

Political Notes.

A New York burglar has come out for Tilden. He came out of the penitentiary, on a pardon from the great "reformer."

John Blum, an old and respected German citizen of Des Moines and Always a Democrat hitherto, writes a long letter to the Register, avowing his intention to vote for Hayes and Wheeler.

William McNally, a well-known Democrat of New York city and a member of the Tammany Hall committee, has sent in his resignation to the organization named and announced his purpose of opposing Tilden.

In the trying days of the war does anybody remember of having heard of either Tilden or Hendricks making a speech, or saying one word of cheer for the brave boys who were at the front fighting for the life of the Government?

Mr. Morton, of Indiana, rather puzzled the Democratic Senators last Tuesday by challenging them to "name one single good act of any kind that the Democratic party has performed in twenty-five years." None of them could recall such an act.

While all this middle of Belknap's impeachment is going on, don't forget that he never voted a Republican ticket in his life and never acted with the Republican party prior to his unfortunate appointment as Secretary of War. True to his Democratic instincts, as soon as he got in there he commenced stealing.—Indianapolis Journal.

The New York Herald states that Governor Tilden has just pardoned a notorious convict, named Mullen, who has already spent several years in the State prison, in addition to serving terms of imprisonment on Blackwell's Island, as also his wife, who was with him undergoing imprisonment for receiving stolen goods. Probably in the interest of "reform."

A dispatch from Albany states that Major P. H. Grady, a war Democrat and veteran, having been elected Captain of a Tilden club, just organized, has this evening declined the position in a letter to ex-Mayor Eli Perry, President of the club. He says:

"I always have been a Democrat, and have not been accustomed to holding regular nominations; but I have also been a Union soldier, and I many as well confess that I find it very difficult to work up any great degree of enthusiasm for a Presidential candidate who pronounced the war for the Union a disgrace, a failure, and who did all he could to discourage enlistments to the army in the field. As a war Democrat I claim the right to vote for a patriotic and honest Union soldier in preference to a man whose selfishness and partisanship have always been more conspicuous than his patriotism; and I claim further that I do not forget my rights as a member of the Democratic party by doing so."

Hendricks as Salary Grabber.

The following appears in the Indianapolis Journal: "Gov. Hendricks is a salary-grabber; that is to say, while in the United States Senate he voted to increase his own pay, the increase to date back from the beginning of the session. In 1866, the Miscellaneous Appropriation bill being under consideration in the Senate, Senator Middle of Delaware, moved the following amendment: "That the compensation of each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress shall be $5,000 per year, and mileage as now provided by law; and this provision shall be construed to operate from the beginning of the Thirty-ninth Congress."

The mileage was then forty cents per mile. Senator Henderson, of Missouri, offered an amendment providing for twenty cents a mile instead of forty cents. Senator Hendricks moved an amendment providing that those members living east of the Rocky Mountains receive ten cents per mile, and those west twenty cents. We quote: "Mr. Hendricks—I move to strike out 'twenty' and insert 'ten,' and also to add that members west of the Rocky Mountains shall have twenty cents per mile. I intend afterward to propose that the mileage shall take effect from the commencement of the next Congress."

Mr. Hendricks—And the salary, too? Mr. Hendricks—No, Sir. Thus we see that Mr. Hendricks wanted the increased salary to date back to the beginning of that Congress, but wanted the decreased mileage to take effect at the beginning of the next Congress. A few days later, Mr. Hendricks' amendment having been voted down, the Senate came to a vote on the original proposition, and upon that Mr. Hendricks voted in the affirmative—that is, he voted for the amendment giving Congressmen $5,000 per year instead of $3,000. Thus Mr. Hendricks stands on the record as having voted to increase his own pay and to give himself back pay. The record shows that under this act, passed in part by Mr. Hendricks vote, he drew in back pay $2,895 56."

Mr. Tilden as a Friend of the Working Man. It is scarcely in the nature of things that a man like Samuel J. Tilden can have any sympathy with the working man. He is mercenary and ambitious, and his life as a lawyer and politician has been given to piling up money and intriguing for personal aggrandizement. How the men who earned their bread by the sweat of their brow got along has given him no concern, as is shown by the following, taken from the Lancaster Economist:

When Samuel J. Tilden's Michigan Iron Company went into bankruptcy in 1875, it was owing its miners and laborers about $50,000. Just before the event, and after it was seen to be inevitable several of the honest stockholders would unite, to raise the full amount due to the laborers out of their private funds. It was an honest proposition from men who understood the rights and needs of the men on whose labor they had profited. All the stockholders, save one refused, and consequently the workmen did not get their pay, and have not received it. It would have cost that man about $1,300 to have paid his proportion of this honorable assessment. It was an honest debt but he was in New York and he knew the poor workmen could not sue for their rights, or they had no money. He had—it is said—about $7,000,000, and what did he care for the sufferings and privations of a few working men away up in the woods of Michigan, who needed every dollar they honestly earned? That man was Samuel J. Tilden, the Wall street candidate for the President of the United States, who now has the sublime impudence to claim to be the friend and benefactor of the laboring men of the nation.

A Wonderful Establishment.

