THE high price which Cream of Tartar semimanded in 1854, together with the absencing extent to which its dangerous adulteration had been carried, with other considerationa, induced the distinguished Chemist, whose name is given above, to come ensemble proved to be a long and laborious scientific research, to discover a desirable substitute therefor—like efforts were crossed with abundant success, and had proved to be a long and laborious scientific research, to discover a desirable substitute therefor—like efforts were crossed with abundant success, and hardless of the Substitute bave been sold and used during the last five years, throughout the I nited States and the Camadas.

The following true comparison of its nature and the results of its use, with those of Cream of Tartar, will convince the most incredulous of its value.

Cream of Tartar is a bi-tartrate of Potash.

This Substitute is a simple Phosphate, and contains nothing but what is found in beef-steak, and in corn, wheat and other cereals, and is therefore highly notitions. It also has a health-giving influence, and supplies that for which there is a constant demand in the cystem.
