THE CASE OF TALMADGE.

MARROW ESCAPE FROM THE GALLOWS

We have already alluded to the extrao dinary case of John Talmadge, of one of the interior towns of New York, who after being indicted for murder and imprisoned for six months, was found to be wholly innocent. The case is one of the most remarkable on record, and shows how careful we should be in our judgments and verdicts. A correspondent of the New York Mirror gives the following thrilling narrafive of the incidents connected with the effair. Nothing more fully imbued with startling interest can be found in the most absorbing works of fiction :

BALLSTON Spa., Dec. 24th, 1849. The most singular and astounding developments that ever characterized the proceedings of a court of justice, have just been made before the Over and Terminer now sitting in this place. You remember the case of John Talmadge, indicted here last spring for the murder of Wm. L. Dodge, the engineer who was killed by the running of the cars from the track. The catastrophe was produced by stones placed by the accused on the inside of the rails. Talmadge was an intelligent and wealthy farmer of the higher grade, and up to the time of his arrest had maintained a character and standing that placed him beyond the reach of calumny. Yet he was a high spirited and passionate defender of his own and the rights of others. And as the railroad passed through his farm, he had been coolly subjected to the loss of several cattle, run over by the cars, for which the company refused all remuneration, and in consequence of which litigation and bitter animosity had ensued between the parties. Talmadge had been heard to say, he "hoped to God the cars would run off," and this, together with the circumstance referred to, had concentrated public suspicion upon him, and he was indicted. At length two witnesses, (Irishmen connected with the road) were found, who saw Talmadge place the stones on the track .-Their story was simple and plausible, and there seemed on the part of the accused no possible escape from the gallows. The man whom all had esteemed, who had luctant belief of all, to swing upon the scaffold, and expiate the crime of deliberate cold-blooded murder. In this state of things the day of trial arrived.

Thousands from all sections of the country crowded to the scene, eager to catch every movement, and listen with tearful gr eyes to every word that seemed to make against the prisoner. The most eminent counsel were employed on both sides .-The prisoner, persisting in his entire innocence, with pale countenance and an eye of wild agony, sat trembling and restless in his box. The two principal witnesses took the stand. They were calm and apparently honest in the natural and plausible story which they told, from the effect of which it seemed impossible for the accused to escape. His wife, who sat by his side, and who, up to this moment, had preserved an unexampled composure, now burst into a flood of tears, and by her sobs interrupted the proceedings of the court, and the friends of Talmadge began to abandon all hope and to prepare their minds for the awful that was soon to follow it.

took place toward the door of the court room. "Make way!" resounded through the spacious Hall. Two men pressed up to the prisoner's counsel and whispered, agitated and almost breathless, in their ears. A fellow Irishman, who had long known that the story of these two witnesses was all a fabrication, to obtain the reward offered for the detection of the man who placed the stones, had been moved by conscience to disclose it, and to conduct andeniable, that when the fatal catastrophe occurred, they were not in this country, but in Ireland. This proof was now prenesses were placed upon the stand. The evidence of Talmadge's entire innocence was clear and undeniable-the attorney for the people at once moved permission to withdraw the prosecution, and to arrest the two false witnesses on the spot, which was granted, and such a shout as rang through the multitude present, never before thundered from the windows of a court house.

Talmadge was borne off on the shoulders of the people, and the booming of a six pounder as expressive of their exultation, closed up one of the most novel and exciting scenes that ever transpired in any court or country.

A WOODEN BOILER .- A correspondent of the Beston Cultivator gives the following mode of boiling water in a box, as practised by one of the best farmers in Massachusetts. He says:

The box, grooved together, was six feet long and about two feet wide, the depth being two feet or something more. A piece of iron pipe, say four inches in diameter, entered the box at one end, about an inch and a half from the bottom, and was continued, by means of an elbow, around the box, within an inch and a half of the sides, and coming through the opposite end to the end at which it entered, making, therefore, the circuit of the box inside; and upon the protruding end of the pipe was fixed an elbow, the smoke pipe extending somewhat above the box. Into this pipe at its entrance, were introduced corncebs as fuel, and it was truly surprising how few of these were necessary to raise the water to the boiling point, the draught being exceedingly great, and the water having free

Dear Sir,—I have read with much interest, your little TRARATISE upon the "causes, treatment and cure" of the febrile diseases which have so extensively prevailed in our country during the last few months—no interest increased no doubt, by the fact that I have individually suffered so much from them. Though I feel myself very the ampetent in index after upon a subject as entirely not professional, yet much from them. Though I feel myself very incompetent to judge safely upon a subject so entirely professional, set your theory seems to me well reas not, and your conclusions just, and I think without that your pamphlet is extensited to produce much practical good.

