HOW SHERIDAN ENTERED WEST POINT .ieutenant Commanding James Parker, Jr., f the United States gunboat Maumee, re-rived, when a lad, the appointment of a idet at West Point, from the member of ongress from his district in Ohio. Unforinately, Parker was too young to enter the cadeny, and his father, desirous that some ie in his town should have the benefit of e appointment, cast about for a boy worof it. In a dry-goods store was a lad, son of Irish parents, who, by his salary clerk, supported a widowed mother and ter. The place was offered to him, but s at first refused, as he disliked to give the clerkship. Upon being urged fur-r, the boy consented, and entered the litary acadamy. To-day he is in the Valof the Shenandoah, and his name is ilip Sheridan.
