

The Jeffersonian.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1877.

PRESIDENTIAL.

The Electoral Commission after hearing the arguments in full on the Louisiana question decided on last Friday to count her electoral vote for Hayes and Wheeler.

When the Electoral Commission had decided that the law would not allow them to count the electors of Florida for Tilden, his pet reformer went into fits, and while in this condition made desperate efforts at intimidating and bull-dozing the Commission.

Senator Cameron.

This New York Tribune has said so many naughty things and said them so often that the following from that paper comes with all the more force. Every one who knows Senator Cameron knows the truth of what the Tribune says:

"This story about Simon Cameron's breach of promise is unadulterated nonsense. The venerable Senator is no such man. We have found many a fault in his past career, and may have to find many another yet. But in all our fault finding we never once saw a chance to blame him for not keeping his word."

A BILL is before the New Jersey Legislature reducing the legal rate of interest from seven to six per cent. It is believed that it will pass both branches by large majorities.

THE assurance of the Indianapolis Journal is entertaining. It says: "The most surprising and humiliating feature of the whole business is that out of seven Democrats on the commission not one has had the moral courage to rise above his partisan convictions and respond to the obligation of his oath."

THE Maine Legislature is doing its best to make the men happy by law. It has just passed a bill abolishing lotteries, including raffles at church fairs, and the Senate has voted in favor of the bill which includes cider in the list of intoxicating drinks, the sale of which is prohibited.

REVENUE AGENT MEYERS, who was shot by a lawyer at Warrenton, Mo., has been taken to St. Louis. Three teeth are shot out, his tongue is cut, and the ball has lodged in the back part of his neck.

ACCORDING to the Army and Navy Gazette, recruiting has been so brisk, owing to general depression in all trades, that no fewer than 30,000 young men enlisted last year.

AMANDUS OREYVS, the herdsman, wanted to be Chief Burgess but the people could not see it. The Democrats went back on him and the fusionists would not touch him with a ten-foot pole.

MAYOR STOKLEY was elected mayor of Philadelphia, last Tuesday, by 2747 majority. The entire Republican ticket was elected.

Obituary.

DEATH OF JUDGE THROOP.

Simon Gager Throop, son of Daniel and Mary Throop, who departed this life at his residence in this borough, on Wednesday evening last, at the ripe old age of 87 years, 1 month and 11 days, was born at Boswell, Connecticut, January 4th, 1790.

Though Mr. Throop ranked high as a lawyer and forensic speaker and debater, he was most widely known for his rich fund of humor, his sterling wit and his irrepressible waggery.

In politics Judge Throop was a staunch Republican, as is shown by his early embracing the principles of the Dewitt Clinton branch of the New York Democracy.

During his whole life Judge Throop was the earnest and sincere friend of a liberal educational facilities for all; and, as he often expressed himself, among the happiest years of his life were those which he spent in advancing the interest of Oxford, N. Y., Academy, and the cause of education generally, as one of its active trustees.

Though for comparatively but a few years of his long life a resident of our borough, but few of its inhabitants were better known or more generally and highly respected than Judge Throop.

The last sad offices of respect to our departed, and much beloved fellow citizen notwithstanding the bitter cold weather were paid by a large concourse of friends at the late residence of the deceased, at the church, and at the Cemetery.

"Requiescat in pace" S.

At a meeting of the Bar, and Officers of the Courts of Monroe county, held at the office of Hon. John B. Storm, in the Borough of Stroudsburg, Pa., on Friday evening, February 16th, 1877, to take action in reference to the decease of Honorable Simon G. Throop, a member of said Bar.

Resolved, That we the members of the Bar of Monroe county, and Officers of the Courts, hereby desire to express our feelings of sorrow and grief for the loss we have sustained in the death of Judge Throop.

Resolved, That we will attend the funeral of the deceased in a body, to-morrow afternoon.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and be published in the newspapers of the County; and that the same be duly entered on the records of the Court.

Resolved, That the Chairman of this meeting be authorized to bring the action of this body to the attention of the Court on the first day of the next regular term.

On motion adjourned.

S. HOLMES, Jr., Sec'y. Stroudsburg, Pa., February 16th, 1877.

LACKAWANNA. Should the new county of Lackawanna be formed, it will contain 120 square miles and a population of 71,157, according to the census of 1870. Luzerne, as it would remain after division, would contain 980 square miles and 89,498 inhabitants.

PRESIDENT SLOAN, of the Delaware Lackawanna and Western Company, pronounces his statement that a combination with the New Jersey Central is contemplated by his company "an infamous lie." The assertion that the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western was not paid its November vouchers as he said, equally false. It is now paying its December dividends.

BOROUGH ELECTION.

Scattered to the Four Winds!

The Leader brought Down!

Where's the two Kegs of BEER?

Our Borough election on Tuesday, passed off quietly and pleasantly though it was not devoid of considerable animation and interest.

The net result was a rather clean sweep for the Republicans, the Democrats only carrying 4 minor officers beside the one Inspector which the law allowed them.

