The Marskal, it seems, was accompanied by his nephew and an interpreter, and they exhausted, and, in his own language, compresented themselves about 125 o'clock, on Wednesday, at the brewery. The interpreter having handed in a letter of introduction from Baron Rothschild to the chief clerk, the party were at once shown into the chief office, where it is customary for visiters to write their names in the visiters' book. The Marshal having written "Haynau" in rather a bold style, he was consigned to one of the servants to conduct 'him over the brewery -The moment he quittell a commetion was had elapsed several of the clerks and collectors were seen to leave the brewery hastily, and in a short space of time the carters, draymen, and others from the opposite premises of the establishment, with a host of laborers from the neighboring Borough Market, congregated outside the gates of the brewery .-Some of them were armed with long carters' whips, and others had long cane brooms -The General had been shown over mest of The departments and had arrived at the stables, when the series of assaults commenced. 'He was about entering the lower stalls when a heavy truss of straw was thrown out from the loft above; it feil upon his head and knocked him to the ground with much force. Having regained his legs, missiles of the most offensive character were thrown into his face, and as is was evident that a forious storm was brewing against the party, fheir hasty retreat was suggested. With as much expedition as possible, the Marshal, with his neghew and interpreter, bolted across the met with the most fearful yells and execrations from the mob who had collected outside the entrance gates. Indeed it is scarcely possible, we are assured, to convey an accurate idea of the horrible noise that burst forth from the populace when the affrighted General appeared. He was allowed to reach about the middle of the street, when some of the carters, who were in waiting with their heavy whips, cried out, "Oh, this is the fellow that flogged the women, is it!" and instantly commenced lashing him with all their might. The marshal then quickened his speed, but the mob, which had considerably increased by the arrival of a number of coal heavers from Bankside, crowded round him, and all that could get near him were kicking and shoving him, and crying, "He's a murderer; give it him. Down with the Austrian butcher. Shove him into the river." With some difficulty he contrived to reach the corner of Bankside, when he was knocked down, and an attempt was made by the more excited of the populace to drag him away, it is thought, for the purpose of throwing him into the Thames. His nephew and interpreter, however, managed to keep hold of him, and get him upon his legs. He then made another effort to get away between his attendants --The mob, however, followed him up, and lashed, pelted and hooted him in the most furious style. He was flogged with the whips, struck over the back with the brooms, beaten with the coal heavers' "fan tail" hats, while an unremitting shower of filth was

Several gentlemen who witnessed the attack made a attempt to protect the Marshal, who appeared to be fast sinking from exhausion and ill us re, while his interpreter implored the mob not to kill him. Two young men in the service of Mr. Winter, the ironmonger, in Bankside, met the men, and endeavored to restrain them. "He is a murderer," was the reply. "We won't have him here, the Austrian butcher; we'll teach him to flog women." Another rush was made at him; his hat was thrown high into the air, amid loud derisive shouts, and his clothes nearly torn off his back. His moustache and beard were pulled in the most violent manner, and one man, who had in his hand a large bladed knife, caught hold of the Marshal's beard and made a strong effort to cut it off. By this time the party had reached the George Public House, in Bankside, near Southwark bridge, kept by Mr. Benfield. and in the confusion the General succeeded in getting from the mob, and running into the George. The nephew and interpreter remained at the door as long as it was practicable; they, however, were soon compelled to seek shelter inside, the mob beating them and rushing up stairs. Mr. Benfeild at the coming. time was attending at the bar, and his wife was up stairs with her child. In an instant the lower part of the house was filled by the mob, whose conduct now became furious, while hundreds collected in front. Loud were the cries-"Out with the butcher!"-"Drag the murderer out!" "Down with the wretch!" Several rooms were entered, but the Marshal could not be found, aml it was then became impatient, and would listen to nothing else than his production. Several men scaled the front of the house and got in to the front room windows. The nephew and interpreter were found on the landing, but the object of their fury was nowhere to be seen. In a few moments a loud yell proceeded from the back part of the premises. Some coal heavers had discovered the Mar shal crouched in a dust-bin attached to the house. By the hair of his head they dragged him out, shouting, "we have got the Austrian women flogger!" This announcement was received with almost frantic cheers by the mob outside the house, and the Marshal was about being dragged along the passage into the streets, when his cries attracted the sympathy of some strangers, who, with the aid of his nephew and interpreter, succeeded in getting him from the grasp of his assailants, and in locking him up in one of the bedrooms, while others stood sentry at the door, and prevented it being forced. Mr. Benfeild, the landlord, endeavoied to appears the mob. They replied however, that if the wretch was not given up, they would pull the house down. Most fortunately, Mr. Benfeild, a the first rush into his house, and fearing that threats were being made; and it being dangerous for him to act alone, he ran to the police station for further aid. A strong body lace. The inspector, on entering the house, found the General seated on the edge of bed in a pitiable condition. He was much plained severely of the pain he endured from the injuries inflicted upon him. Arrangements were made for his quitting England, and in the course of Friday night, we are informed, he took his leave.

