BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL

DR. JOHNSTON,

Physician of this celebrated Institution, has discovered the most certain, speedy, pleasant and effectual remedy in the world for all DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE.

Weakness of the Back or Limbs, Strictnren, Affections of Klidneys and Bladder, Involuntary Discharges, Impotency, General Debillty, Nervousness, Dyspepsy, Languor, Low Spirits, Confusion of Ideas, Palpitation of the Heart, Timidity, Tremblings, Dimness of Sight or Giddiness, Disease of the Head, Throat, Nose or Skin, Affections of Liver, Lungs, Stomach or Bowels—these terrible Disordera arising from the Solitary Habits of Youth—those secret and solitary practices more fatal to their secret and solitary practices more fatal to their victims than the song of Syrens to the Mariners of Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes of anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., imposof anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible.

FOUNG MEN
especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.

Married Persons or Young Men contemplating marriage, aware of Physical Weakness, (Loss of Procreative Power—Impotency), Nervous Excitability, Palpitation, Organic Weakness, Nervous Debility, or any other Disqualification, speedily relieved.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. J. may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely uroon his skill as a Physician.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS, Impotency, Loss of Power; immediately Cured and full Vigor Restored.

This Distressing Affection—which renders Life This Distressing Affection—which renders Life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgences. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived the pleasures of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms to both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions Weakened, Loss of Procreative Power, Nervous Irritability, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Constitutional Debility, a Wasting of the Frame, Cough, Consumption, Decay and Death.

A CURE WARRANTED IN TWO DAYS.

A CURE WARRANTED IN TWO DAYS.
Persons rulned in health by unlearned pretenders who keep them trifling month after month, taking poisonous and injurious compounds, should apply immediately.

DR. JOHNSTON,
Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduated from one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose ife has been spent in the hospitals of London, Pris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and cars when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

immediately.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.

THESE are some of the sad and melanchely effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Back and Read, Dinness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Papitation of the Heart, Dyspepsy, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumetion, etc.

clis produced.

Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health, losing their vigor, becoming, weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of consumptions.

YOUNG MEN Who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone, a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should analy immediately.

apply immediately.
What a pity that a young man, the hope of his what a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the darling of his parents, should be smatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life, by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons MYST, before contemplating MARRIAGE, reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote comutsial happiness. Indeed without these, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection, that the happiness of another becomes blighted with our own.

becomes blighted with our own.

A CERTAIN DISEASE.

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame, or dread of discovery, deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, noctural pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremiffes, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commiscration, till death pats a period to his dreadful suffering, by sending him to "that Undiscovered Country from whence no traveller returns."

It is a melaneholy fact that thousands DIE richus to this terrible disease, through find the found suppoposite his mod occupied look.

The many thousands cured at this Establishment, year after year, and the numerous haportani Burgical Operations performed by Dr. Johnston, witnessed by the representatives of the press and many other papers, notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and responsibility, is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted.

latter overtook Tom Shelly.

'She's a high-toned little piece, Shelly, he said.
'Who? Oh yes! Miss Ware. She is to be gone for a long time, I believe?

'All winter.'
Tom sighed. He looked at his rusty clothes, and contrasted them with the elegant suit of his companion. 'She's pretty proud isn't she!'
'Proud as Lucifer's sister—ifhe had one, laughed Wentworth. 'Though I don't know as I ought to say that, I think a good deal of her myself.'

'You do?'

'Yes—she's my cousin, you know.'
'She is very beautiful.'
'And she knows it too.'
Tom was silent. He did not feel capable of maintaining his care less tone; so he looked straight ahead, and planted his heels on the pavement with vigor as he heels on the pavement with vigor as he stepped.

'They say you're the best man in Dunning's machine-shop, Shelly. How's that?'

'Curse the machine-shop and its grease and dirt!' exclaimed Shelly. 'I wish I'd chosen some more genteel business.'

'Well, it isn't as neat as it might be, to be sure. But still when you get up to the be sure. But still, when you get up to the top its all right. Look at Dunning—how he stands in the community. He began by kindling the fires, you know.'

Here the two turned off in different directions. Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, &c.

