Senator Henry P. Anthony, of R. I., has just been elected by the Legislature of that State to serve for another term of six years. Next spring he will complete a series of three terms, or eighteen years, in that position. He is already one of the oldest and wisest of all the Senate members.

Governor Hartranft has selected Chester S. Farr, Jr., an attorney-at-law of Reading, to be private secretary, to succeed Major A. Wilson Norris, who was recently appointed State Reporter. Mr. Farr, by virtue of his new office, becomes Recorder of the Board of Pardons, and all communications relative to pardons should hereafter be addressed to him.

The public debt statement for the past month makes a handsome exhibit. The reduction for the month in the public debt is more than four millions and a half, and since June 30, 1875, the debt has been diminished by more than twenty-five millions. Here is a legitimate campaign document which the assailants of the Republican party will find it difficult to answer.

A normal court martial, recently held at Washington, Lieutenant-Commander Joseph B. Coughlan was convicted first of embezzling an officer and a gentleman; second, of scandalous conduct, tending to the destruction of good morals. He was sentenced to be suspended from duty for a period of one year, and to be publicly reprimanded in the general order by the Court. The Secretary approved the findings of the court.

Among the arrangements proposed for the celebration of the Centennial Fourth at Honesdale, are: A gathering of the militia regiments of the county; reunion of veteran soldiers and sailors; a parade of the Masses, Odd Fellows and other organizations—ladies and gentlemen in conventional costume—fantasies—district reunions to be left to the choice of the several townships and boroughs; historical tableaux; bench game of base ball.

Marshal S. Smith, clerk in the Pennsylvania State Treasury Department, and John A. Wagoner, formerly a clerk in the Auditor-General's Office, were arrested on Wednesday at Harrisburg, on information filed against them by Governor Hartranft, charging to defraud the State of $5000, and to receive money from the city of Scranton. The arrest followed from the admissions of one Wagoner, the treasurer of Scranton, that he had agreed with these parties to make the return $5000 less than it should have been. The defendants were held in $4000 each.

The first "floating hotel," as a Philadelphia journal calls it, has arrived on the Delaware river in the vicinity of the Exhibition. The "floating hotel" consists of a steamer, whose living freight (men, women and children) purpose using the craft as a floating place during their stay in the city. They will visit the Exhibition and their meals on the grounds and thus be able to see much more in the same length of time than if they stopped at one of the hotels in the city proper. Quite a number of boats of different kinds devoted to the same purpose as the one mentioned are expected to visit the Quaker City during the continuance of the Exhibition.

Mr. R. W. Mackey has been interviewed. It was ascertained that he is another man, and that he is not surprised, there being a Pittsburgh reporter who attempted the feat he has not made an entire man of it. He procured from Mr. Mackey, however, two significant statements.—First, that the Hartranft movement was in the deepest earnest, and that Mackey was, instead of regarding the movement as a man of straw, mean business; next, that the second statement of a majority of the Pennsylvania delegation is not Blaine. This is contrary to the current motion, or rather to the current motion of Blaine's friends. But Mr. Mackey is to be well posted.

The most ridiculous hoax of the season is a story told by the New York Sun to the effect that General Grant was killed in Colorado in 1868, and that a man named Plover, who looked exactly like him, has since that time personated the General and in his name been President of the United States. The story is told with all possible deliberation and great particularity of detail.

A huge snake story comes from Milford, Pike county, Pa. A few days ago a large den of rattlesnakes was discovered by a party of quarrymen near that village, which they mercilessly attacked, and when the contest, which lasted a half hour, had ended three hundred dead snakes were counted as the result of their heroism. Not entirely satisfied with their victory the quarrymen intended shortly to make another attack and hope by the time they get through to clear out the den to the last snake. If there has been a greater waking up of snakes this season than this it has not been published, though it must be admitted the summer is hardly sufficiently advanced for good snake stories yet.

Poor Children.

There are 17,791 children in the several orphan asylums and reformatories of the State of N. Y. Of these 9,404 are boys, and 8,387 girls; 3,889 were orphans, and 7,610 had parents; 3,182 had both parents living, and of 3,110 it could not be ascertained whether they had parents living or not. The number of children whose parents were natives of the United States was 3,337; the number whose parents were natives of other countries was 10,925. The nativity of the presents of 4,369 could not be ascertained.

