and Wayne was organized March 21, 1796, out of Northampton—the latter county being the mother of the old Tenth Legion.

Over Coats! Over Coats!

Simon Fried will receive a new and elegant assortment of Over Coats this week. Call and see them. FESTIVAL.—The members and friends of the Cherry Valley M. E. Church will hold a festival on Friday evening, 24th instant, (Christmas Eve) in the basement of their church, where they will have a grand supper, composed of the best the season affords. Proceeds to be used for the benefit of the church. Don't fail to attend. All are cordially invited to attend. NECK-TIES, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, Collars, Cuffs, and everything else belonging to the Gents' furnishing goods line, you will find a large assortment at Simon Fried's.

A DONATION VISIT.—A Donation visit will be made at the Reformed Parsonage in Scotia, (Pennersville), for the benefit of the Rev. H. Daniel, who lately met with a serious accident. Said donation to take place on Wednesday, the 29th, of December, afternoon and evening. All without respect of person are cordially invited to attend. THE MONROE COUNTY TEACHERS INSTITUTE will convene in the Court House, at Stroudsburg, on Monday December 20, 1875, at 10 o'clock P. M., and continue in session until Friday noon. All the Teachers of our common schools are expected to attend, and we extend a cordial invitation to all Teachers of private schools and friends of education to participate in the exercises of the Institute. The programme has been arranged with especial reference to the necessities of the school room. B. F. MOREY, Co. Supt. Dec. 2, 1875.—3L.

THE largest and best assortment of Mens' and Boys' Clothing in Stroudsburg you will find at Simon Fried's. THE MISSES CARROW's select school which opened on the 6th of September, ult., has from the beginning proved a success and continues in a flourishing condition. The ladies are both most painstaking with their pupils, and the result is marked progress in all the classes, and perfect satisfaction to parents and guardians. From the many good words we have heard in connection with the school, and the continual additions being made to its number of pupils, the fact is clearly demonstrated that a first class school employing first class talent, will be appreciated and sustained here. Visit the school, reader. SAM. TRIMMER, Prothonotary of Luzerne county, a life long Democrat of sterling virtue in the party's estimation, and who attempted to improve upon the people's effort to elect honest men to office by tampering with the returns after they were received in his care, was tried for the offense last week and escaped conviction by the skin of his teeth. The jury failed to agree, standing when discharged, ten for conviction to two for acquittal. This is morally a conviction for a bold faced violation of his oath of office on the part of the vicious Sam, and furnishes encouraging assurance that another trial will secure to him his just deserts—a sojourn of some length at Cherry Hill. UNDER CLOTHING of all varieties at Simon Fried's.

Taken from the farm of Col. E. E. Norton, on Monday afternoon, Dec. 13th, a small black and tan dog, with long ears, short nose, large eyes and long silky hair on the ears, body and tail, and long tan colored hair on the legs; answers to the name of Pet. Any person returning said dog, or giving information that will lead to his recovery will be liberally rewarded. FRED. A. NORTON. Dec. 16, 1875.—29.

Y. M. C. A.—The regular monthly meeting of The Young Men's Christian Association will be held in their rooms over Stephen Holmes Office on Friday evening, Dec. 17th, at 7 1/2 o'clock. The literary exercises will commence at 8 o'clock, and will consist of an address by Rev. John Kohler: an Essay, by Mr. Thomas A. Bell. The exercises will be enlivened by vocal and instrumental music by amateurs. A cordial invitation is extended to all. COMMITTEE. GRAND CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT.—The Sunday School of the Jackson M. E. Church, will have an entertainment on Christmas afternoon and evening. Great pains are taken to decorate the church with inscriptions appropriate to the occasion. The exercises of the afternoon and evening will be interspersed with speaking and both vocal and instrumental music. Admission free. All are cordially invited to attend. J. W. HOBBS, Managers. J. B. HOUSER.