Speaking of the medicine he says:—It fully justified your flattering expectations, and as a safe, convenient, and popular remedy, my own experience, so far, induces me to believe that it will prove a great public benefit. I am pleased to learn just you have recently established several againsies for its disposition—though I regret that, with a view to a more general dissemination of it, you should have found it necessary to remove from your present residence among us.

THE COLUMBIAN CALCULATOR .- This work is already introduced into some of the best Acadamies and a large number of Schools, where its use has given decided and universal satisfaction, both to teacher and pupil. It is purely American in its character, based upon our own beautiful decimal system of enerency. It contains more, the arrangements are better, and it is the easiest and cheapest work of the kind now in use; and it is so considered by hundreds of the most competent teachers and men of science in the Uni-on, who have recommended it. It is the book, particularly and expressly prepared for our American Scholars: By Almon Ticknor.

THE YOUTH'S COLUMBIAN CALCULATOR.—This volume contains 91 pages, with about 900 exam-ples for solution on the slate. It embraces the Fundamertal Rules, Compound Rules, Simple and Compound Reduction, Single Rule of Three, Proportion, &c.

TICKNOR'S ARITHMETICAL TABLES, is destined for the use of younger classes in the Schools of the United States. A beautiful little book and pleasing to children, and the only one of the kind of any

There are Keys to both Arithmetics bound single or double, for the convenience of teachers, in which the solutions of the questions are given with much extra matter for the black board. These Keys are the most complete works of the kind ever published, and contain, in addition, about two hundred examples in Mensuration, &c., for the use of the Teacher. All that is wanted is to have the above books examined, and no teacher who is acquainted with the science of Arithmetic, will hesitate to pronounce them the best works that have ever been published in this or any other

Although issued but a few mouths, they have already been introduced into the Night Public Schools of New York City-in all the Schools public and private, except two, in the City of Reading. Also, in about twenty Acadamies in the State of Pennsylvania-in a large portion of the Schools in the City of Wilmington, in the City of Lancaster, and in the Boroughs of Harrisburg, York, Chambersburg, Lebanon, Doylestown, Pottsville, Orwigsburg, &c., &c.

Is a sovereign remedy for DYSPEPSIA, in many of an forms, such as pain in the Stomach, Hearlborn, habitual Costiveness. Acid Stomach, Hearlache, Loss of Appetite, Piles, Night Sweats, and even Cossumption (Dyspeptic Phthisic,) and Asthma, or Pithisic attended with deraugement of the Stomach; for Dyspeptic Asthma.) Difficult Breathing, which often results from imperfect digestion (or Dyspeptic Sygniors.) is refleved by these Bitters. In short, their use has been proved in the reflect of atmost all the symptoms that proceed from a debilitated or stome condition of the Stomach; also in general debility arising from age or from the effects of Fever, particularly Fever and Agos. Fermales soffering under any attended elegangement arising from weakness, will find the "Oxyrexs-Ard Bittans," an excellent remedy, and not surpassed by any medicine in use.

The instary of this medicine is peculiar. It has useds its way to public favor solely by the force of its own intrinsic shorts. No arrificial means have been used to give it as foriety and thrust it upon public attention. It has never before even been advertised, but having first shown its remarkable efficacy in the tamily of the proprietor, and by him after wards administered to his afflicted friends and acquaistances with a like result, its reputation gradually extended until it is known in the most distant parts of the Union, as a medicine of unrivalled virtues in the cure of Asthma or Pithishe. Its only beriad and its only culogy has been the mory of its wonderful efficacy, as told from most to mouth or by letter from friend to friend. In every instance where these Bitters have been used, and the result made known to the proprietor, they have proved a result made known to the proprietor, they have proved a result made known to the proprietor, they have proved a result to the control of the cure of the cure of a status of the cure

Dear Sir,—I have been a dyspeptic sufferer for about-ten years, and have reasted to various medicines for relief without success, until I made use of your "Daygenated Bitters." I have used about two bottles, and find myself restored to perfect health. The forms in which the discuss showed itself, in my case, were, great acidity of the shounch, loss of appetite, extreme flantlenes, severe constipation of the howels, and violent headache. Feeting desirons that a knowledge of your valuable remedy may reach others sautharly afflicted. I take great pleasure in recording my testimony to its curative power; and would also remark, that while on a visit at home a short time since. I administered a part of a bottle to a number of my afflicted friends, with great success. They are desirous that you should establish an agency at Pittsburg, or inform their where the medicine can be obtained. With me erruest desire for your prespective and happiness. I subscribe myself.