The Rafts That Have Passed Down the Delaware.

The Honesdale Citizen says the following is a correct report of the number of rafts that passed the Delaware dam at Lackawaxen this year, up to May 20th:

Sawed hemlock lumber,	628
Hemlock logs,	596
Hemlock toggle timber,	62
Hemlock wharf timber,	38
Sap or pitch pine piling,	38
White ash logs,	16
Basswood logs,	14
White pine logs,	8
Total,	1,400

It is estimated that these rafts contained an average of 50,000 feet of lumber each, making a total of 70,000,000 feet, board measure.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY!

A Whole Family Poisoned.

EASTON, June 1.—Nine members of the family of Martin Laros, residing at Sandt's Eddy, a point on the Delaware river five miles above Easton, were poisoned last evening by coffee which contained some mineral substance. Mrs. Laros is dead and several of the others are considered in a critical condition. The presence of poison in the coffee is not accounted for.

EASTON, P., June 3.—Moses Schug, another member of the family recently poisoned, has died since yesterday, making the third death. The coroner's inquest, which is still in session, elicits the fact that arsenic was the poison used, and that there was enough poison in the coffee drunk by the unfortunate family to have killed one hundred people. The money was stolen from the house, while a large amount of government bonds and other securities were left untouched. The fact that Jacob Young was murdered and robbed near the same place only a few weeks ago creates a still greater feeling of uneasiness among the people living in that neighborhood. A large crowd is gathered to-day in the vicinity of the Laros homestead. This evening the coroner's jury returned a verdict that Martin J. Laros, Mary Ann Laros and Moses Schug died from poison administered by Allen C. Laros. The person so accused is a school teacher and a son of Martin and Mary Ann Laros, both of whom are among the victims. Since his arrest he has confessed that he administered the poison to his father and mother and Mr. Schug, and that his sole object was to obtain possession of their money.

EASTON, June 5.—Alvin Laros, son of Martin and Mary Laros, who were buried yesterday, died last night from poison administered last Wednesday to the family by Abner C. Laros, the son and brother. This makes the fourth member of the household who has died. A post mortem was held on Moses Schug's remains yesterday, and the stomach was brought to this place, and Dr. McIntire, of Easton, will analyze the contents this week. Laros this morning confessed to a reporter of the Easton Express that he committed the deed for money to help him in the study of law. He said he was sorry after he saw his family so sick, and he took a couple of swallows of coffee to die with them. In conversation with a fellow-prisoner on Saturday night he asked the latter what he was in jail for, and when told for larceny he replied: "Oh, I am here for a larger crime; for poisoning a whole family." He said an evil moment came over him, and he did the deed. When told this morning that his brother Alvin was dead he exclaimed, "Oh, my God!" and burst into tears. He refuses to eat anything, and his comrade in the cell, towards Sunday morning, awoke and found him twisting his bed sheet into a rope, probably with the design of committing suicide. The design of committing suicide. The tragedy, arrest and confession have caused the greatest excitement throughout the county. The funeral of Laros and wife yesterday was attended by thousands of people from all directions.

The Mt. Pleasant correspondent of the Honesdale Citizen says: Mrs. Leonard of Herriek, called upon Dr. Malthy a few days since to be treated for diphtheria in her fingers. Her children had it, and while attending upon them had a slight wound upon her finger, which coming in contact with the canker in the throat, the disease was communicated to it. She had a bad finger which has caused her much suffering. The case is worth reporting, as showing the need of caution in persons similarly situated.