BETTER begin to lay up extra change. You know, that on Thursday and Friday, December 23d and 24th, the ladies of the Presbyterian church design holding a fair and festival for the benefit of the Sabbath school. Fancy articles beautiful, useful and ornamental and choice refreshments in shape of ice cream, oysters in various styles gotten up and dispensed by heavens best gift to man, lovely women, will be the order of the day. The festival will be held in the basement of the church, and the place to secure choice holiday presents will be right there. Tickets of admission, for children 15 cents, adults 25 cents, may be had at the door. Besides admission the ticket will purchase its face value at the several tables.

OUR neighbor Brown, we mean Daniel R., of course, stirred up the younger portion of our town and not a few of the older ones, on Saturday evening, by a most brilliant display of the result of Santa Claus's labors for the Holidays. His show window was lit up by one hundred and twelve gas jets, the whole culminating in the word T-O-Y-S, presenting a scene which eclipsed the splendor of the noontday's sun and was comparable only in vividity to some of the marvelous grottos depicted in the "Arabian Nights' Entertainments." But Dan, always did know how to do it. His enterprise will be satisfied with only the most recherche toys, and he always succeeds in displaying them to the best advantage. While looking at the out side don't forget to call in and see what is there. TRUNKS AND VALISES of all kinds at Simon Fried's.

A VERY serious accident occurred at Stemplersville on Monday evening of last week. Miss Sarah Bonser, a servant of Nathan Stenler was in the act of making fire when she set the lamp on the window, and in so doing was entirely demolished, the oil ignited and so did her apparel, and in a minute she was enveloped in flames, and was not subdued until her entire clothing was burned from her. Dr. J. C. Kramer, of Millport, was immediately sent for, and administered all the aid possible, but she was past recovery, and lingered until Wednesday about 11 A. M. when death relieved her of her earthly sufferings. Another warning to us. Her remains were taken the same day to her parents who reside in Monroe county for interment.—Mauch Chunk Democrat.

SOME of the light fingered gentry, who have been, for some time, infesting our borough and neighborhood, burglarized the premises of Mr. J. H. Butts, in Stroud township, on Sunday evening, and made off with a new buffalo robe, comfortable, sheets, pillow slips, a carriage cover, a pair of buck skin gloves, a pruning knife, two fine bred roosters, and nearly all the padlocks and keys belonging to the buildings on the place. It is to be hoped that the thieves may be successfully tracked and captured. As our new jail, will soon be completed it might be well to inaugurate it by the reception of the villains who appear to entertain the belief that neighbor Butts's earnest labors have been expended exclusively for their benefit. This is the third or fourth raid from which he has suffered within a few months and it is fine the guilty ones were brought to a sense of the enormity of their crimes.

PERSONALS. It gives us great pleasure to be able to announce that Esquire Stroud is steadily convalescing. Mr. Robert Huston who had been confined to his house with illness for several days past, appeared on the street again on Tuesday. Judge Stokes, we regret to learn, does not show that improvement in his condition which indicates a speedy return to health, and which our citizens would rejoice to note. John P. Gearhart formerly a resident of this county, but who now has his home at White Mills, Wayne county, paid the first visit to friends hereabouts, last week, in eighteen years. He was warmly welcomed. We are pleased to be able to announce that Mr. Amos Shoemaker, is recovering from his recent terrible hurts. The day of his re-appearance on the streets will be hailed with pleasure by his many friends hereabouts. The Rev. Theophilus Heilig occupied the pulpit of the Lutheran church, on Sunday evening last, with great acceptance to the audience assembled. Mr. H. is a divine of more than ordinary eloquence and instructive capacity, and is always welcomed with pleasure in this former scene of his labors.

