THE EXECUTION OF MAJOR ANDRE.

The principal guard-officer, who was constantly in the room with the prisoner, relates that when the hour of his execution was anpounced to him in the morning, he received it without emotion, and while all present were affected with silent gloom, he retained a firm mind. Observing his servant enter the room in tears, he exclaimed, "Leave me, till you can show yourself more manly." His breakfast being sent to him from the table of General Washington, which had been done Every day of his confinement, he partook of it as usual) and, having shaved and dressed himself, he placed his hat on the table, and cheer fully said to the guard-officer, "I am ready at any moment, gentlemen, to wait on you. The fatal hour having arrived, a large detach- very low at ment of troops were paraded, and an immense concourse of people assembled; almost all our general and field officers, excepting his excellency and his staff, were present on horseback; melancholy and gloom prevaded all ranksthe scene was affecting and awful.

I was so near during the solemn march to the fatal spot, as to observe every movement and participate in every emotion which the melancholy scene was caclulated to produce. Major Andre walked from the stone-house in which he had been confined, between two of our subaltern officers, arm in arm; the eyes of the immence multitude were fixed on him, who rising superior to the fear of death, appeared as if conscious of the dignified deportment which he displayed. He betrayed no want of fortitude; but retained a complacent smile on his countenance, and politely bow: ed to several gentlemen whom he knew, which was respectfully returned. it was his earnest desire to be shot, as being the mode of death most comfortable to his feelings of a military man, and he had indulged the hope that his request would be granted. At the moment, therefore, when he came suddenly in view of the gallows, he involuntary star, ted back, and made a pause. "Why this emotion, sir ?" said an officer by his side .-Instantly recovering his composure, he said, "I am reconciled to my death; but I detest the mode." While waiting and standing near the gal. lows, I observed some degree of trepidationplacing his foot on a stone, and rolling it over and chokeing in his throat, as if attempting to swallow. So soon, however, as he preceived that things were in readiness, he stepped quickly into the wagon; and at this moment he appeared to shrink; but instantly elevating Reading Lamps on hand. Lamp Glasses, Globes his head with firmness, he said, "It will be but a momentary pang;" and, taking from his pocket two white handkerchiefs, the provost-marshal with one loosely pinioned his prms, and with the other the victim, after sking off his hat and stocks, bandaged his own eyes with perfect firmness, which maked the hearts and moistened the cheekes, not only of his servants, but of the throng of speciators. The rope being appended to the gallows, he slipped the noose over his head, and adjusted it to his neck without the assistance of the executioner. Colonel Scammel now informed him that he had an opportunity to speak, if he desired it. He raised the handkercheif from his eyes and said, "I pray you to bear me witness that I meet my fate like a brave man !" The wagon being now removed from under him, he was suspended, and instantly expired - Chambers' Reposi-

GEORGE BANCROFT, in a lecture before the New York Historical Society, pays an eloquent tribute to the philosopher ;- "Not half of Franklin's merits have been told. He was the true father of the American Union. It was he who went forth to lay the foundation of that great design at Albany, and in New York he lifted up his voice. Here among us he appeared as the apostle of the Union. It was Franklin who suggested the Congress of 1774; and but for his wiedom, and the confidence that wisdom inspired, it is a matter of doubt whether that Congress would have taken effect. It was Franklin who sugges. ted the bond of the Union which binds these States, from Florida to Maine. Franklin was the greatest diplomatist of the eighteenth century. their Government in consideration of its extraordinary excellence and usefulness in curing affectione of the Lungu and Throat.

Read the following regimen founded on the long experience of the eminent Physician of the Port and City of Dr. J. C. Ayer,—

Five years trial of your CHERRY PECTORAL in my practice, has proven what I foreast from its compession, must be true, that it eradicates and cures the colds and coughs to which we, in this action, are pecularly hable.

I think its equal has not yet been discovered, nor do I know how a better remedy can be made for the distempers of the Throat and Lungs.

See what it has done on a wanted constitution, not only in the following cases, but a thousand mare:—

Dr. Ayer: In the mouth of July last I was attacked by a violent distribution of July last I was attacked by a violent distribution of July last I was attacked by a violent distribution of July last I was attacked by a violent distribution in mines of California. I returned to San Fransisco in hope of receiving benefit from a change of climate and diet, My distribute ceased, but was followed by a severe cough—and much soreness. I funly started for home, but received no benefit from the voyage. My cough continued to grow worke, and when I arrived in New York, I was at once marked by my acquaintances as a victim of consumption. I must confess that I saw no sufficient reason to doubt what my friends all beleved.—At this time I commenced taking your truly mealmable from its use. You would not receive these lines did I not regard it my duty to state to the afficied, through you, that my health, in the space of eight months, is fully restored. I attribute it to the use of your CHERRY PECTORAL,

Washington, Pa, April 12, 1248

Dear sir: Feeling that I have been spared from a premature grave, through your instrumentality by the providence of God, I will take the liberty to express to you my dence of God, I will take the mostly to express by your gratitude.

A Cough and the alarming symptoms of Consumption had reduced me too low to leave me anything like hope, when my physician brought me a bottle of your "Petronal." It seemed to afford immediate reliet, and now in a few weeks time has restored me to sound health. If it will do for others what it has done for me, you are certainly one of the beneficiers of mankind.

Sincerely wishing you every blessing, I am
