POETICAL. ASK ME NOT TO DRINK. Fair lady, ask me not to drink A toast to thee tonight; For broken vows and blasted hopes The demonia throng and sigh; Put back the wine—I dare not taste— Put back the sparkling bowl; For we have not, but I have longed so deep, And reached a blinding goal.

Oh! ask me not, therefore, within A poison deep and dire! And every drop but serves the more To drive the demonia throng; Each draught will quench my sense of guilt, And mortal youth's halting hope; Each will sink me deeper still, In its insidious snare.

Oh! press me not to touch the cup, Unless in glowing eyes, And smiling lips, hungry babes, And frothing wine; Whom the gods destroy they first make drunk, Then ask me not to drink; Oh, tempt me not, but spurn my soul From death's eternal brink.

Another sphere where early woe The willows is the vale; And all bright whistles and whistles, Come on the sighing gale. So passed away as summer's breath, As a ray of morning's dew; Then tempt me not, I would not mar Her slumbers in the tomb.

WHAT IS THE USE. What is the use of trimming a lamp, If you never intend to light it? If you never intend to trim it, If you never intend to light it? If you never intend to trim it?

What is the use of renovating your hat, If you do not intend to wear it? If you never intend to renovate it, If you do not intend to wear it?

What is the use of buying a coat, If you do not intend to wear it? What is the use of buying a house for two, If you never intend to live in it?

What is the use of gathering gold, If you do not intend to keep it? What is the use of planting a field, If you never intend to reap it?

What is the use of buying a book, If you do not intend to read it? What is the use of eating a cracker, if you never intend to use it?

MISCELLANEOUS. An Eventful Seven Years to Come. We have received a copy of a book which ought to interest journalists, inasmuch as it tells them beforehand of a very eventful, or to vulgar phrase, "rich" seven years to be lived by the writer, which, when the year of the "National Restoration of the Jews to Palestine by a Seven Years' Covenant or League, to be made between many of them and the Emperor Napoleon." About the same time there is to be a "Congress of the Holy Spirit," in England, under Napoleon's auspices, and ensuing rapid progress of the Roman Imperial world toward its final reckoning day, involving a complete reconstruction of the map of Europe. This is perhaps the conference which Napoleon is now trying to get up.

Next year, according to him, is to witness the "National Restoration of the Jews to Palestine by a Seven Years' Covenant or League, to be made between many of them and the Emperor Napoleon." We have taken the above predictions in print from the Philadelphia, the great depot of false war news from 1865 to 1867. It has frontispiece a portrait of the Emperor Napoleon, who looks as though his breakfast had not agreed with him. Speaking after the manner of profane journalists, we should say that if the author has correctly forecast events, the newspapers will have lively times during the next seven years; the illustrated weeklies will be worth binding up for future reference; and the Atlantic Cable will no doubt tell us daily what the London Times thinks of passing events.—N. Y. Evening Post.

[From the Levenworth Commercial.] Miraculous Discovery in Montana—Ancient Indian Relics. A most wonderful story reaches us from Montana; a tale which we should hardly credit, were it not related to us by one of the gentlemen we consider worthy of credence. The gentleman who related the circumstance to us came down by the steamer yesterday, and had himself conversed with Mr. Edward Parsons, one of the lucky adventurers, who gave him the following particulars:

In July last a company of five prospectors was made up in Helena, who having heard of the unexplored country around the head of the Yellowstone, determined to visit that district in search of lodges. The country was found to be almost entirely free from obstructions, and they made abundance of game until they arrived within two days' journey of Yellowstone Lake, when the scene entirely changed, the country being entirely barren, and permeated in every direction with hot springs and fissures in the rock, from which issued smoke and noxious gas.

Continuing their journey through a scorching atmosphere, and encountering some peril among the rough and irregular ridges of bare rocks, which everywhere distinguished the landscape, the travelers on the third day, came to the margin of a lake, from which issued a river, which they judged would lead to the Yellowstone. After following the stream for some time, they came to a long, irregular mound, crowned on the summit by an ancient "Carn" similar to those seen in some parts of New Mexico, which was built concealed in grass and a growth of low bushes.

As the work of removing the stone did not appear to be a difficult one, they being unencumbered and of medium size, it was proposed to open the "Carn," which was done after half a day's labor, and below was found a solid wooden floor, which extended hollow to the treard. Being determined to complete their work, the travelers, after some labor, dug down some twelve inches, when they came to an immense stone, seven feet long, which took the united strength of the party to remove. Beneath there was found a box containing a number of articles, the contents of which were not ascertained, it being too dark, it was seen that an Indian catamount had been unearthed.

Scattered in a single row around the quadrangle were the remains of upwards of thirty arrows, from whose fletchings the shafts were long and slender, and whose very barbs crumbled into dust at the touch of the spectator. On the floor around lay numerous instruments of war or chase, some of iron and some of stone, and the entire apartment was covered with a fine and almost impalpable dust, which was all that remained of the furs and robes with which this abode of death had doubtless, at one time, been carpeted.

Lying beside the bones were numerous ornaments, indicating the rank of the dead, and among them were many of those twisted articles of gold known in antiquarians as bezels, which had at one time encircled the necks and the arms of their savage owners. Some of these were of unusual size, weighing one and a half to two pounds, and many minor ornaments of the same precious metal were also secured by the happy finders.
