

Notes of the Campaign.

The Hartford Courant speaks of the Democratic ticket as "hitched," not united. The leading German newspaper of Ohio, the Cincinnati Volksblatt, edited by Fred Hassaerck, has come out squarely for Hayes and Wheeler.

An Oregon paper put a cut of a big turkey over its election returns, and said: "Not he that crows, but he that gobbles makes most out of elections." The Dayton (Ohio) Journal says that Hon. George W. Houk, Democratic delegate to the St. Louis Convention, openly repudiates the Tilden ticket.

The Millford (Del.) News believes that with a strong candidate for Congress in the field the Republicans can carry the State for Hayes and Wheeler.

Tilden and Hendricks together, the Hartford Courant truthfully says, make a ticket that no sincere man of either creed (hard money or greenback) can accept.

The Albany Journal says that Gov. Hayes has already laid out three Democratic aspirants for the Presidency—Thurman, Pendleton and Allen—and its Tilden's turn now.

The Richmond (Va.) Whig expresses the opinion that "Hayes is entirely too good and liberal a man for his intolerant, selfish and corrupt party." Well, he is to be President of the country.

The Alexandria (Va.) Sentinel, which has always heretofore acted with the Conservatives (as the Democrats affect to call themselves) in that State, runs up the flag of Hayes and Wheeler, and advocates their election.

The Burlington (Iowa) Gazette hoped for the election of two or three Democratic Congressmen from Iowa, but now despairingly says:—"The nomination of Tilden will defeat us in every Congressional district of the State."

Says the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner:—"There are Democrats in Nashville, we regret to say, who openly announce that they will vote for Hayes in preference to Tilden, and leave nothing undone to secure the defeat of the latter."

The Ross county (Ohio) Register remarks:—"The nomination of Tilden fell like a sharp frost late in the season on the hopes of honest county Democrats, and blackened the buds of promise which were blooming in their bosoms."

Hon. John D. DeWees, of Indiana, who was a leading supporter of Greeley in 1872, has written a strong letter in favor of Hayes and Wheeler. He thinks Hayes just the right man for President, and that Wheeler is his equal in character and ability.

The impression made by Governor Hayes upon the Philadelphians was very favorable. He held several immense receptions at the Ohio building, on the Centennial grounds, and as a "lion" far excelled Don Pedro. The conviction grows that he is a safe and sure man for the Presidency.

The Steubenville (O.) Gazette, unwilling to stultify its record, declares unequivocally that it will do nothing whatever to further Tilden's election. It does not consider any man a Democrat who used his money and influence to defeat Governor Allen last year, as it charges Mr. Tilden with having done.

The New York Tribune says:—"The Democratic journals of the East have undertaken the stupendous task of making out Governor Hendricks a hard money man. The great American Fence Sitter has been pretty successful in dodging most public questions, but he has just put himself on record as an inflationist, and the record can't be talked down."

The Indianapolis Journal says that Gov. Hendrick's position toward the nomination for Vice-President is just this:—"He will accept if the specie resumption act is repealed, and having been assured that it will be by the Democratic House, a letter may be looked for from him before long. But it is stated, further, that if the act is not so repealed within two weeks or thereabouts, he will decline."

Here is what the venerable Thurlow Wood says of Tilden:—"He did not go to the front in the hour of the country's peril. His voice was not heard in the time of danger, and when money was needed for the windows and orphans, Mr. Tilden's purse was not open. No vote of mine shall ever aid to elect a President who was not in sympathy, and publicly known to be a war man, loyal to the core, ready with his voice, his influence, and his means to help his country and uphold her flag. Mr. Tilden was not one of these."

The Albany Journal says that Hon. L. C. Killam, of Madison county, who has just made an extensive tour through the West on his return from Colorado, where he spent the winter, reports that he has found great and unbounded enthusiasm for Hayes and Wheeler. In Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio, he says, the Republican camp-fires are already burning with the old-time intensity. Chicago and Cleveland are especially earnest and enthusiastic in the praise of Hayes. The ticket and platform are commended by the Republicans and Independents in all the States through which he passed.

The surplus revenue of the United States for the year ending July 1st was $29,249,381. The expenditures were $16,000,000 below those of 1873. This is outside of the reductions in the interest account, which are very considerable. With such a balance on the right side after paying running expenses it is nonsense and folly to allege that the nation is trembling on the verge of bankruptcy.

There is yet outstanding of the first issues of fractional currency, prior to 1869, the sum of $10,479,076. Of this large sum it is estimated that ten millions will never be presented for redemption, having been lost or destroyed in the hands of the holders. Hardly any of it has appeared to be exchanged for silver coin. A large percentage of that issued since 1869 has probably gone the same way. The total amount of fractional currency put out since 1861 is about $349,000,000, but not more than one-tenth of it has been in circulation at any one time.

