

H. B. MASSEE, Editor & Proprietor, E. WILVERT, Publisher.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1865.

J. Barclay Harding, editor of the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, and Collector of Internal Revenue for the First district of Pennsylvania, died suddenly on the 29th ult. of congestion of the brain.

Secretary Seward has notified Governor Johnson, of Georgia, that no State can be recognized by the Executive as having resumed its relations of loyalty to the Union, unless it repudiates the debt it contracted to carry on the rebellion.

The two synods of the O. S. Presbyterian and German Reform Churches, in session at Lewisburg, adjourned last week. Among the notables was Rev. Jonathan C. Gibbs, a native of Pennsylvania, but educated in New England, a member of the Philadelphia Presbytery.

The death of Lord Palmerston, the Premier of the British Cabinet, is an important event in England. Lord John Russell, a sympathizer of the late rebellion will, no doubt, succeed him.

JEFF DAVIS. We are not among those who believe that Jeff Davis will be pardoned. President Johnson has clearly intimated, more than once, that his conviction is necessary. He may not be hung, which he really deserves, but his punishment should not be less than perpetual banishment.

A RAILWAY ON THE CORNWALL IRON MOUNTAIN. The Lebecon Advertiser says that one of the greatest engineering, scientific and mechanical feats in the country, is now being performed at Cornwall, in that county.

The great improvements now going on at Cornwall, are under the superintendence of A. Wilhelm, Esq., the manager of the Cornwall R.R. and William Coleman, de'd., and the other parties interested.

NATIONAL BANK NOTES.—It is frequently alleged that the issue of National bank notes has inflated the currency of the country. This is not so.

THE LATE RAILWAY ACCIDENT NEAR LANCASTER. The coroner's jury, after a protracted inquest on the railway road accident near this city on the 10th inst., rendered a verdict to-day finding that nine persons were killed in consequence of the front truck of the car which they occupied giving way and breaking through the equal of the track.

No Bounties to Colored Troops. The Secretary of War has, it is said, prohibited the payment of bounties to such of the colored troops as were not free on the 1st of April, 1864.

The 2d Pennsylvania Artillery have been cleared of garrison duty at Fortress Monroe by the 31st inst.

Intelligence has been received at the State department confirmatory of the reported induction of the cholera into England.

Dickinson on Johnson.

In his great speech at the Cooper Institute, New York, in the evening, Daniel S. Dickinson made a noble tribute to Andrew Johnson, and exposed the hollow pretensions of those Democrats who now claim the President as of their party.

He was a member of the House of Representatives when I had the honor of a seat in the Senate, and for seven years I was there I knew him well and watched his course carefully then and since, for there were passages in our history not dissimilar, those we were upon public questions, according to the old Jacksonian creed—finance, tariff, internal improvements, general economy of administration, non-intervention in the domestic concerns of States, government of Territories, &c.

THE CONFESSION HE MADE BEFORE HIS EXECUTION.

A Long List of Crimes as Perpetrated by Him. The day before the execution, Champ Ferguson made a confession to the local editor of the Nashville Dispatch, which he requested might not be published until after his death.

TERRIBLE CALAMITY.

Boiler Explosion on the Steamer St. John.

From the N. Y. Tribune, 30th ult. It again becomes the duty of the reporter to dip the pen in blood, and give a ghastly record of disaster.

TRILLING ACCOUNT BY AN EYE-WITNESS.

A gentleman who was on board the boat at the time of the explosion gives the following thrilling account: I think the accident occurred a few minutes before 6 in the morning. At least I remember that it was just 20 minutes before 6 when I arose from my berth to dress myself, as I thought we must be nearing the city.

JOHN CRABTREE.

I killed John Crabtree. I went to Miles' house in the night and stabbed him, and did another good job when I killed him. He was a murderous villain and he went to men's houses and shot them to get their money.

ROSEWELL TABER.

I killed Rosewell Taber as a bushwhacker. He had killed three of my men, a few days previous. He was in front of my house when I shot him. He ought to have been killed sooner.

NOT TROUBLED WITH HAUNTED DREAMS.

