pretty well inaugurated throughout the south-western part of the State. We passed one train, composed of twenty or thirty families, traveling together for mutual protection.

previously arranged the matter, for Adjutant General Sneed furnished us a pass to the camp of Hon. John S. Phelps, where the boys of Gen. Lyon's been interested.

(From the Philadelphia "Press") Letter from "Occasional." WASHINGTON, Sept. 6, 1861. I am neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet, but I think we are on the road to a honorable and lasting peace.

Who is to be his successor remains to be seen. There is not one of all the banditti who may be called his equal. The Vice President, Stephens, with his feeble, fragile frame, cannot endure the weight of labor and of shame.

for constructing them in the frozen snow. The venison might be kept sweet until the hard frost sets in, and so preserved throughout the winter; but the Esquimaux takes little trouble in this matter.

THE GREAT PEACE PARTY. BY TICKLE WILLIS, ESQ. Peace must be our motto now, We're not quite ready for a row; When we are, we'll show you how; We are of the great peace party.

It appears that after the death of Gen. Lyon, which occurred about 9 o'clock on the morning of the battle, a body was placed in an ambulance for removal to the town, but the driver, or some one else, acting upon the principle that "a living ass is better than a dead lion," (no pun intended), laid it on the ground again, to make room for a wounded soldier, and there it remained till evening.

The General was killed by a small rifle ball, which passed entirely through his body, entering on the left side, in the region of the thigh, but continued to fight as though nothing had happened.

Mr. Calhoun the Originator of the Dissatisfaction. When the attempt is made day by day by the sympathizers with Secession to show that the South is not in the wrong, and that she is entitled to her independence, suddenly calling for an indignant manifestation on account of the election of a sectional President, and so entitled to generous forbearance at the hands of the more liberally disposed of the people of the United States.

Miscellaneous. (From the Cincinnati Gazette.) A VISIT TO A BATTLE-FIELD. Interesting Narrative of a Visit in Springfield, Missouri—Incidents and Observations.

The next morning we pushed on to a little town called Lebanon, sixty miles from Rolla, arriving about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

There still remain about seventy-five or one hundred unburied bodies upon the field of battle, besides a large number of horses.