MENTALLY—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded—Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evilforebodings, Aversion to Society, Self-Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced. Ware talked about, and to meditate, on whatever concerned her in near or remote degree. He watched by stealth her smiles, and was angry with all the world because he could not resist the infatuation. For he ought to have dismissed her from his thought with contempt after she refused one night to go to a concert with him be-cause he did not dress well enough. He was wounded and cut; but the circum-stance did not bring common-sense to his head. He sulked, and toiled, and hoped with a miserable, doubting hope, and pocketed his fifteen dollars a week, and was still an abject slave. Miss Ware was going to New York to spend the winter with a wealthy aunt, and now he had her last words to think of-a command to go back to his greasy machine-When he left the shop that night it was to walk home with slew steps and a thought ful face. Luminations in which there were gleams of sense, energy, and purpose ran through his head.

He found supper waiting, and sat down opposite his mother with an absent, pre-'Are you tired, Tom ?' 'No, not particularly.'
'I thought you looked so.'
'Dunning began at the bottom, didn't he, mother? And why can't I work up to where he stands now? Yes, Wentworth was right. I'll do it!

'Do what, Tom ?' 'Oh, nothing-only I'm not going to stand at the lathe all my life-I can tell you that.' 'Why, what's the matter, Tom! Aren't you doing very well now?'
'No. I'm nothing but a greasy, begrim-med laborer. But I'll make my mark yet, or give up the ghost.'

'Mercy! don't talk so. I thought you were very well satisfied.'
'Satisfied!' contemptuously. 'It is wrong to murmur against one's lot. We ought to be thankful-'Dont mention the word 'thankful' to me! Pardon me, mother, I don't mean to speak unkindly; but—well, there's going to be a change; that's all.'

'You don't mean that you are going to leave Mr. Dunning ? 'No, no' 'What was it about, Mr. Wentworth 'Oh, I met him to day'-Tom blushed and he reminded me of how Dunning began as a chore-boy, and of the way he stands now. And I thought, why can't one do it as well as onother? Why can't Tom looked at his mother in a deflant, 'l'm sure I don't know,' she replied lightly nonplussed. 'But you shouldn't deceive yourself by building air catchers.'

'I'll take care of that. But I've got an dea that I mean to work out. It may

One August day Mr. Dunning said : Shelley, you are entitled to a vacation, and you look as though you needed it. Go off for a couple of weeks. Your pay shall

'I don't want it now, sir. I'm all right.'

'Ah, but I am afraid your not all right. You are pale and thin.'

'I would prefer to word on for the present,' presisted Tom. 'I may want a vacation before long. I'll ask for it when I do.'

'All right. Don't be afraid to mention it. Only don't wait till the busy season.'

For the next three months Tom stuck later than ever to his little workshop evenings, and oftn toiled there until the wee, small hours were toiled out by the lenely, solemn town clock.

small hours were toiled out by the lenely, solemn town clock.

At the end of that time he went to Mr. Dunning with bright, almost kappy looking eyes. Yet he had a jaded, exhausted air. 'Now, sir, I want my vacation.' 'Whew!' said Mr. Dunning. 'We've just got in some big orders, you know.' 'I can't help it, sir. I must have a week.' 'You must?'

'You must?'

'You must?'
'I'm sorry, sir; but rather than not have it I'd throw up my place.'
'Why, what's the row, Shelley? Anything going wrong?'
'No, sir. I hope you will pardon my persistence, but can I go for a week?'
'Well, yes,' said Mr. Dunning, reflectively, 'I suppose so. You ought to have taken it in the week, you shall have it?'
That night Tom packed something very That night Tom packed something very carefully in a small box, bade his mother good-by, and started for Washington.

'Upon my word, Shelly, I did not know there was so much in you!'
Tom Shelley and Mr. Dunning were closeted together in the latter's private office with some papers spread out before them, and a small brass model of a machine standing on the desk.
'Well, sir, since you approve of it, and think it likely to answer its purpose, suppose we talk business. 'Business.' 'Yes. You have capital and I have the patent. There's money in the machine, but it will take money to bring it out."

'Very true,'
'Well, your capital in these works is one hundred thousand dollars. I'll put in my invention at fifty thousand, and own one third of the establishment.'
Ah! I should think you might!' 'Or, if you like, I will travel two months, and see how the thing is likely to take before we make any agreement.'
'Don't you think you've got your ideas up rather high on the matter?'

'Perhaps I have,' answered Tom, coolly 'but I don't propose to go begging, and let others grow rich out of what I ought to have.

Such things are all experiments-great

I know it is, sir ; but you see what it is and the need it supplies, and it is for you to say whether you will run the risk of taking hold of it.'