One of the sights afforded by our city at the present time, which no one visiting the Centennial should fail to see, in Wamamaker's Mammoth Clothing Depot, Thirtieth and Market streets.

This is the largest establishment of its kind in the world, comprising, as it does, between two and three acres of a store room on one floor, and containing on its hundreds of retail counters a stock of Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, and Men's Furnishing Goods valued at over one million of dollars. Some idea of the extent of business done at this giant establishment may be gathered from the fact that nearly two thousand hands are constantly employed in the different departments—of these five hundred being always in the store engaged in the capacity of clerks, salesmen, cutters, sewers, etc., etc.

The business is all done on one floor, and is carried on in all its branches with the most perfect system. Everything works as smoothly as clockwork, for the simple reason that every employee in the manufacturing department has his specific work to perform, and a particular place to perform it in, while the clerks and salesmen are under strict discipline from the time they begin work in the morning until they leave their posts in the evening.

Visitors to this mammoth house are uniformly welcome, and are treated with uniform courtesy and attention, whether they purchase or not. The different stages in the manufacture of clothing, from the reception of the fabrics in the piece, direct from the mills, down to the folding of the ready-made garments for exhibition on the counter, may be seen here to the best advantage, while the wonderful team cutting-machines and other improved labor-saving appliances used in the tailoring business, are constantly in operation.

The proprietor, Mr. John Wamamaker, is also the senior member of the firm of Wamamaker & Brown, of the celebrated Oak Hall Clothing Store, Sixth and Market streets, and of the house of John Wamamaker & Co., 818 and 820 Chestnut street, this city. These two establishments employ over a thousand hands, and do an immense business.

Mr. Wamamaker began business in 1861 with Mr. Brown, under the new famous firm name of Wamamaker & Brown. The business relation continued until Mr. Brown's death in 1868, when the entire business passed into Mr. Wamamaker's hands, and has since been carried on under his personal supervision with a degree of enterprise and success that has not only made his name a synonym of American good-hediveness, but has enabled him to build up a princely private fortune.—Catholic Standard, Phila., July 29th, 1876.

Attacking a Camp Meeting.

POTTSVILLE, July 31.—A crowd of rowdies attempted to disturb the Evangelical Camp Meeting at Quakake Junction today, and were driven off the ground by some of the members. The roughs fired several shots, and were in turn shot at by Policeman Roediger, who wounded one of their number, named James Haggerty. Haggerty is not expected to recover.

Half Price for School Children.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—By the joint action of the executive committee of the United States Centennial board of finance organized schools when visiting the international exhibition in a body will be received for twenty-five cents each. Notice of the intended visit should be given department of admissions a day or two in advance so they can be admitted through special gates.

Alimony Suit Against Brigham Young.

SALT LAKE, 31.—This morning Judge Schaeffer rendered a decision in the case of Young vs. Young to recover alimony. The decision reduces the amount made payable by the order of Judge McLean from $500 to $100 per month, and gives defendant thirty days in which to pay the amount, and provides in default of such payment that execution shall issue against his property. The court also decided that the cost of the suit shall be paid by defendant.

As ex-Governor and Mrs. Seymour alighted from their carriage near Utica, N. Y., on Thursday afternoon, on returning from a ride, their house was struck by lightning. Mrs. Seymour had barely entered the door when the electric current struck the chimney, and after splitting it passed down the roof until it reached the door. It then turned inside the house, circling and flashing about the gilt moulding in the dining room, disfiguring it. No great damage was done to the house, but it was a narrow escape for the occupants.

The Sun's Doings.

Depue Roseberry, a farmer residing near Belvidere N. J., a short time since set a hen on nine turkey eggs. She performed her work well for two weeks, when it doubtless became too monotonous, and she left the nest to return no more. Her unusual conduct was severely censured by Mr. R., but his reproach didn't seem to affect the hen in the least. She maintained a stoical indifference, and headed not the appeals made to her to finish the job. The eggs were not disturbed, but were left in the nest to do their own hatching. And this they did in due course of time. Upon examining the nest the other day what was Mr. R.'s great surprise to find that five of the nine eggs had hatched out, and there were the five turkeys apparently as happy and contented as if the maternal hen had warmed them into existence. The sun had done the work assigned to the erratic hen, which goes to prove that hens ain't good for much after all, and can't be relied upon.—Warren Journal.

The storm of Sunday and Monday nights was very severe along the whole Jersey coast, from Long Branch down. The amount of rain that fell was enormous. No serious damage was done, except in the way of interrupting railroad travel. Washouts are reported at two or three places, and two or three places, and two deep crevasses were made in the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, near Farmingdale. In consequence of this the passage of the morning train from Long Branch was prevented.

Special Notice.

NOTWITHSTANDING the high standing to which ready made clothing has been brought under the fostering care of a house like WAMAMAKER & BROWN'S, Philadelphia, there are always a respectable number of people who prefer their garments made to order. For these patrons Oak Hall, a magnificently appointed custom Department is organized and in full blast. The best cutters in two hemispheres are employed to meet the demands of the nicest taste and most fastidious culture in the matter of personal dress. All the newest styles and choicest selections of home and foreign make are at the service of their customers. And at lowest prices.
