IFrom the Germantown Telegraph.

AR. Epitors:—It is with pleasure that I fee a new spirit operating smong our agaitural friends in relation to this species of aid. In passing through a portion of the country recently, I observed several of bog fand that had been cleared and drained, and put in course of improvement. I would beg leave to suggest, however, that the most effectual and economical method of reclaiming these valuable soils, does not, in all cases, appear to have been adopted. Instead of culting the bushes, and turning out the masses of strong, fibrous roots with the plow, it would be far better and give the law is a much it would be far better and give the law is a much it would be far better, and relating a much it would be far better, and give the law is a much it would be far better, and relating a much is a much in the late Congress—including the sound and constant in the late Congres of strong, fibrous roots with the plow, it would be far better, and give the land a much Bounty-Land Act of 3d March, 1855. would be far better, and give the land a much wore desirable appearance, to employ the cost puller; this does the work faithfully, takink out all the roots, and with the expenditure of one-half the strength and capital required by the former method. As to draining, it should be done in the most thorough manner, and indeed the entire operation is one in which thoroughness is highly essential. If the work be not well done, it will require to be twice done, and this very few farmers can afford. Burning the bushes on the ground, after saving out all that is fit forfuel, is a judicious plan. The ashes, however, should be spread, and not left in heaps as noticed had been done in one or two cases.

KICKING COWS.

Hear what an old man, who has spent his past life and grown gray upon a farm, says about kicking cows: In the most cases the habit of kicking is contracted during the first menth after the the cause with well-fed heifers, the udder is a little feverish at the time, it often becomes so sore that it is impossible for the poor creature to stand still while the necessary milking is being done. Following the instinct of nature she kicks; and finding she is thus for the moment freed from pain, continues to do it till the anger of the milker is aroused, and then a bad matter is made much worse.

It is better in the first place to tie the heifer by the head, then set your left shoulder, gently but firmly against her, just back of her right shoulder, grasp firmly her right fore leg elow the knee, turning her foot up backward till it touches the leg, then slip on over the knee a strap, or hoop, or cord that will con-fine it fast in that position. While standing on three legs she will find it difficult to kick so as to hurt you. Now take a convenientsized cloth, and wet and wash the udder the oughly with tepid or cold water, after which milk her carefully and tenderly as possible using at the same time such gentle and soothing language as is calculated to show her that you do not wish to hurt her-but let her struggles be ever so violent or provoking, mind you keep control of your own temper An outbreak on your part will as certainly be productive of a bad effect upon the cow, as an echo will answer your own voice, or as your image will be reflected in a mirror.— Kindness, combined with the perfect control you have over her in this situation, I consider much the best way of breaking them; and after a few times she will lift her foot to be tied as readily as a borse will to be shod -Continue to milk her in this way until the soreness is gone, and she will find it a gratification to be milked, will often meet you as she sees you coming with the pail, and you will ever after find it easier to get along with her should her teats by chance get sore afterwards .- OLD FARMER .- [In Life Illustrated.]

SETTING HENS .- In setting hens, thirteen eggs are enough to give them; a large hen cover more, but a few stronger, wellhatched chicks are better than large brood of weaklings that have been delayed in the shell perhaps twelve hours over the time, from insufficient warmth. At the end of a week, it is usual, with setting turkeys, to add two or three fowls' eggs, "to teach the young tur-keys to pick." The plan is not a bad one; the activity of their chickens stir up some emulation in their larger brothren. eggs take but little room in the nest, and will produce two or three very fine fowls. Al-

Soils which contain standing water within thirty inches of the surface, should be underdrained. From such land, there is a continued draining of water to the surface, as in a flower pot, where the water is applied to the bottom, but soon moistens to the top,-Constant evaporation keeps the soil and air cold, and excludes the air from the soil .--Drain off the water and the air enters the soil; as there is less evaporation, the soil becomes warmer; the oxygen decomposes the vegetable matter in the soil, and changes the poisonous protoxide of iron to the beneficial peroxide. - Ohio Farmer.

