GRAFTING COMPOSITION.

The composition chiefly used for grafting, is commonly called "grafting wax," and is easily made by even inexperienced hands. To make this, take one part of good beef tallow, two parts beeswax, and four parts of transparent resin; melt them together, then turn into a vessel of cold water, and work and knead it thoroughly with the hands. In working it, and using it afterwards, if sticky, the hands may be slightly greased, which will effectually prevent it.
