I see the light of the village. Glean through the min and the mist, And a real agrot without comes a'er me, that my soul eaution tesists

A feeting of sadness and longing. That is not akin to pain, But resembles sorrow only
As the mist resembles the rain.

Come, read to me some poem, Some simple and heartfelt lay, That shall sooth this restless feeling, And banish the thoughts of day.

Not from the grand old masters, Not from the bards sublime, Whose distant footsteps echo Through the corridors of Time.

For, like strains of martial music, Their mighty thoughts suggest, Life's endless toil and endeaver, And to-night I long for rest.

Read from some humbler poet, Whose song gush from his heart, As showers from the clouds of summer, Or tears from the eye lids start.

Who, through long days of labor, And nights devoid of ease, Still heard in his soul the umsic Of wonderful melodies.

Such songs have power to quiet This restless pulse of care, And come like the benediction, That follows after prayer. Then read from the treasured volume,

The poem of thy choice,
And lend to the ryhme of the poet
The beauty of thy voice.

And the night shall be filled with music, And the cares that infest the day Shall fold their tents like the Arabs, And as silently steal away.