I am in good health and spirits. My sleep is undisturbed by dreams, and I have just concluded to give myself up to these good friends of mine around here, and if they are determined to hang me, it is all right. I would like to live for my family, but I have just all I have there. I am not worth a dollar. I do not feel death, but I love my family, and am grieved to leave them on the world without means. I have a firm belief in God and the future. A minister of the Presbyterian Church was here to-day. I am pleased to meet and talk with him. I was not surprised when the minister said to me, 'I am looking for it daily. If my family had plenty I could do without a murmur.'

plision. The impulse which nearly all of them obeyed, upon being rudely awakened and terrified by the shriek, was to spring to the floor, and their screams and yells as their feet went ankle-deep into the scalding liquid are literally indescribable.

One man, in his agony, tried to pull me from my perch; but, by repeated directions, I at length induced him to get upon a chair. I saw a mother, with a little child on either arm, who, I fancy, appeared to be a stranger, and every time she would lift up her naked feet I could see that they were boiled to a crimson hue.

I might relate numerous other instances, but, in all conscience, the above are horrible enough. The water subsided very rapidly—It having all run out in a very few minutes after its first appearance. But the groans and shrieks of the scalded and mutilated was the most dreadful experience of my life.

CHAMP FERGUSON.

THE CONFESSION HE MADE BEFORE HIS EXECUTION.

A Long List of Crimes as Perpetrated by Him. The day before the execution, Champ Ferguson made a confession to the local editor of the Nashville Dispatch, which he requested might not be published until after his death.

The case of Frogg is another in which I am falsely placed. The circumstances are well known to many in that neighborhood. He was with the Home Guard, and I assisted my avocation as a farmer. Not satisfied with this he hid in wait on the high-ways to kill me. He even went so far as to make his threats to the neighbors that he intended to kill me.

He said, in answer to a question, that "if he lived" until the 30th of November he would be forty-four years of age. He was killed by the rebels in the manner of death; it all amounts to the same thing in the end. I surrendered to General Thomas on the letter or order sent to all armed bands, with the rest. I did not think they would treat me as they have done. I am the same man that I was before the war, and my intentions are the same, and will be to the last minute of my life.

I was a Southern man at the start. I am yet, and will die a rebel. I believe I am right in all I did. I do not think I did anything wrong at any time. I committed my duty in the course of the war, and I believe I killed a good many men of course; I don't deny that, but never killed a man whom I did not know was seeking my life. It is false that I never took any prisoners. I have taken a good many, and after keeping them awhile paroled them, and I will repeat that I did a great deal of good to the Union by that means. The crop of 1865 will not exceed One Million bales, and will fall decidedly below that amount.

COTTON-PLANTING.

Gen. Lorenzo Thomas, we hear, will soon resign the post of Adjutant-General of the army of the United States to engage actively in Cotton-planting on the lower Mississippi. Gen. Dick Taylor, late of the Rebel army, is engaged to direct and oversee a still more comprehensive Cotton-planting enterprise in the same region.

They are right. It is now morally certain that all the Cotton in the Country on the day of Johnston's surrender did not exceed Two Millions of bales, most of which has since changed hands, and a good part of it has been sold or is to be sold at the nearest railroad station or steamboat landing for an average of not less than 32 cents (gold standard) per pound, or $120 per bale—that is, for an aggregate of Six Hundred and Fifty Millions of Dollars.

ARE NEWSPAPERS NECESSARY?

It is the opinion of the Rev. Mr. Stubbs, published in the Protestant Episcopal Convention, that "a newspaper is a nuisance, and that any diocese would be a model one which did not have any." Bold and uncompromising as this dogma may seem in this age and country of multitudinous publications, so far from being fresh, original, and, as we may say, Stobsonian, it is a veritable antique, with which our modern and fish-like age, and has been entertained and avowed by many priests, prelates and philosophers, under many circumstances, in many forms, and in many countries.

The view of journalism entertained by the Rev. Mr. Stubbs is a good, sound, and Old Dominion piece of opinion, which was aired long ago in Congress by Henry A. Wise, who thanked God that there were no newspapers in his diocese—we mean his district. We believe that he rather than else objected to school houses also, and held the sentiments of Mr. Johnson, and regard to read, and teaching. Whether he is equally hostile to pulpits, we do not know—but he might have been, unless he were fortunate enough to secure the services of the Rev. Mr. Stubbs, from whose lips nothing dangerous nor deorganizing could possibly fall.
