Republican National Nominations.

FOR PRESIDENT, RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, of Ohio.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, WILLIAM A. WHEELER, of New York.

The Democratic Congressional Conference of this District, met at the Court House, in this place, on Tuesday last, and on the 13th ballot nominated Hon. Frank Collins, as their candidate.

Just 17 days from to-day Hayes and Wheeler will be elected President and Vice President of these United States. Are the Republicans of Monroe county prepared to do a full days work for the county on that day? Have the townships been canvassed? Have the friends been strengthened in the faith? Have the doubtful voters been made sure, the dilatory one spurred up to the knowledge of their duty and the lukewarm made enthusiastic? Are arrangements made to take every Republican vote into account, and that frauds are rendered impossible at the polls. If these things are left undone, we should begin to do them at once. There is but little time left for work, and it should be improved without delay.

Idolatry.

The ought-to-reform Democracy have turned idolaters. Last Friday night they made a man of hay and worshipped it. Their faith reminds us of that of the poor old colored man who was about to shuffle off this mortal coil, and being very uncertain as to whose hands he was about to fall into, hoped to make a sure thing of it by praying both good God and good devil. But it is to be hoped that our democratic friends will hold still and not add any more to their long catalogue of political sins, for we intend on the 7th of the approaching month to give them the substance of that which their hay was only a type. Coming events cast their shadows before.

All in a Nut Shell.

The Democracy on last Friday night made a quality fuss, and what do you think it was about? Why only this. They were defeated in Ohio by an increased majority, and they by most desperate work succeeded in carrying Indiana by a greatly reduced majority. In Ohio they lost 5 Congressmen, and in Indiana they lost 4 Congressmen—and also the Legislature.

In 1874 the Democracy carried Indiana by 27,354 and this year only by 5,000. In 1872 the Democracy elected their Governor by 41% majority and in the Presidential contest, which came off in the November following, the Republicans carried the State by 22,725. If the same rules should prevail this Presidential year which did the last, the Democracy must prepare for a crushing defeat in that state on the 7th of November. If the Democratic party had been defeated in Indiana at this recent election, it would not have had strength enough to make even a respectable show, but its slight success in that state only respects the ought-to-reform Democracy's existence to the 7th of November, when it will, without hope of further delay, be early suspended for four years to come.

The Tildenistic Jollification.

Friday evening last was a gala time for the "Tildenists" in those parts. By the aid of the "bullet and the bludgeon" they had succeeded in making Georgia "solid" for Tilden, heads and tails of the old slavery element they succeeded in capturing West Virginia, by the "skin of their teeth" they merely held their own in Indiana, and got most gloriously whipped in Colorado and Ohio, but having been saved from being kicked out entirely to a quarter times out of five the Hon. Amundus Orevus thought it was proper to have a jubilee, and a jubilee they had.

According to orders the faithful on the evening named assembled in front of the Tilden headquarters on Main street, and at about eight o'clock the show was opened with a grand bonfire, which was kept up with considerable brilliancy, say for an hour, or until the fuel burned without the consent of the owners was exhausted. The small amount of fuel used some of the powder which was left over in the Confederacy after Appomattox, and a ghost or two of a "hurrah" such as was heard to come from the Democracy, on their retreat from Gettysburg after Meade suffered them to pass from under his rough handling furnished faint music for the occasion, and the whole proceeding proved about as sorry an affair as could well have been gotten up.

Charles B. Staples, Esq., was the orator of the occasion. Charles is smart, but in no way is he could fix it could he make the occasion come up to the orator. His talk could hardly be called a speech; it was one of those incoherences which orators sometimes indulge in for appearance sake, when though the flesh may be willing the spirit finds nothing to work upon. The speech of our friend Charles was about the extent of the official performances, though all contemplated by the programme had been accomplished.

