THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1876.

The Ticket.

The Republican Convention might have labored for years and hardly have secured a ticket equal to that nominated at Cincinnati on Friday last.

The Hon. Wm. A. Wheeler, of New York, has a record equally brilliant in the service of the country.

With such candidates for President and Vice President, Republicans can well enter the canvass under the encouraging assurance that victory is bound to perch upon their banners.

The Fourth.

While Republicans almost everywhere are heartily gratified over the result at Cincinnati, the effect among the Democrats is one of annoyance, if not of dismay.

"Do you use steam-power?" "A giant young engine furnishes power for the freight and passenger elevators, and the boilers steam for heating, and the other operations of the house."

"What order do you take with goods?" "They are first special and arranged in the basement, on long low counters, and taken thence on the freight elevator to the inspector's room on the first floor."

"Is inspecting the first operation?" "No, sir, measuring. The goods are first measured in the piece, then inspected. The cloth passes over rollers in the face of a strong light, and two men sit, one before and one behind the goods, watching with the eye of a hawk for the least pin-hole imperfection, and marking every flaw, so that the cutter may see and avoid it when he comes to cut the garments."

"You must employ an army of cutters?" "Come to our side first and see! We keep 20 hands all the time cutting up the cloth into garments—besides 60 machines that do a dozen men's work each with a stroke."

"Do you manufacture all your own goods?" "We do, and most carefully. Our examiners inspect every stitch and seam, and certify to every garment as extra-well made before we put our ticket on it, and become responsible for it."

"Your system must save you a great deal?" "In every direction, sir. It is the system and economy we practice all the way through, that enables us to put our price down to the people as we do."

"After inspecting the work, what becomes of it?" "Before it goes into Stock it is ticketed. Every single garment has its number and other points noted on it, so that its entire history can be traced with the eye of a hawk, from the loom to the customer's door."

"Why, sir, on busy days you may see 100 in the various rooms and suites of rooms, selling to the throngs of customers?" "Do you do an order here, by mail and express?" "Very great. All over the country. Our November 4, 1875.
