

Farmer's Department.

AN ASTOUNDING FACT. Elberg's Clothing Store Again! Elberg (late G. Elberg & Co.) wishes to announce to the inhabitants of Northumberland county, and the public in general, that he has removed his elegant and cheap Clothing Store a few doors east from the former store, to a new spacious building. The removal was necessitated by the former store being too small to facilitate the still increasing trade at small patronage. He is thankful for the past patronage, and he trusts for the future still more by serving you with accumulated fidelity and increased alacrity.

TO OFFICERS, SOLDIERS, SEAMEN, & OF ALL WARS: their Widows and Minor Children. H. B. MASSER, Attorney for Government Claims, Sunbury, Pa. CONTINUES to give prompt and particular attention to the presentation of Claims of every description against the Government, and to the collection of the same. He has been successful in procuring for many of our countrymen, and for the widows and minor children of those who have fallen in the late war, the full amount of their claims. He is now receiving applications for the same, and is prepared to receive and prosecute the same for all who are entitled to them. He is also receiving applications for the same, and is prepared to receive and prosecute the same for all who are entitled to them.

THE VEWEIL. IMPORTANT TO FARMERS. The editor of the Akron (Ohio) Beacon states that he has been informed by the proprietor of the "City Mills" of that place, that the farmers of Vermont are in the habit of heading the movement of the weevil, by a very simple process. The next season after it makes its appearance, they go through their wheat fields, and wherever the weevil is standing or heading, immediately after a shower or while the dew is on it, and scatter newly slacked lime broadcast, so that it will adhere to the heads and stems of the grain. Their wheat flour is consequently rendered free from the weevil, and the grain is saved. This is a simple process, and one that every farmer should know.

CULTURE OF ASPARAGUS. Asparagus is a plant that will bear an exceedingly rich soil, provided the manure is finely and thoroughly incorporated with the soil, and that plenty of room is needed for each individual plant, its large growth depending on this as an indispensable requisite. From our own observations we are inclined to think that for its market production, it should be in drills sufficiently remote to admit a narrow horse cultivator. A very common cause for small shoots, even in beds which have been sown in the spring, is the deep, in planting too thick or near together, and afterwards allowing the soil to be increased by the self-sowing process, numerous young plants spring up all over the bed. We would give three leading requisites of success, namely, good soil, good cultivation, and plenty of room.

A FACT IN REGARD TO DRILLING WHEAT. We wish to record a fact which seems rather remarkable in regard to drilling in wheat. We sowed about nine acres last fall, with one of Ross' Drills, and some three acres among corn, with a three-shovel cultivator. The former, we have not noticed a single plant leaved out with the frost during the winter, though a part of it was sown on the poorest clay land on the farm, with but one plowing. It was sown immediately before that amount, in a row, and the cuttings ten or twelve inches apart in the rows. Stick them perpendicular, leaving one or two buds above the ground. Cultivate them like corn, the first year, to keep clear of grass and weeds, and then let them go it. When prepared, they are worth from $6 to $8 a hundred pounds.

CULTIVATING THE OBER WILLOW. Although a little out of season to plant this year, the information will be ready for another season. To prepare land for the osier, or basket willow, plow deep, and prepare it as for corn; set the cuttings in rows, two and a half feet apart, and the cuttings ten or twelve inches apart in the rows. Stick them perpendicular, leaving one or two buds above the ground. Cultivate them like corn, the first year, to keep clear of grass and weeds, and then let them go it. When prepared, they are worth from $6 to $8 a hundred pounds.

CARE OF HORSES, &c.—Is not the practice of going to supper and leaving a team meanwhile in the field, without any refreshment, both cruel and injurious? Should a horse or ox ever be worked without being fed? Do not stretch? Does not colic very frequently take place from long fasting and greedy stuffing which is apt to follow it? Has not the death of some animals been owing to long fasting and its usual concomitants?

EXPANSION.—No farmer ought to be ignorant of the fact that iron expands by heat and contracts by cold. A knowledge of it can be used to advantage. Fires on wagons, and hoops on horseheads, put on when hot, will contract and become tight. All tools, where the wood handles are inserted into iron handles, will hold more firmly, if the metal is heated before inserting the wood.

JAMES MCCLINTOCK, M. D., Late Professor of Anatomy and Surgery at the Philadelphia College of Medicine, and Acting Professor of Anatomy at the University of Pennsylvania. He has been successful in procuring for many of our countrymen, and for the widows and minor children of those who have fallen in the late war, the full amount of their claims. He is now receiving applications for the same, and is prepared to receive and prosecute the same for all who are entitled to them.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND! HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. To the Citizens of the United States: I most heartily and sincerely thank you for the kind and generous notice which you have bestowed on my American Pills. I have been informed that these Pills are now being sold in the most distant parts of the United States, and I am glad to hear that they are so generally appreciated. I have no doubt that they will continue to be so, and I am confident that they will do much good for the suffering.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY (Conservative) THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig) THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Ch.) THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Liberal) BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.) The present editorial state of European affairs will render these publications unusually interesting during the following year. They will occupy a middle ground between the highly colored and the uncolored, the extreme and the moderate of the daily journals, and the ponderous Tomes of the future literature, written after the fashion of the ancient and modern historians. It is to these Periodicals that readers must turn for the most reliable and readable history of current events, and as such, in addition to their well-established literary, scientific, and theological character, we regard them as the most valuable of the reading public.