Among the things to be done, and which, in the Hon. Amundus Orevus, promised a unusual amount of sport in was the burning of a hay-man labeled Gen. Hayes. The General had, in West Virginia and at other points South during the "late unpleasantness," worked some affliction upon the Democratic brethren South, and as he promised to serve them so again on the 7th of next month, the Sittling Bull of the tribe north, "our distinguished friend over the way," thought it would be a good thing to show the Southern friends just how they would treat their carriageable general in reality, if they had it in their power—scalp him under the eye, and after the most approved Indian fashion, "cut the better sense of the better Democrats prevailed and the Hon. Amundus Orevus was thus shorn of nearly all his fun and fall half of his glory. The hay-man, however, was brought out and placed on a wheel barrow, when it was easy to be seen that the Hon. Amundus was worth, though the rest of the small boys of whom there was a large number present were tickled amazingly.

The presence of the effigy gave room for some rather amusing remarks. One gentleman hit the Hon. Amundus under the eye, by remarking that the getter up of the effigy ought to be sent to Danville; another thought that it was some defunct "grabber" looking for more "back pay"; another that it looked much more like Tilden than Hendricks. What more might have been said is not known, as just at this juncture, one boy tipped Mr. Hayman over, when the rest grabbed him up and ran away with him—daring off down town at the top of their speed. This was the last straw which broke the camels back, it was the shaving which caused the Hon. Amundus' ire to boil over. For a moment he gave way to amazement, but only for a moment. He gathered himself for a start; and such a start. He ran; and such a run. It was appreciated by every eye witness, but Webster is impotent in words suited for its description. American Deer was no where in comparison, and the efforts of all the rest of the ten mile an hour fellows are clear outside of comparison with this effort of the Hon. Amundus to recover his dearly cherished hay baby. In all history there is nothing like it, save possibly his own effort, in the years gone, when he started as herdsmen on a trial of speed with the heifer composing his herd, and was landed on his back ere he reached the green pastures where the gentle rill measured its gladness in song as it glided swiftly on its way towards old ocean. But this time the Hon. Amundus was successful. His plethoric le-mubs, urged by the arguments of his immense Congressional number of hands to grasp the loved babe from the custody of the youthful vandals, and soon it was safely stored within the classic precincts of the Tilden and Hendricks club room. This completed the jollification, and as with the Billy Button, the best and most ludicrous was held for the finale.

But, after all, what was all this fuss and fury about—this jollification, if you are so pleased to call it. Was it to show the joy of Democracy over the shame secured to the party over solid Georgia, made solid by the threats and other means of intimidation which deprived at least a hundred thousand voters of the privilege of voting? Or was it the rejoicing over West Virginia with its slavery element organized to prevent the spread of Republicanism in that State? Or was it over Ohio, where a majority appeared to encourage the North as well as the loyal men South with the assurance of a triumph of Hayes and Wheeler? Or was it over the result in Colorado, a state which celebrated its birth by the election of a Republican governor, a Republican congressman, a Republican legislature, three Republican electors and secured the election of two Republican United States Senators? Or was it over Indiana where though Democracy elected its State ticket it lost 13,000 of its majority of 1874, lost a majority of the congressional delegation, lost both branches, and, as the electors are elected on the district system, lost every probability of securing those electors for Tilden and Hendricks. This is the extent of Democracy's successes and wishes or defeats in October, and if it rejoices over trifles such as these confer upon it, we pity the follies of the party which thus manufacture food for rejoicing only to aggravate the poignancy of the overwhelming defeat which is sure to overtake it in November.

Personal.

Mr. J. E. M. Keller, returned home from Philadelphia, on Friday last.

Mrs. Theodore Pratt, of New York, is in town on a visit to her father, Mr. William Clements.

William F. Warnick and John Elliott, of this place, left for Philadelphia on Monday, to visit the Centennial.

Mr. Edward Cress and wife, of Belfast, Northampton co. Pa., spent a few days last week, in this place and vicinity, visiting friends.

Jos. Keller, at one time a resident of this borough, and now of Allentown, was here visiting his many friends the forepart of this week.

