TO MY CIGAR.

Yes, social friend, I love thee well, In learned doctors' spite ; I love thy fragrant, musty smell, I love thy calm delight.

What if they tell, with phizzes long, Our years are sconer past? I would reply, with reason strong, They're sweeter while they last.

And oft, mild tube, to me thou art A monitor, though still Thou speak'st a lesson to my heart, Above the preacher's skill.

When in the lovely evening hour, Attended but by thee, O'er hist'ry's varied page I pore, Man's fate in thine 1 see Awhile, like thee, the hero burns, And smokes and fumes around ; And then, like thee, to ashes turns, And mingles with the ground !

Thou'rt like the man of worth, who gives To goodness every day ; The fragrance of whose virtue lives When he has passed away.

Oft when the snowy columns grows, And breaks and falls away, I trace how mighty realms rose, Then tumbled to decay !

From beggar's frieze to monarch's robe, One common doom is passed ; Sweet nature's works, the mighty globe, Must still burn out at last.

And what is he that smokes thee now ? A little moving heap, That soon, like thee, to fate most bow, Like ther, in dust must sleep

And when I see thy smoke roll high, Thy ashes downward go ; 'Tis thus, methinks, my soul shall fiy ! Thus leave my body low !
