BATTLE OF THE TCHERNAYA.

DESPATCHES FROM GENERAL PELISSIER. TRAKTIR-BRIDGE, Aug. 16, 10 P. M .- For some days rumors of a premeditated attack on the part of the Russians had aroused our attention, and they carried out their project this morning at daybreak, against our lines on the Tchernaya; but despite the concentration of imposing masses collected during the night, the enemy was repulsed with great vigor by the divisions of Gens. Herbillon, Camou, Faucheaux and Morris. The Sardinians, placed on our right, fought valiantly.

The principal effort of the enemy was directed against Traktir-bridge. The Russians left a great number of dead there, and we made a great many prisoners. They were in full retreat on Makenzie's Farm when our reserves were coming up, and those of our brave allies, especially the English cavalry. The enemy has received a severe check. Our losses, which are much less than those of the Russians, have not yet been accurately CRIMEA, the 18th, 10 P. M .- Prince Gort-schakoff has demanded an armistice to re-move the killed and wounded of the enemy from the field, which I have granted. The Russian losses surpass my first calculation. Lieutenant General Read has been killed. Our engineering works, protected by the admirably sustained fire from our artillery, are not disturbed by the Russian batteries, and have considerably advanced.

[The General Read whose death is reported was a very distinguished officer, and a year ago was discharging the duties of Imperial Lieutenant of the Caucasian provinces, in the absence of Prince Woronzoff, and before General Muravieff had been nominated his successor. The father of Gen. Read. born at Montrose, was a civil engineer, who entered the service of the Emperor Alexander in early life, and settled in Russia, where his son, afterwards General Read was born] CRIMEA, August 17, 11 30, P M.—In his attack yesterday, the enemy brought into the field five divisions, 6000 cavalry, and twenty batteries, with the firm intention of occupying the Tediouchine hills. The Russians having crossed the river at different points, had accumulated sapper tools, beams, planks, facines and ladders, which they abandoned in their flight. As usual, our artillery fought valiantly, and with success. An English battery of position, on the Piedmontese Hill, gave us most powerful assistance. The Russians left at least 2500 dead on the field; 38 of their officers and 1620 men are in our ambulances. Three Russian Generals are said to have been killed. We moreover made 400 prisoners. Our loss is 280 killed and 810 wounded. The

As they did not move for ward, we returned to our position. The loss is heavy on both sides.

THE RUSSIAN LOSS.

General Pelissier has been received by the French Minister of War :-"CRIMEA, Aug 19, 1 P. M .- It was no cessary to continue the armistice demanded yesterday by the Russians, from 5 A. M. to 2 P. M. to-day, for them to carry away their dead. The nearest enumeration we could make gives the following results .- Russians buried by the French, 2129; by the Russians.

To this despatch the Moniteur appends the following announcement :-- Theartillery has again opened fire against Sebastopol. error in a despatch led to the belief that another bombardment had commenced. This is not the case. This fire is that ofour guns. which, as has been seen, has powerfully contributed, since its re-commen facilitate the works of the approaches directed against the Malakoff works.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says :- "A private despatch from the French camp gives a few additional particulars about the affair of the Tchernaya, and explains, to a certain extent, the disproportion, remarked by every one, between the loss of the Allies and that of the enemy. It appears that the garrison of Sebastopol, as well as the army. are almost without provisions; they have scarcely a morsel of bread to eat, and they are in such a plight that, according to this despatch, one would say the Russian com mander-in-chief really desired to get rid of a considerable number of his men, from the sheer impossibility of feeding them. The enemy had to pass through a deep ravine to approach our lines, and while they did so they were actually mowed down by hundreds, by our gans and musketry. The Russians were not in a position to return our fire with ef fect, and did little more than fire in the air. They seem to have been sent forth as desperate men, to do the best they could. It was in the advance and retreat that they suffered most, and, but for the signal slaughter of the enemy, the affair could scarcely be called a battle. "If we do not take Sebastopol with our cannon," adds the despatch, "we shall do so, before long, by famine."

A rapid fire of shot and shell was kept up the gun-boats, and the range of the heavy batteries extended completely beyond the mortar vessels, but the continued motion of the gun-boats, and the able manner in which they were conducted by theofficers who commanded them, enabled them to return the fire with great spirit, and almost impunity, throughout the day. About 10 o'clock in the forenoon fires began to be observed in the different buildings, and a heavy explosion occurred about noon on the island of Gustafs. vard, inflicting much damage upon the defences of the enemy, and tending greatly to slacken the fire of the enemy's guns in that direction. The fire was kept up till three hours after sunset. At daylight on the morning of the 10th instant, the position of several of the mortar-vessels had been advanced within easier ranges, and the gun-boats were again directed to engage.

THE INQUISITION IN SCHUYLKILL COUNTY.

Our readers are no doubt aware, that they have also a swearing committee or Inquisi- the Hill church on account of the rain. tion in Schuylkill county, of which, it is supposed, the one in this county is a branch. The Schuylkill Inquisitors have had a good deal of trouble. They have already changed the oath to be taken by the candidates, several times. But still it will not suit in all cases, and some of them who could not swallow the whole pig, tail and all, were obliged to decline. This was the case of Mr. Frick, the candidate for Assembly-and it was graph. ago, at the election in this place, when some of the principal men of this faction, were hawking their own votes through the streets of Sunbury, offering to vote for the whig candidates, provided they could, in return, get a vote for one of their candidates for a county office. And it was only at the last October election that "all of them," as they acknowledge in their own organ the Gazette, voted for an open and avowed Know Nothing candi-Considering the extent of the injuries which the regularly nominated democratic candidate. And yet now they affect to have such conduct, that they would again vote the Know Nothing ticket, if anything could be made by the trade. One would have supposed that such a rebuke as when some of the districts refused to vote at | noon, there were 15 deaths. all, and other large districts only polled from three to ten votes, that they would have dis-

It will be remembered that one of the res olutions of the swearing committee's Inquisition, was, that no more votes should be received at the primary election, than had been polled at the General election, last October, for Governor Bigler. The Governor's vote was 2180. The highest vote for the Inquisition candidates was 547.

It was certainly a wise precautionary measure on the part of the Inquisitors, not to let them come too fast. It is probably not saying too much, that but for this prudent resolve, the vote for the candidates of the Inquisition might have reached six hundred, or about one fourth the vote polled for Gov-Bigler. The committee it seems were resolved to keep down the democratic vote to its smallest number. Justice requires us to say, and we are willing to put it on record, that the committee have done every thing in their power to accomplish that object. How well they have succeeded in reducing the democratic vote of this county, the result above mentioned, clearly shows. There never was a standing committee better organized for the purpose of reducing or curtailing votes, than the present. Give them one chance more in curtailing the vote, and we will venture to say that the result will more than equal the famous contest between the kilkenny cats, and scarcely a tail will be left.