Mr. A. J. Retze, the obliging bar-tender of the "Burnett House," who was on a visit to the Centennial, returned and entered upon his duties on Friday last.

Mr. Robert E. Blair, of East Stroudsburg, who was seriously injured by a fall, an account of which we published last week, is getting along as well as can be expected.

Rev. J. S. J. McConnell, of Philadelphia, a former pastor of the M. E. Church, of this place, was in town on Monday and Tuesday last, and whilst here received the greetings of his many friends. The Rev. gentleman officiated at the Evans-Broadhead wedding.

Mr. Daniel Bonham, a former resident of Stroud township, this county, was in town on Friday and Saturday last, looking for former friends and acquaintances. Thirty-seven years ago he left this County for Wisconsin, and from thence to the Rocky Mountains, where he engaged in digging for gold, in which undertaking he was quite successful. He remained in the gold regions about four years, when he returned to Wisconsin and located in Trempealeau county, and engaged in farming.

A Birth-day Party.

On Monday evening the 16th inst., a very pleasant party were assembled at the large and elegant mansion of Mr. Geo. E. Stauffer, in East Stroudsburg, to celebrate the eighteenth birth-day of his fair and accomplished daughter, Miss Francis. No pains were spared to contribute to the happiness of the guests. They were invited to partake of a feast, the sight of which was most pleasing to the eye, and the taste of which could not fail to tickle the palate of the most fastidious epicurean. The heart was enlivened by excellent vocal and instrumental music, and all were most agreeably entertained, was clearly manifested from the joy that animated the eye, and wreathed the face in smiles. In the midst of the festivities, melodious sounds of music were heard from without and at the door appeared the gallant STROUBSBURG CORNETS, who in beautiful serenade "wood with soft melody" the smile of beauty and the love of harmony. To them the doors were opened wide, and M. A. De L. Van Horn, Esq., on behalf of the fair recipient of their favor expressed her thanks for the most agreeable manifestation of their respect and regard and extended to them the hospitality of the house. Quickly passed the merry hours away, and as time was about to chronicle another day the party dispersed with the wish that each anniversary of this day might be as happy.

FIRE.—The "Pocono Mountain House," located about one mile and a half above Tannersville, was destroyed by fire last Saturday night. The fire originated in the kitchen and is supposed to be the work of an incendiary as there was no one in the house at the time the fire occurred.

The fire was discovered by some of the neighbors before it had got under full headway and most of the furniture saved. The building was totally destroyed. The loss is nearly covered by insurance.

JOHN HENRY WILLIAMS, (colored) who was in attendance at Van Amburghs Menagerie, on Monday evening last, fell from one of the back seats, and in the fall received injuries about the neck and spine, which will, in all probability incapacitate him for some time.

Col. Fred. Conkling, of N. Y., addressed the ought-to-reform Democracy in the Court House last Tuesday evening. The Col. has been a sort of political experimenter. He has been a Whig, Republican, Liberal and now he is trying to help the Democracy to reform. It is to be hoped that he and they will succeed in thoroughly reforming themselves. The Col. by blood is very nearly related to U. S. Senator Conkling—in fact, a brother—but in point of capacity very far off. In the commencement of his speech we had hope that he would treat the political issues fairly and honestly. But in this hope we were sadly disappointed. There was too much display for truth, too much fancy for fact. His oratorical appeal to the flag of our country was very well done. He announced that he came here to open the eyes of the Greely Liberals. In this he succeeded finely, for he had not proceeded far before his bald and groundless assertions caused their eyes to open wide with astonishment at his assurance in attempting to retail such unwarranted and unsupported assertions.

