THE LOST DINNER.

Dr & Corpulent Gentleman's Adventur "Oh, that this too solid flesh would melt, that resolve itself into a dew."-Hamlet. "Let me have men about me that are fat .- Ju-

Of all the plagues with which Old Nick has attempted to disturb the quiet of this blessed world, I think there is none equal to the disposition which half the community have for tormenting fat people. I can speak feelingly on this point, for I am a fat man myself Your lean fellows live in quiet, nobody think of poking fun at them, or jostling them in the street, or squeezing them in a crowd, or a stage coach, or box at the theatre. They slip through the common rubs and crosses of life as easily as a snake thro' the bushes. A starveling has an immunity against all tribulation; but a fat man-there is no merey for him; he is to butt for all the jokes that are current; there is no sharp shooting but hits him. He is too prominent a mark to ed to make shaving easy and pleasant, but with escape. The lean ones eavy his goodly size indifferent success, until I made use of the Magic DIAMOND POWDER, sold by Alfred Bennett, and revenge themselves the only way they can, by ridiculing what they would fain participate in, but find it beyond their reach. as the fox turned up his right-honorable snout

Who would not be fot if he could? It is sheer malice and envy that would set the world against fat people, who, generally speaking, are the most useful and good humoured of the community : fruges constitutere nati, they keep the markets up, and make Dyspersus Sentrey, Small Pox. Januares. trade flourish. If to be fat is to be hated, says Falstaff, then are Pharaoh's lean kine to be loved. I hate lean folks, they make me think of a famine; and short commons are an abomination unto men of any condition. But let me come to the point, and the point of the matter is, that I make it a point never to refuse an invitation to dinner. Now I received an invitation to one last week, the most magnificent dinner that has been enten in the city these fifty years. The very mention of the dishes makes my month water --Alderman Gobble, who gave the dinner, knows how to create an appetite in his guests, by a specification of his tit-bits. I need not stop now to recopitulate the niceties which I the worthy Alderman had promised, and with which I recalled my imagination for a week in unticipation of the feast. Suffice it to say, it was a meal fit for a gonrmand, and I had raised an appetite fit to do justice to it. Oh ye demons of disappointment! How could ye serve me such a trick as to balk me of that dinner! For as my ill luck would have it, I happen to live just now about ten miles from Boston. There is no difficulty, one would think, in jumping into the stage and posting to town. and that is true enough in the case of ordinary folks, but see what plagues beset a fat man! I had bespoke my passage, and was the first to get into the stage, when a disagreement arose about the space which I occupied in the vehicle. The driver asserted that I had taken but one seat, and all the others in the coatch were engaged before me, Now as he undertook to prove by regular ad-

ed to be annoved by the company of Mrs. Pickleton and her seven children. We travelled at an easy and comfortable a rate that I fell jeto a doze, an infirmity to which I am somewhat accustomed, though not in stage-cooons, I dreamt of being at Alderman Gobble's dinner, where I kept eating and eating till I thought I never should have enough. What was the most singular of all was, that the more I ate, the hungrier I grew. Methought the dinner lasted unconscionably long, till at last I awoke

I was fairly starged out of my dream.—
'Surely,' thought I, as I awoke, 'we must have got to Boston by this time.' I pulled out my watch.

It was half past two! 'Heavens!' exclaimd I, Where are we? - I jumped up and socked out of the carriage, and - and there was 1, at the very place of starting; we had not migred a roa all the while. Dr. Townsent—Dear Sir. I had two children cured by your Sarsaporilla of the sammer complaint and dysentery, one was only 15 month old and the other 3 years. They were very much reduced, and we expected they would die; they were given up by two respectable physicians. When the doctor informed as that we must lose them, we restived to try your Sarsaparilla we had heard so much of, but had little confidence, there being so much stuff advertised that is worthless: but we are thankful that we did, for it imdoulatedly awed the lives of both. Dear Sir.—In reply to your question respecting the use of Dr. Drake's Panacea. I will say, that although a perfect disbeliever in the existence of a Panacea, or care for ALL diseases, lowever valuable it may be in certain conditions of the system, will I have believed that a cure i. Commuption would be disc weted fabour or later, and cure say led one to try your medicine in two very investme cases. They were provinced by the attending physicions to be retained and the periodic later than a single character. One of the periodic later made used by them as in creating. One of the periodic later made in the treatured of several very othe practitioners for a number of years, and they said side had "A finishmed Consemption combine with Scrottala," and that she might langer for somatime but could not be permanently relieved. In both cases the effect of the Panacea has been most gradifying. Only four or tive bottles were used by one of the persons before she begin to improve rapidly. The other track about ten. I will only add that familiar as I am with consumption by inheritance and by extensive observait in as a study, and knowing also the impricance effects in time cases out of ten of tar, benesed, and other vegetable turies, as well as of many of the expect orants and scientics. Recommend in Section for the Jerog. Boston.

We, the sobscribers, being closed Judges by the Massactions in Boston, on stoyes, furnaces, ranges, &c. w and inform the public, that all the costing stoyes manning solves that were public, that all the cost in grows and the cost with the least finel in the same time, and bot less, we find that Stewart's Patent Summer and Water Air-Tigal Cooking Stoye, munifactured by the potentic, of Troy, N. Y., to be the best, as it took but 12 innuities to boil two gallons of water and bake biscuit in the same time, and bool used steak, and all done in the best manner with seven points of cost, in thirty minutes to the fire was put into the stoye. To which we awarded the salver medal.