Improvements. Harrison Carmer has his new residence on Thomas street, under rapid progress. It will be ready for occupancy by spring. Mr. Charles P. Mick is just about completing a very substantial, neat and convenient residence on Sarah street. When once settled in it Charley can not fail to feel at home. Our friend Mr. Jacob Butts is just about finishing one of the latest, most convenient and substantial residences ever erected in this neighborhood. The material employed is of the best, the general arrangement perfect, and as an ornamental addition to "down town," it cannot well be excelled. In the general cutting up into rooms and halls it is apparent that comfort, convenience and ease of household management has been more of a consideration than show—though good taste, in every particular has been kept in view throughout. Our new Jail and Sheriff's residence on Franklin Square is also receiving its finishing touches and will be completed by, or soon after December Court. The whole is a model in the jail line, and is so erected as to safely secure prisoners and reflect credit upon the Commissioners and the county. It is something that we have long needed, and will prove a source of pride for years to come, even though, as we hope may prove to be the case, we may never have occasion to use it for any other purpose than as a residence for our Sheriff's.

A Valuable Idea. The following correspondence gives an assurance of a rich treat in store for our citizens in the very near future, and one which they should be prepared to highly appreciate. The Reverend Doctor is a gentleman, of more than average capacity and attainments. His experience in the world of letters, his knowledge of human nature, and his keen perception of the wants of his fellow men peculiarly fit him to fill the role of public instructor, and it is risking nothing of truth to say that those who attend these lectures, will be more than repaid for the time and attention given in listening to them. Every one therefore should determine if possible to make one of the audience to greet the Reverend lecturer. STRONDSBURG, Dec. 8, 1875. REV. DR. G. D. CARROW. Dear Sir: We, in common with many other citizens of Stroudsburg and vicinity, would be pleased to hear you deliver some of your popular and interesting lectures, during the coming winter. Should it suit your convenience to do so, we would respectfully request you to name the subjects on which you will lecture, the number you can give us, and the evenings that will suit you best. Respectfully yours, JACOB LANTZ, SAMUEL S. DREHER, T. DENNIS PARET, J. DENNIS MACKETZ, C. S. DETMERS, J. B. STORM. STRONDSBURG, Dec. 13, 1875. DR. JACOB LANTZ and others: Gentlemen,—Your favor of the 8th inst. is duly received. It will afford us great pleasure to comply with your request. I will deliver a course of five lectures, and will name the subjects and dates in our paper in the course of a few days. Very respectfully your ob't servant, G. D. CARROW.

$100,000 Fire at Milton, Pa. MILTON, Pa., December 13.—About 8 o'clock last evening a fire was discovered in the basement of the Riverside Hotel, which, in a short time, spread to Heag & Goodlander's block, Gauger's clothing store and hall, all of which were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The amount of insurance is unknown. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been a defective flue. J. W. Freeman, editor of the Pittston Comet, who was last week convicted of libel, J. Boyd Henri, prosecutor, was on Tuesday of last week sentenced to seven months imprisonment in the county jail, whether he was conveyed on Wednesday. Mr. Freeman has the sympathy of the public generally in his incarceration, however much they may condemn the course which has led to it. A couple of Reading police men observed a suspicious looking party burying what they supposed to be a box, and snuffling a case of infanticide, they proceeded to the spot next morning and disinterred the remains of a cat.