Such as, for instance, if Gov. Hayes' income report could be got hold of he had no doubt that it would send him to the Ohio Penitentiary. What an unwarranted slander, Hayes' private and political life is as pure as the air he breathes. He declared that Tilden was a pure and noble patriot as the sun ever shone upon. That anything detrimental to his loyalty was a base slander. In 1860, Oct. 12th, Mr. Tilden wrote a letter to the Hon. Wm. Kent of N. Y., in which he gave utterance to the following disloyal and secession doctrine—He said: "They the masters of political science recognized no right of constitutional secession; but they left revolution organized when it should be demanded by the public opinion of a State; left with power to snap the tie of confederation as a nation might break a treaty, and repel coercion as a nation might repel invasion." Jeff Davis himself never uttered more strong secession doctrine than the above. The Col. did not attempt to defend Mr. Tilden's Internal Revenue return, except by his above unadmitted fling at Mr. Hayes; and by stating that Tilden was contributing to the support of 12 or 15 of his poor relations. This brave Col. had the boldness to assert that Tilden burst upon the Tweed ring. When it is notorious that he did not touch it until the uprising against Tweed and his gang had been in progress for six months, and when it was clear that Tweed's time for plunder and leadership of the Democratic party was at an end, and then to cover or hide his complicity with Tweed he ungenerously fell in and helped the Republicans and Charles O'Connor knife him to his political grave and eternal infamy.

The Col. said that the Tweed ring was composed of equal numbers of Democrats and Republicans; and the only proof he offered to establish it as a fact was that he had made the same charge in Ohio. But Col. that is not enough. For lying in Ohio is not telling the truth in Pennsylvania by a long shot. A declaration of the sort has never been ventured on the public before—because it is not truth. The Col. said that the Tweed ring was opposed to Tilden. This is another original assertion. For it is notorious that Tweed's original followers with the famous braiser John Morrissey at their head, are shouting themselves hoarse for Tilden and reform.—The Democracy rely on them for their hope of success in New York.

The Col. did not like Gen. Grant a bit. Well it is altogether likely that Grant did not use him as kindly as he ought. For he never gave the Col. any office; but then it is an open question as to whether Grant did not act wisely in this particular. The Colonel pitched into Grant most bitterly, but failed to show what Grant had to do with Gov. Hayes. He did not say that Grant had half as much to do with Hayes as John Morrissey, Billy McMulhon, Ben. Hill and Jeff. Davis had to do with Gov. Tilden.

The Col. asserted that Ohio had been exercised by buying up a certain portion of the miners who were out of work in the section of that state with the money which Grant and his party had stolen from the people. Stolen! How base the charge.

The Col. stated that the charter authorizing the Freedman's Saving Bank at Washington originally provided that no investments could be made in anything but United States securities, but Grant and his ring got their eyes on the funds in the bank and got Congress to pass an act repealing that clause of the charter so that the funds of said bank could be invested in Bonds, Mortgages, &c., and then Grant and his ring robbed the bank and used the funds to carry the elections. Had the Col. no respect for his audience? Did he think his hearers were fools enough to believe such outrageous lies? The Col. read a telegram from some enthusiastic Tildenite in Indiana, to the effect that that state would go for Tilden in Nov, with increased majority. Our pious friend over the way, then moved three cheers which were given. McKune went a tiger on it.

The Col. wanted to charge the hard times on the party in power but seemed to feel ashamed to do it openly, but stated that hundreds of men had starved up in the coal regions because they could get no work. He did not show too much ignorance for his position, for they all knew that not a person had starved in that section.

The Col. stated that he was born in the geographical center of N. Y. State and went to New York City as a dry goods clerk about the time that Tilden came there to study law; where they both boarded with Mrs. Barnes, Mr. Tilden's aunt, who had two charmingly beautiful daughters, but unfortunately, both died before they reached maturity. And we predict that the Col's beautiful hopes of office under Mr. Tilden will be forever deferred from coming in for a share of said fund.

