THE protection of Rebel property is exciting a great deal of feeling, and much exciting a great deal of feeling, and much complaint, both in the army and among the Banks and Sigel, he dismissed most of his people. Frequently the very villians where staff, and with the rest rode on to Martinsproperty is protected, as well as their wives and daughters, are the busy spies of Jeff. Davis. A dispatch from Washington says:

Two excursion parties from Washington to the army before Richmond, consisting of a number of Senators and Members of Congress from New York, Ohio, Maine, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, with Governor Pierpont, of Virginia, and others Gen. Summer, to whom he spoke his mind in the emphatic Wade language concerning the practice of guarding the property of rebels by soldiers in the Wational army. He told him that this was not the way in which the people desired the war to be conducted, and the Generals were trying the patience of the country too far. Gov. Pierpont expressed similar views, saying that the loyal people of Virginia demanded that every house, horse of the country too far. Gov. But there have been delusions in both South and North, which are now apparent, and which history will recognize. It is a de u ion, in the North to suppose the coexistence of free and slave States possible for any great length of time; it is a delusion in the North to suppose an aristocracy will not fight for its existence to the last end; it is a delusion in the North to suppose that the aristocracy relates only to the blacks: it is a delusion in the North to suppose that the South is materially weakened by the blacks; it is a delusion in the North to sup-pose the poor whites of the South will side with the North against their own aristocracy; finally, it is a delusion in the North to suppose that there are any means of pacifi-cation short of utterly subduing the aristoeracy of Slavery-or, what is equivalent, putting it completely under the feet of the Government, by disfranchising all the

On the other hand, the delusions of the South have been quite as numerous, and far more injurious. It was a great delusion in the South to suppose that secession was possible without war; it was a great delusion in the South to suppose there was any party at the North able, if willing, to assist them after they had fired on the national flag. It was a monstrous delusion to suppose that Cotton was King; it was a delusion to suppose that the North had no idea but that of trade; it was a delusion to sup-pose any foreign nation had any interest in fighting for a Southern rebellion; it was a great delusion to suppose that when the Cavalier is pitted against the Puritan, the Cavalier will not go down in the lattle. The spirit of Cromwell's soldiers still livesand lives to fight the last descendants of the Staarts or the Bourbons, wherever found on earth. The battle has been long—the battle may be long yet—but the order of castes, of slavery, of haughty aristocracy built upon the wrongs and plunder of the human race, must go down in the long conflict of ideas, and the terrible combat of embattled hosts. There will be an aristocracy while the world lasts, but it will be that which God madethe Aristocracy of Work, of exalted Virtue, and of noble Genius.

The pacification of the South will be easy, if it is done right, and not otherwise. Since the Southern States, as States, are at war with the Government, all the strengholds of the South-such as the great railroad points and large cities-must be held by military occupation; next the property of open rebels engaged in the war must be confiscated; thirdly, rebels must be disfranchised; fourthly, the State Governments must be reorganized by loyal citizens. This accomplishes three main things, viz: 1. Security for the future. 2. The reorganization of the State Governments; and 3. The ultimate exile and disfranchisement of the leading and active members of the political aristocracy. In a short time all commercial and agricultural operations will go on as usual. The leaven of rebellion will be destroyed; the causes of insurrection will cease, and the Union be restored. DEATH OF MRS. COL. ELLET .- At eight o'clock last evening, Mrs. Elvina Ellet, wife of the late Col. Eilet, died at her residence of the late Col. Ellet, died at her residence in this city, in the 46th year of her age.—She was the daughter of the late Judge Daniel, of Viginia, and brother of the present Judge Daniel on the same bench. She has had four children, all of whom are living.—She was present at the death of her husband, in Cale Ill. in Cairo, Ill., and came to the city with his remains. Her death was resulted from no disease, being mainly from pure exhaustion and grief. She will be intered at Laurel Hill Cometery. Philadelphia Inquire.

THE COAL TRADE. The quantity sent by Railroad this week is 63,089 07—by Canal 11,502—for the week 74,601 07 tons against 80,237 for the corresponding week last year.

The Reading Railroad Company has done wonders. The quantity transported to market this week is largely in excess of any Coffee, market thus week is largely in the opening of Sugar, former week's shipment since the opening of Rice, the Railroad.

The shipments by canal were for one day only, Thursday, but a large number of boats had accumulated at the landing since Satur-day last, and as soon as the rates of freight were arranged on Wednesday evening, the the bonts were rapidly loaded.

Much of the Coal sent to market this week was taken from the stocks piled at the mines the blunder of Gen. Benham, in making the and some portion of it is from the Lehigh Region, which passed over the Beaver Meadow, Quakake, Cattawissa, Little Schuylkill and Reading Railroads to market.

Said Mrs. Smith to Mrs. Brown.

As they were walking through the town,

Where do you do your shopping?

That dress you're for, so next and fine.

That when I see it, really mine.

Looks positively shocking. Tur sare your hosband. Mrs. Brown-

Now don't be augry, pout and frown— Is not so rich as mine. And yet you can afford to buy Just twice as mine, or more than I, And how, I cannot divine. And how, I cannot divine "
Says Mrs. Brown to Mrs. Smith:
The reason you'll be startled with,
It is so simple, clear—
You buy on credit, I for eash,
I buy bargains, you buy trash,
I cheap, while you pay dear.
"Whene'er you want a dress or shawl,
A collar, hose, or what-not, call
At the cheap Mannotn Sroam,
They'll sell you goods so very low
That you will cease to wonder so,
I tow much rich goods I've wore

How much rich goods I've wore My husband, as you truly my, Is poorer, far, than yours to-day, And yet I can buy meru,