A Good Soar RECIPE.—Have the ley of sufficient strength to float an egg; measure it into barrels as obtained, and to each gallon add one pound of grease. Stir every day until it becomes thick; then, to sixteen lons of this soft soap put four gallous of ley, as strong as that above. Boil one hour or more, until the grease entirely disappears. then dissolve six quarts of salt in fourgallons of water; stir it in, and boil the whole tifteen minutes longer; pour it into tubs to barden; cut it out in bars and dry in the shade.

CURE FOR BOTS .- William H. Dawson, of Arkansas, gives the following remedy for the bots, in the Southern Cultivator: "Allow me to give you a sure and speedy cure for the bots: From 40 to 50 grains of quinine in one pint of brandy, then add one pint of water,-My experience in horses has been considera-ble of late, and I have seen a goodly number taken with the bots. I have also given the above remedy and in no case failed to cure."

To FATTEN FOWLS .- The best food for fattening fowls is potatoes mixed with meal .-Boil the potatoes and mash them fine while they are hot and mix the meal with them just before it is presented. They fatten on this diet in less than half the time ordinarily required to bring them to the same condition of excellence on corn or even meal itself.

Cost of Keeping Sheep .- The yearly expense of keeping sheep in Vermont is stated by a writer in the Patent Report at $1,30 per head. In Wiscousin it is put at 50 cents a head. In Missouri at 40 cents; in Maine at $1; in Virginia at 45 cents. The Shaker in Kentucky rate the cost there at from 50 to 75 cents per head.

SPIRIT OF TAR .- This is a useful application to the feet of sheep in foot-rot. It also has great effect when applied to the parts that have been struck by the fly. It destroys the meggots already formed, and no fly will deposite her eggs where this liquid has been WELVIL.—These troublesome pests may be kept out of the grain by using salt. Sprinkle a little fine salt on the bottom and around the sides of the bin as you fill up, and over the top when full. Wheat kept in old salt barrels will never be destroyed by the wesvil.

WIRE WORM .- This can be entirely extirpated, by using hog manure. So says a correspondent of the Rural New-Yorker.

Sunbury, Pa. The American PLEADERS' ASSISTANT: Being a collection of approved declarations, write returns and proceedings in the several actions now in use in the United tates.

BY COLLINSON REED, Esq., Ipsae legis niva nox

With notes and additions, together with a shor system of conveyancing. By A. Jordan, President Judge of the Eighth Judicial district of Since the publication of the book, the following etter has been received from Judge Pearson of Harrisburg: Hannisavan, June 30, 1853.

GENTLEMEN: After a careful examination of your "American pleaders assistant," I take pleasure in exsing my entire approval of composition of the precedents thus offered to the public. The legal profession in Pennsylvania stands in need of a correct system of pleoling. adapted to our habits of business, and the practice to a great extent, founded on the acts of assembly will be at aving of labor to the pleader, and conduce to safety and brevity in our pleadings.

It should be in the hands of every practisin lawyer in our state. JNO. J. PEARSON. Fan. A. Jordan, Wm. M. Rockefelier and M.

Shindel, Esquires. W. McCanty, Esq., Dear Sir:—I received more than a year ago copy of "Reed,s Pleaders' Assistant" improved by Judge Jordan and others. I examined it with ome care soon afterwards, and have had occation to use it several times since. I think it decidedly valuable as a manuel for practising attorneys in Pennsylvania, and do not hesitate to recommend it. If it were generally used it would increase the accuracy of the profession i matters which are often very carelessly done.

I am very truly yours, &c., J. S. BLACK.
I also received a copy of the Pleaders' Assistant, and have examined it sufficiently to enable me to concur very heartily in the above commendations by the Chief Justice.

GEO. W. WOODWARD.
