We confess we were somewhat surprised, as well as amused, at the cool assurance of Mr. Porter in making such a declaration, and we thought, by the twinkle in the Judge's eye, that he also enjoyed the joke. There is an old adage, that it takes all kinds of people to make a world, and Mr. Porter is unquestionably one of them. If his genius is not of that stamp, that made Washington great or Jeff. Davis infamous, it gave him at least the ascendency in his own sphere of action.

Mr. Porter is a member of the Bar in this county, as every one who attends Court is presumed to know, unless he is blind, or deaf as an adder. In stature and appearance Mr. Porter has been reminded that he bore some remote resemblance to Henry Clay. In intellect there was supposed to be a slight difference. In manners, had he been cotemporaneous with Chesterfield, he might have figured as a character, if not as a model, in the works of that accomplished nobleman. In logic he would have astonished, if not overwhelmed Webster. There are some things, however, that Mr. Porter should never attempt. He should never undertake to discuss the principles of moral philosophy. Although Paley was successful it does The English profess to sympathise with Italy military movements more secret than any not follow that he would succeed in a sub-

CLYMER'S RECORD .- On the 5th of January, 1864, the following resolution was before the Senate, and Heister Clymer voted in the negative : "Resolved by the Senate, That the thanks of the loyal people of Pennsylvania are due, and are hereby tendered, to General U.S. Grant, and the officers and soldiers serving under him, for the series of gallant services and glorious victories resulting in the liberation of the faithful Union people of East Tennessee from a military despotism more galling than ever was that of Great Britain."

The vote stood 16 to 16, and the resolu ion was lost. The "gallant service" which opened the gates of East Tennessee, was the fierce fought field of Chickamaugua. The soldiers of this county know all about that battle, rebels; and it is just such men as Clymer, that by word and action, by sympathy and support, encouraged the traitors to hold out year after year with the hope of final tri-umph. With two such candidates there can be no question as to who will be the victor.

The "Boys in Blue" are still leading the storm the Copperhead entrenchments next October, and compel Clymer to an uncondi-tional surrender, and his party to a Waterloo

THE LATE MR. SEATON .- Mr. Charles Lanman contributes to the Round Table a paper suggested by the death of Mr. W. W. Seaton, in which occur the following paragraphs :

"In the magazine article already alluded to the fact is stated that for more than onemarket. third of a century the two owners and editors of the Intelligencer had never had a set-tlement of accounts, but that each member of the firm had drawn from the common fund what money he desired. In that connection I will here mention a few remarkable business particulars, as follows : Between the years 1825 and 1859, both inclusive, the monthly expenses of the National Intelligencer averaged $4,000, or $1,680,000 for the whole period. The amount drawn out by Mr. Gales during that time for his personal ex-penses was $617,270.40, and by Mr. Seaton attempt the laying of the Atlantic cable. $219,371.14, making together $836,641.54, or a grand total of moneys disbursed by the office in thirty-five years, $2,516,641.54. Of Intelligencer alone, but were greatly enhanced by the various congressional publications which bore the imprint of Gales & Seaton. After the death of Mr. Gales the office was found indebted to Mr. Scator in the sum of $70,000, which was presented by him to the widow of his late partner. "Perhaps the most intimate friend that Daniel Webster had in Washington was Mr.

Seaton. There was no one, out of his own family, to whom the great statesman was so warmly attached. A part of almost every evening, when not engaged at home or else-where, was spent by him in the family sitting-room of Mr. Seaton, with the ladies of his family, or tete a-tete with him in winter at the fire side, or in evening strolls in sum-mer. The letters and familiar notes that passed between them are numerous and in-teresting; and, as the eyes of the world are of this county know all about that battle, and the sequence of fights that followed it. This resolution was a vote of thanks by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the 77th, 78th and 79th Pennsylvania regiments of infantry, and the numerous Lancements of After it was returned and control of the world are at this moment especially fixed upon Aus-tria, we may with propriety give the follow-ing incident. The day before the famous Mr. Webster sent it to Mr. Seaton to read. it was to be sent to the Senate, it occurred to Mr. Seaton that the word patch, as appli-ed to a great empire, would appear rather undiplomatic or beneath the dignity of such a state paper, and like an attempt to belittle an adversary government, and therefore he despatched a note to Mr. Webster suggest-ing, if not too late, the substitution of ano-