The George, where Haynau took refuge, has been ever since an atttraction to the curious. It has been daily visited by crowds of exiled Hungarians, the dust hole and bedroom being objects of much attraction to the curious. 'Cheers are repeatedly given by the visible in the office, and ere many minutes visitors for the draymen and coal heavers .-Mr. Benfeild, to whom Haynou was largely in elted for his safety, called at Morley's, and sent in his card, but the Marshal refused to receive him.

SUNBURY AMERICAN AND SHAMOKIN JOURNAL.

A majority of the conferees having nominated James Gamble of Lycoming, as the red the selection of a candidate from our own county, but as this could not be effected, it is incumbent on us as good democrats to submit. Fortunately the choice has fallen upon a man of fine abilities, unexceptionable in his character and conduct.

The question is therefore narrowed down to this, that we must either support Mr-Gamble or Mr. Armstrong the whig candidate. They are both lawyers, and both men of character and standing. While Mr. Armstrong may have more experience at the Bar, Mr. Gamble, on the other hand, has the advantage of more experience in politics, and a more general acquaintance with our national affairs. He has several times been elected to the legislature of this state, and has always occupied a high position, both at home and abroad, as a gentletlemen of intelligence and integrity. We have been personally acquainted with Mr. Gamble for the last twelve years, and have always entertained for him a high regard for his amiable disposition, general intelligence, and uniform good character. During all the bitter contentions among different sections of the democratic party, in Lycoming county, we have never heard aught said against Mr. Gamble from either side, although he has always occupied a high and prominent position in his party. Under these circumstances, we cannot see how any democrat can refuse to contribute his support to Mr. Gamble. Northumberland county has the power to secure his election by a handsome majority, and we shall be much surprised if her democracy does not, as it always has done, perform their duty at the ensuing election, and thus redeem the 13th Congressional district.

DOUGH FACED PENNSYLVANIANS.

THE TARIFF.-A strong effort is making in Congress to modify the present tariff, and there is a disposition generally, even among the most altra free traders, in favor of its modification, as it is acknowledged to be ruinous to the iron and coal interests of Pennsylvania. Mr. Vinton's resolution adopting the prices of 1846, when the tariff was passed, as the standard of valuation, came within two votes of being carried, and was so reasonable that no one could hardly suppose that any serious opposition would be made. The whole Pennsylvania delegation voted in favor of it, excepting, we regret to say, three members, who profess to be democrats, whose truckling and treachery to the interests of their constituents, we trust the democracy and people of Pennsylvania will not fail to remember .-Their names are James X. McLanahan of Mann of Bedford.

Another amendment of similar character was offered on Tuesday last, providing also an increased duty on iron, but was lost, the beautiful dough-faced trio above named, voting as before. Among the Pennsylvania delegation none are more deserving for their efforts in this matter than the Hon. James Thompson of Erie, a true democrat of the Jefferson school.

ANOTHER RAILROAD TO PITTSBURG .- The "Pittsburg Journal" is urging the business men of New York to build a railroad from the New York and Erie road down the Alle gheny river to Pittsburg, where it would connect with the Ohio river and the Western railroad. The Journal says there is a charter already in existence, and all that is wanting to secure it, is to open books and elect officers. It would give to New York, it adds, a direct and continuous Railroad to St. Louis, and open to it the interior trade of the great State of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri. What will the "central" men say to this project. The above is from the Ledger. We trust the Philadelphians will soon be able to see of the victims of the catastrophe at Nesco- will yet be compelled to make the road in self defence.