GREAT INDIAN BATTLE

SANGUINARY FIGHTING IN THE WEST THE GROUND PILED WITH BODIES General Custer Among the Dead Over Three Hundred Killed

HISTORY OF THE DISASTER

SALT LAKE, July 6.—The special correspondent of the Helena (Montana) "Herald" writes from Stillwater, Montana, July 2:—"Muggins Taylor, a scout for General Gibbon, got here last night direct from Little Horn river.

General Custer found the Indian camp and two thousand lodges on the Little Horn, and immediately attacked the camp. Custer took five companies and charged the thickest portion of the camp. Nothing is known of this detachment only as they trace it by the dead. Major Reno commanded the other seven companies, and attacked the lower portion of the camp.

A TERRIBLE MASSACRE. The Indians poured in a murderous fire from all directions, besides the greater portion fought on horseback. Custer, his two brothers, nephews, and brother-in-law were all killed, and not one of the detachment escaped.

Two hundred and seven men were buried in one place. The killed are estimated at 200, while only 31 are reported as wounded. The Indians surrounded Reno's command and held them one day in the hills, cut off from water, until Gibbon's command came in sight. They broke camp and left in the night.

The Seventh Cavalry FOUGHT LIKE TIGERS and were overcome by mere brute force. The Indian loss cannot be estimated as they bore off and cache'd most of their killed. The remnant of the Seventh Cavalry and Gibbon's command are returning to the mouth of the Little Horn, where a steamboat lies.

The Indians got all the arms of the killed soldiers. There were seventeen commissioned officers killed. The exact loss is not known, as both adjutants and the sergeant major were killed.

The Indian camp was from three to four miles long, and was twenty miles up the Little Horn from its mouth.

The Indians actually pulled the men off their horses in some instances. This is given as Taylor told it. The above is confirmed by other letters, which say that Custer met a fearful disaster.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT. SALT LAKE, July 5.—The "Times" despatch from Boseman, Montana, July 3, seven P. M., says Mr. Taylor, bearer of despatches from Little Horn to Port Ellis, arrived this evening and reports the following:—"The battle was fought on the 25th, thirty or forty miles below the Little Horn. Custer attacked the Indian village of from 2500 to 4000 warriors on one side, and Colonel Reno was to attack on the other. Three companies were placed on a hill as a reserve.

OVER THREE HUNDRED MEN KILLED. General Custer and fifteen officers and every man belonging to the five companies were killed. Reno retreated under the protection of the reserves. The whole number killed was 315. General Gibbon joined Reno.

The Indians left the battle ground, which looked like A SLAUGHTER PEN, As it really was, being in a narrow ravine. The dead were much mutilated. The situation now looks serious.

General Terry arrived at Gibbon's camp on a steamboat and crossed the command over, and accompanied it, to join Custer, who knew it was coming, before the fight occurred. Lieutenant Crittenden, son of General Crittenden, was among the killed.

[General George A. Custer was born at New Rumley, December 5, 1839, and educated at West Point. At the outbreak of the Rebellion he entered the cavalry service of the Potomac army, becoming aide-camp to McClellan. He was engaged in the battles of Yorktown, Antietam and Stoneman's raid. In 1863 he was made a brigadier general of volunteers, and held the right of the line at Gettysburg. At Falling Waters he routed the rebel rear guard, and at Winchester captured nine battle flags. At the close of the war his record was very brilliant, and at Waynesboro, in February, 1865, he captured the remnant of Early's army, about 18,000 strong. He was singularly fortunate in his career, never losing a gun or color, and making more captures than any other general not a commander. Towards the close of the war he was gazetted major-general of the United States Army, in recognition of his brilliant achievements.]

It is stated that the burning of brush after night is in violation of a statute of this State, and a penalty of fifty dollars is attached in case the law is disobeyed. This item of information may be of interest to some of our rural readers. We presume the idea is that there is danger of the flames spreading to fences or buildings, and also of burning the woods in the vicinity.

The Pennsylvania produced 36,347,615 of the 50,597,175 tons of coal mined in the United States last year.

Special Notice. "The safety of the people is the highest law," was an old lawyer's maxim. Messrs. Wannamaker & Brown, at their great Oak Hall Clothing House in Philadelphia, seems to have adopted the old maxim. There is absolutely no risk in buying of them. No mistake of a salesman, or inexperience of a customer can ever be taken advantage of. The firm gives to every buyer a guarantee, over their own signature, covering every possible point at which a purchaser can need protection. Such determination to take every obstacle out of the way of buying clothing is worthy of sincere applause. It need not any longer be a terror to suit yourself or your family with the best and cheapest clothing the country affords. [July 13-1m]

This time it is a pig story. The Lancaster Express says W. Shoemaker, of Fulton township, has a pig of the female persuasion that has brought into the world, during his brief existence of eight years, three hundred pigs, every one of which reached maturity.
