A true democrat can never be a copperhead, and the term is never applied to such, but only to those who profess democracy whilst in their actions, they violate every principle of the democracy inculcated by such men as Jefferson, Madison and Jack-Black slaves, 502.

Copperhead papers may be easily designated from truly democratic journals, by their views. They generally contain small treasonable paragraphs counselling opposition to the laws, and the action of the government. well known, according to which a general, when ordered to attack, replies that he is too weak, and reports that the enemy has heen reinforced and greatly out-numbers him. The report on the shaughter of Ball's Bluff is fot very clear. The only men who deserve credit in this affair, it seems, are those who died bravely on the field. So far as the report describes the preliminary orders and operations which resulted in the battle, they appear "all a muddle." General McClellan ordered a reconnoissance by General McCall from Drainesvill; then suggested to General Stone that, perhaps, this would "drive them (the rebels) away" from Leesburg ; and that, "perhaps a slight demonstration on your part will move them." On this Stone ordered a force across to make a demonstration. He says that he expected if attacked, to be supported by McCall; McCall appears to have known nothing of Stone's movement; Stone was nothing of Stone's movement; Stone was told nothing of McCall's operations; and as for General McClellan, having sent two independent Detachments across the river, and keft the commanders ignorant each of the world. independent Deinchments across the river, and left the commanders ignorant each of the other's orders or place, he appears to have dropped the whole matter there, and turned his attention to something else; for General Stone deposes that he "made dem-onstrations both at Edwards's Ferry and at Ball's Bluff, and promptly notified General McClellan of what he had done. He sent that information on Sunday night, and he testifies that he received no minimation from General McClellan as to what he demonstration or not; and received no intimation that Gen. McCall was not close at hand to come to his assistance, until about eleven o'clock on McCall was not close at hand to come to his assistance, until about eleven o'clock on Monday night." Concerning affairs in the West, the report gives Gen. Fremont credit for beginning the building of gunboats, for great activity and zeal in all the operations he had in hand, and his administration of military affairs "was eminently characterized by carnestness ability, and the most unquestionable loyalty. In the exercise of the almost unimited power delegated to bim there was no evidence of any tenderness towards treason, or any fail-ure to fully assert the dignity and power of the government of while he was the repre-ecutative."