Companies are branching out in every diection, and going to work systematically and with energy. Where operations have progressed far enough to test the working success has generally crowned their efforts. The difficulties which have existed at the Southern Mines, between the Americans and foreigners, and which have resulted in no little bloodshed, have finally subsided, and peace is again restored. In consequence of these outbreaks and murders, large parties of foreigners had left the country, and thus deprived the State of the benefit of the Foreign Miners' Tax. However, we are glad to be able to state that a reaction has taken place, and that henceforth there is every appearance of quietness.

Small parties are leaving daily. Hundreds of fugitive slaves have started

WHO'S HAND IS IN UNCLE SAM'S POCKET It is stated that the annual cost of the lines of steamers now under the control of the Post-office Department was $455,000, of which four hundred thousand went to the Bremen line, and fifty-five thousand to Mordecai's line from Charleston to Havana. At the same time, those under the control of the Navy Department cost the Government annually $1,329,000, of which the Panama and and Chagres line $290,000, and Collins' Atlantic line $385,000. The lines in operation will require an annual outlay of $1,300, 000; and it has been asserted, on the floor of Congress, that the other projects already fiercely pressed upon the House, propose an mmediate advance of $7,000,000, with w prospective and annual appropiation of $1, 500,000-making a total annual charge incurred and proposed for this pretended foreign mail service, of about $3,000,000. [Correspondence of the Phila Ledger.] FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. With the exception of steam and the tariff, there is really no subject which at this moment attracts the attention of Congress. The House on Saturday last, in Committee of the whole, gave very satisfactory evidence that the present system of building up a steam navy, by the government coming to the aid of private enterprise, is not to be abandoned, and that the absurd suggestions of the late Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ballard Preston, are of no weight whatever in the consideration of practical men. Instead of making improvements in the system, requiring the vessel to be made of a certain size and of a given strength, Mr. Preston was inclined to abandon the whole system, and to build up an expensive steam navy for the government, on the plan of the old naval constructors-the most superfluous body of men-connected with the Executive Departments. It may now be too late in the session to establish new lines of steamers; but such new lines will be established hereafter, and among the most prominent schemes, are the line of steamships from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore to Africa, and the line of steamships proposed to run between San Francisco and Shanghai in China. There will be some talk about extravagance among Western members; but provided they can get one or two mail routes from St. Louis, or some other points on the Mississippi, through the Rocky Mountans into Oregon or California, they will be satisfied. There is a the country. The fight in the Senate is about the different ports of entry to be established in California, A pretty severe controversy is carried on about Benicia, only a short distance from San Francisco. It seems to be conceded that if Benicia be made a part of entry, San Franisco will suffer and vice versa. The probability is that as both Senators and both members from California are opposed to Benicia, that scheme will be dropped for the present. A floating dock will, no doubt, be given to San Francisco. It will be a balance dock, built on the same principle, and at the same rate as the dock at Pensacola. The parts are to be got ready in New York or Philadelphia, shipped to California, and put together at San Francisco by American workmen. The es. tablishment of a branch mint will probably be delayed for another year. It is impossible during this short term of the session to pass laws in respect to aliens in California, though the latest news from that quarter represents a very preent case for legislation.

There was a nice Wal! street speculation on foot in regard to the Illinois Land bill in aid of the construction of a railroad from Mobile to Chicago, Illinois. A body of speculators had purchased land warrants to the amount of about a million of acres, which they intended to locate the moment the bill was passed and for this purpose kept an agent here to telegraph the passage of the bills to parties in Illinois. NERVOUS ANTIDOTE PHYSICAL RESTORATIVE THE MEDICAL WONDER OF THE AGE.

WILL positively cure all stages of Neuralgia Tie Doloroux, Nervous Headache, Che lere, Lockjaw, Hydrophobia convulsions; will restore manhood to its prestine vigor, even after years of prostration, and the only known and certain cure for low spirits or mental debilty.

Extract from the New York Sun, Oct. 3, 1849.

The celebrated Dr Watson, when talking of the miraculous power of "Watts' Nervous Antidote, the question was put to him, Why such a value. ble remedy for all nervous affections was not introduced by the medical faculty?" replied, "That if it were, there would no longer be any use for a faculty, as all diseases originated from a disorganized stree of the nerves ; the nerves are the main spring of the whole system. Keep this in order, and both the mind and body must be." Four ounce phial, 12 doses, enough for all or-dinary cases, ONE DOLLAR.