Our Town Industries. There is nothing that so strongly makes the progress of a town, as the progress of its industries. It affords us pleasure, therefore, occasionally, to take up one of these, examine its present condition and note its growth from the original small affair of the years ago, to its now full manhood—to the position of honorable exaltation which its fair, square progressive mode of dealing has secured. The establishment of J. H. McCarty & Sons is a case in point, and has more than once engaged our time and enlisted our pen in the delineation of its progress and success. It is not many years since J. H. McCarty, the senior of the firm made his advent among us. He came from Milford, which we looked upon as a place of antiquated notions, and thought nothing less than that the man who thus hailed from there was antiquated as the place from whence he came. But it did not take long to satisfy us that we were the antiquated ones—that we were furnishing our houses in the taste and fashions of years "lang syne"—that the enterprize of our furniture men did not lift us out of the era of cherry and the stiff, ungraceful O. G. of a hundred years ago—that decent parlor and bedroom suites were unknown among us, or, if here, brought not by the skill and enterprize of our own mechanics, but by innovation and importation from abroad, at an expense altogether beyond the pocket of any but the wealthy among us. McCarty changed all this—he proved a reformer indeed, and soon demonstrated that it needed a spirit such as he possessed to revolutionise the clumsy appearance of our household, by the introducing light and elegant furniture, which could not but have an elevating tendency on the taste of all, and that too at prices within the reach of all. But McCarty, on his advent, did not come up to the full measure of himself. He saw the situation and prepared to nurse it, as the husbandman nurses the ground of a worn, sterile farm on his first taking possession. His start was a giant stride beyond his surroundings, though a trifling affair for him, but he went on growing day by day until now his factory and ware-rooms, vie in size and contents with those of any other in the county, not even excepting those of the retail traders in the cities. What ever in his line can be had elsewhere McCarty is prepared to furnish on short order and at prices exceptionally low. In his career McCarty has had pretended rivals—but the fact that, while these have passed a way and are passing away, his career is onward and upward, show that they may have been imitators, but never could successfully claim the position of rivals. And the reason is obvious—McCarty always supervised the manufacture of his wares—never entertaining the idea that the cheap work of the city shops was the proper thing to foist on his customers in exchange for their money, or the proper material out of which to build up a permanent trade on which to found a permanent home in the place of his adoption. His present status confirms the correctness of his theory, and from his small beginning he has grown into the sole occupant of the basement, and first and second stories of the Old Fellows Hall, embracing hundreds upon hundreds of feet of surface, are filled with furniture choice in material, choice in finish, and choice in design, which is continually passing out to customers, only to be replaced by others to meet further demands. This is not fiction—workshops filled with skilled mechanics, and sales amounting to hundreds of dollars per day, even in these "dull times" attest that there is tangibility in McCarty's business, in strong contrast with the cry of other shops of the dulness of business and great scarcity of money. And the wonder of this state of things ceases when McCarty & Sons shop and ware-rooms are visited. In the one all is thrift and the busy hum of industry—the stalwart, cheering music of the saw, the plain and hammer. In the other the packing of furniture and the crisp, but soothing music of rattling greenbacks show that business is there and that "the wolf of grim want has no business at that door." Nor even in view of the cry of hard times, does this long remain a wonder when passing from room to room one sees the rich displays of ware, made of all the woods known to the cabinet business and arrayed in style to form a perfect kaleidroscope of the beautiful in art and design and finish. Columns might be filled with the descriptive, but every one should see for himself, and in the gentlemanly courtesy of the members of the firm, learn the finishing grand secret of success. In addition to the furniture business McCarty & Son's hold that of undertaking; and in this particular branch they stand without rivals anywhere. Starting with the idea that the burial of the dead should not be a matter of speculation but of duty merely, they have studied the business in all its parts, and in the quiet, perfect manner in which funerals are conducted by their death, for the living, is stripped of more than half its terrors. From the death bed to the grave all moves smoothly, without outward display, without jar, without confusion, and this because all their appliances are perfect, and their professional knowledge founded upon true science. It is this which makes them the popular undertakers—it is this which, under their management makes the paying of the last sad office to the dead a melancholy pleasure, instead of a horror as it too often is the case. The interest of the musical loving public are considered in this establishment, and a room devoted to pianos and organs will be met with. In this department, as in all other "first class" is the motto which governs. A number of families in town bear witness to the excellence of these instruments, and the fact of the sale of five in a single week show that in this as in all other efforts to please McCarty & Son's prove a success. Want of room prevents one enlarging further on this subject. We feel, however, that we have said enough to induce others to join us in the feeling of town pride which the possession of such an establishment irresistably forces upon us.