Crop prospects in the West are highly encouraging, and the papers of that section predict a heavy yield at harvest time. Winter wheat is unusually promising. It has not been injured by frost, nor the roots thrown out of the ground by alternate freezing and thawing, one of the prominent causes of bad crops in the West. It is too early to judge as to the yield of spring wheat, of which an unusual breadth has been planted in the northwestern tier of States; but if no ill-luck falls upon this crop it will yield a heavy per cent. to the returns of the present season. In this State the wheat fields look well and the planting is in advance of last year. Corn planting has been prosecuted under favorable circumstances in most of the States and the acreage devoted to this crop is large. The prospects of the cotton crop are satisfactory, especially in the Gulf States. The only drawback is a fear of inundations in the river bottoms. On the uplands the chances of a full yield are excellent. The area of cotton planted is below the average of the past five years, and this will operate to the advantage of the planters, as it will prevent the market from being overstocked. More corn is put in the ground in the South this year than for a long time past. Fruits, vegetables and hay in the Eastern and Middle States will repay those whose industry runs in these channels. The small fruits and vegetables command good prices, and the genial showers and hot suns push on the grass with sure and steady progress. On a review of the whole agricultural field at this time there is much to cheer and encourage the tillers of the earth and make them look into the future with hope and not despondency.

Wool Bearing Trees.

Over at Louisville, Chester county, the good people thereof and vicinity are considerably agitated over what seems to be a strange and unprecedented proceeding on the part of two silver maple trees that stand in front of the hotel premises. During the past week or more these trees have incessantly been casting off a strange, white, fibrous substance, which for being investigated, is described as being quite similar to wool, the only marked difference being its shortness. The ground under and around these trees is covered with the substance, which at a little distance resembles snow. The trees are full grown, and are comparatively old ones, and the strange part of their proceedings is that this the first time they ever departed from the ways peculiar to a full-bred and well-behaved maple tree. A little distance from the hotel there are several other trees of the same kind, but unlike the first mentioned, they are not in the wool business. The substance grows on the ends of the twigs, in sort of blossom style, and as soon as matured it becomes loosened, and then obeys the whim of every little wind that strays that way, and thus the ground becomes covered, as above described. The "oldest inhabitant" says he never saw the like before, and strangers passing by stop and take with them some of the woolly production which they gather off the ground.—West Chester Local News.

Workmen's Cases.

The following is the text of an act which has passed both Houses, and been signed by the Governor:

In all cases in which judgment shall have been rendered by any justice of the peace or alderman in this Commonwealth for wages of manual labor, that before the defendant be entitled to an appeal from the judgment of the justice or alderman, he or his agent or attorney shall make oath or affirmation that the appeal is not intended for the purpose of delay, but that he believes that justice has been done him, which affidavit shall be attached to and sent up with the transcript on appeal. And the said defendant shall be required to give good and sufficient bail for the payment of the debt and costs, to be paid when finally adjudged to be due the plaintiff by the court in all cases for labor. No voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors shall operate to hinder, delay or prevent for a longer period than thirty days from the time of such assignment the collection or enforcement of any of the claims for wages of labor secured and protected by the act for the better protection of the wages of mechanics, miners, laborers and others, approved the 9th day of April, 1872, or its supplements; and claimants may, after the expiration of thirty days from date of such assignment, enforce the collection of their claims in the same manner and by means of the same remedies that they might have done had no such assignment been made.

In all cases of voluntary assignments heretofore made and now remaining unsettled, and in which the assignees have more than five months within which to settle his or their account or accounts, any or all of the claimants protected by the provisions of the aforesaid act or supplements, may immediately after the passage of this act, proceed to collect such claims just as though no such assignment had been made, and in case such assigned property has already been sold, and the assignee or assignees refuse to pay such claimants the amount legally due them, they shall have the right to compel him or them to file his or their account, and may proceed to have said claims paid by a distribution through an auditor or auditors according to law; provided, however, that the owner or owners of such assigned property, or the assignee or assignees, or any interested party, may pay to such claimants the amount of the claims so protected by said act or its supplements, and be subrogated to the rights of the claimants to the extent of such payments.

Special Notice.

Let's all be honest and confess that the cash system in business is best and safest. If everybody adhered to it, dull times would soon flee away, and the wail of widows and orphans, and the deep curses of defrauded creditors, would give place to singing. For no bad debts, no smash-ups, no protested notes, ever came of cash payment for goods delivered. We honor Oak Hall, the great Philadelphia Clothing House, for their decided stand on this principle. Of course they are able to sell cheaper, because they buy cheaper. Those who have the cash to spend for clothing cannot possibly get more for it than at Wanamaker & Brown's Sixth and Market Streets, Philadelphia.