Some of our majorities it will be seen were pretty heavy, we carrying our Burgess, William Wallace, over the editor of the Democrat by 20 majority.

And when this result was announced, our devil being inspired, got off the following:

Ring out the loud timbrels On Elizabeth street, For Tilden is routed And Orevis is beat.

Below we append the vote in full:

MR. CARR of Indiana, the successor of the late Speaker Kerr, made a remarkable ten minute speech on Monday when the House was considering the report of the Electoral Commission on Florida.

He said among other sharp things to those who sit on the same side of the House with him:

I arise to remind the Democratic majority that in common decency your votes on this measure (the Compromise bill) have stopped you from indulging in even one word of criticism against the decision of that tribunal.

Sirs, it is your own offspring; you brought it into being; you gave it life and power, and you alone are responsible for the result. It is no excuse for you to assert that you did not anticipate such a result, that you expected higher and better things from your founding.

You had no more right to expect a tribunal as constituted to produce a different result than to expect a thorn-bush to bring forth figs. Nor will so weak an apology save you from the just condemnation which your betrayed and outraged constituency will forever heap upon your treacherous heads. [Laughter and applause on the Republican side.] No, Sirs, the wrong, the great and burning outrage, is on your hands and your hands alone. Nor will the Democratic people be slow in ascertaining the true source of their discomfiture and defeat. It may subserve your purpose for a brief time to attempt to shield yourselves under cover of hollow denunciations of your tribunal, as the cry of "Stop thief!" for a moment may delude the officers of the law, but when the mad populace shall have vented unmerited anger upon this tribunal for a brief hour, it will seek the true object of its just indignation, and the blame will at last lie where it properly belongs.

The few only who had the moral courage to stand here upon the floor, and amid the derision and contumely of the Democratic majority dared to warn you of the inevitable results of that day's work, have a moral right to complain of the end of this day's labor. But, Sirs, while they have deep regrets as to the action of the Commission, they have deep and bitter denunciations and condemnations to heap upon the heads of those who, claiming to be leaders of the great Democratic party in this existence, have proved themselves either incompetent from ignorance or unworthy for base reasons. [Renewed laughter and applause on the Republican side.] Here then, in the name of the Democracy of the whole country, I absolve that Commission from all charges, save it may be that of an honest mistake, and in the name of the same power I denounce the majority of this House as being responsible for the wrong, and recalcitrant—ignorantly or corruptly recalcitrant—to the confidence which has been reposed in them, and faithless to the trust confided in them. [Applause.]

It is necessary to say that Mr. Carr is a Democrat.

Donna Piatt's Infamy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—District Attorney Wells is preparing an indictment against Don Piatt for the article in yesterday's Capital suggesting the assassination of President elect Hayes.

The publication is indictable at the common law, which is by an old act of Congress in force in the District of Columbia, and also indictable under a special statute. Evidence will, it is reported, be laid before the Grand Jury to-morrow, and if the indictment is found, as it no doubt will be, the prosecution will be proceeded with as vigorously as possible. There have been all manner of stories of assassination in the air for several days generally, men have paid little attention to them, for the reason that it was not characteristic of the people of this country to strike in the dark, and, moreover, the attempt to kill Mr. Hayes, or any of the other gentlemen whose lives have been threatened, would be certain death to the assassin. The only fear is that some half-crazy person, irresponsible, and without coalitions, might be excited by just such articles as that in the Capital, to undertake the dastardly deed of murder. The life of no man in the Republic is in the slightest danger, probably, from any organized scheme of assassination, but in the existing condition of excitement a riot might be incited to bloodshed and hanging to lamp-posts.

A Prosperous Coal Road.

NEW YORK, February 19.—The annual report of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company was issued to-day. The following synopsis was given to the press: It shows the profit for the year ending December 31, 1876, after paying all interest, dividends, rentals, etc., as $308,000; also reduction of floating obligations in January of over $900,000, and cash and good cash assets on hand much in excess of all maturing obligations.

A Dead Man Can Inherit.

THE Supreme Court of this State has decided that a dead man can inherit the insurance of his own life. A man named Hass insured his life in favor of his wife for 1,000; but the wife died before him, when he married again, and died not long afterward. The second wife brought suit for share of the $1,000 realized from the policy on the life of her husband, on the ground that when his first wife died the husband became from that moment one of her heirs, entitled to a third of her estate. Supreme Court endorses this history of the second wife, holding that "It is not stretching the construction of the statute beyond what is legitimate to hold that her (the first wife's) estate included for purpose of distribution not only what was then her own estate, but what might become so on a contingency thereafter happening. The death of her husband and the payment of the policy on his life was such a contingency, and his executors are entitled to one-third of the fund thus realized."

PROF. Botsford lectured in Jasper, N. Y., on phonology, with practical illustrations. All went well until, in examining the head of a popular clergyman, he said that the bumps indicated the mind of a prize-fighter. Then the entertainment ended in a row.

HON. HENRY WILLIAMS, L.L.D., Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of this State, died at his residence, at Pittsburg, on Monday last, aged 61 years.