Then the small fry politicians were called upon one after another who responded briefly. Mr. Brockway proposed to gather up all the ships there are left and load up Grant and his office holders and take them out in mid ocean and dump them. Then of course the offices would be reformed by recruits from Lee's army and their friends and sympathizers from the North. And that is just what reform means when it comes from the Democrats. But the loyal people of the country, Democrats and Republicans alike, will declare on the 7th of Nov. in favor of another way. For they are not yet ready to pay the rebel debt, nor allow those to rule the Government who by bloody and cruel war fought to destroy it for five years.

The Republican party has been weighed and not found wanting. The party took the Government when it was rent by a Democratic rebellion. It put the rebellion down. It freed the slaves, and made them citizens in reward for their loyalty. It has paid off one quarter of the war debt, and our national finances are in a most prosperous condition, and we are gradually approaching a specie basis. We are funding our bonds at 4 1/2 per cent. while Buchanan was compelled to give 12 per cent. for money to run the Government during his administration. And during his term of office it cost $1.97 per head to run the Government, while under Grant, to meet the ordinary expenses it takes but $1.60 per head. During the Democratic administrations from Jackson to Buchanan over one thousand dollars collected and paid out there has been lost or stolen $11.02, while during the Republican administrations from Lincoln to Grant there has been lost or stolen about $1.12 cents. Will our Democratic friends tell us who the thieves are?

We again ask our readers to look at Decker & Co's, new advertisement in another column. Mr. Decker, deserves success for the determination he has manifested these seven years to furnish the people of Monroe county cheap goods, thereby saving thousands of dollars to the county. No mistake, you will save your money by purchasing your goods of him.

The Sunday porcing committee is making arrangements to commence operations, and soon the grunter's fattening in the pen will be subject to the inspection of those expert critics who can guess anywhere within a hundred and fifty pounds of what a hog weighs, or will weigh by killing him.

Mr. CHARLES B. KELLER, has just completed a new and very neat brick pavement in front of his boot and shoe store, on Main street. Charley has shown commendable enterprise. Would it be well, and to the interest of the public generally, and pedestrians generally, if the Borough fathers would see that the property owners at the lower end of the borough would finish up a like job before winter sets in, and thus prevent wet feet, severe colds and heavy doctor's bills.

MARRIED.

October 5, 1876, by G. D. Carrow, D. D., Mr. John Hays, of Scranton, and Miss Cecilia Setzer, of Stroudsburg.

The happy couple in the exuberance of their joy did not forget the printer. Shortly after the conclusion of the ceremony we were presented with a liberal supply of cake with the compliments of the bride, and in return extend our warmest and most heart felt thanks.

Special Notice.

Messrs. WANAMAKER and BROWN, of Philadelphia, never stand still in their business energy and enterprise. No sooner is one point of improvement made than another is meditated and brought in due time to the front. And the beauty of it all is that they study the public interest as the basis of their own business prosperity. They have grasped their trade at the right handle. Increased facilities, decreased expenses, enlarging business, all mean better goods at cheaper prices for the people.

CAUTION. Having loaned to Andrew Walk and Hannah Walk, of Paradise township, Monroe County, State of Pennsylvania, during my pleasure, the following named articles, and I hereby caution the public not to meddle or interfere with my property under penalty of the law, viz: 12 bushels of rye, half a ton of straw, 20 bushels of corn, 200 bundles corn stalks, 100 sheaves of oats, 25 bushels of potatoes, 1 hog-stead and bedding, 5 chairs, 1 rocking chair, 1 sofa, clothes-press, 2 chests, 1 grind-stone, 1 grass scythe, 2 looking-glasses, 4 hoes, 1 clock, 2 stoves, and a lot of kitchen furniture. HANNAH SNYDER. Paradise tsp. Oct. 5, 1876-3t.

To the Independent Electors of MONROE COUNTY. I offer myself as a candidate to represent this County, in the State Legislature. If elected I shall serve you faithfully and to the best of my ability. I do this in the solicitation of many of my fellow Democrats in different parts of the county who believe the interests of the County can be best served by electing its officers without the manipulation of a convention. C. S. PALMER, Stroudsburg, Aug. 31th, 1876.