Mr. Dunning paused and reflected. 'I will look the matter over, he said at length, 'and you may come here to-morrow even-

This was as satisfactory as Tom could have expected, and so be withdrew. When he went home he asked his moth-er (to who he had confided maught of his plans) how she would like to live in Judge

'The Judge is going to Europe, and wants to sell.' 'What is that to us, Tom? We can't buy his house.'
'Well, we may be able to some time. 'Some time! What a way you have of looking ahead, Tom!'

Graham's house on Main street.

Tom went up stairs, threw himself back in a chair, and took Lucy Ware's button out. He fingered the memente over and over, gazed on it, and fically pressed it to his lips stealthily, as if he feared some one might be looking. Then he wondered what Mr. Dunning's decision might be, and resolved in his night the contingencies of solved in his mind all the contingencies of success or failure. He slept but little that night, for his whole future hung on the interview of twenty-four hours hence.

'What is it, Tom?'
'I can't tell you now. You know that brains sometimes make more money than hands. If I could only invent something.'
Mrs Shelly shook her head doubtfully. Inventors are generally hare-brained creatures.'
'Not by a good deal! You ought to be ashamed to slander them. Think of what they have done for the world.'
Tom left the table with his meal but half finished, and threw himself down on the couch. Putting his hand in his pocket, it came in contact with something that sent came in contact with acmething that sent a crimson flood to his face. But in spite of the wild center into which his blood was fired, he bade her good evening, touched her gloved palm, and uttered some common-place remark with very praiseworthy nonchalance.

Just then a set was forming to dance, and one couple was warting. Of course Tom asked Miss Ware for the honor, etc., and the two marched on the floor.

'Oh, certainly, if yon take enough intercet in me to feel any pleasure at it.'

'Why, of course I de. I always feel interested in those deserving of success.'

Her tone was charmingly frank now.

'Oh, that's it, is it?' said Tom, a little disappointed. The sparkle in Miss Ware's eyes dilated a little.

'Well, I got it by hard work,' he said.' I went back to my greasy machine-shop that time, as you bid me.'

'What do you mean?'

'Have you forgotton about it? It was when you went to New York visit you aunt. Rou lost your button at the depot, you know, and told me to go back to my greasy

Miss Ware blushed scarlet. 'Oh, do not speak of that. It was very rude in me. I supposed you had forgotten it. I was only in fun.'

'But I wasn't.' Tom's tone was rather stern, and Lucy looked up quickly. 'I made a vow then.' 'Oh dear! I hope I wasn't the means of yonr making a vow.'

'Do you? And suppose you were—what then? If there anything so very alarming about making vows? 'I don't knew. They're so very seldon kept.'
Ah, but this one is partially fulfilled already, and will be entirely some time.

That is, only one thing can prevent it.'
Miss Lucy did not ask what that one thing was, but grew reserved, and during the rest of the quadrill did not look into Tom's face with her previous unembarrassed freedom. The conversation had been carried on disjointedly during the pauses in the dancing. When the last tigure was finishing Miss Ware said:

where a merry throng of boys and girls were partaking of the picasures of that old and exciting game, 'Button! button! who's got the button?' 'That's a good old game,' said Lucy, glancing at the chidren.
'Button! button! who's got the button?'

Lucy Ware had looked up at Tom in surprise What made you say that ?'she asked. 'Cecause it is true,' he answard, looking it her with mischiovous twitch of the eye. Miss Lucy looked puzzled.

'Do you want to see it?'
'Yes she answerd with a doubtful look. He reached in his pocket, and help something out in his hand.
'Why,' she exclaimed in amazemen,' that's mine! Where did you get it? It's the one I lost.

'I know it.'
She blushed vividls, and was utterly nystfied. 'Please explain,' she said.
'Oh, there's not much to explan. I pick ed it up when you lost it that time.

'And wby did you not give it to me!'
'I preferred to keep it. I took it to my reasy machine-shop. Please don'th Tom laughed and grew immediately sesious again. He had to screw his courage up to the sticking point to utter the next words.

'Oh! And Miss Lucy hid her face in her hands, while her heart beat violently. 'And I haven't got over it yet!' he said, boidly.

This was a very audacious remark' and Tom had to take breath after it. Miss Ware also breathed audibly. But she did not spurn him with indignation—no, far from it. Tom finally said, in a veice a trifle nu-
