CHARCOAL FOR SICK CATTLE. -- Nearly all animals become sick from improper cating. In nine cases out of ten, the digestion wrong. Charcoal is the most efficient and rapid corrective. It will cure in a majority of cases, if properly administered. An example of its use :- the hired mancame in with the intelligence that one of the finest cows was very sick, and a kind neighbor proposed the usual drugs and poisons. The owner being ill and unable to examine the cow concluded that the trouble came from some overeating, and ordered a teacup of pulverized charcoal given in water. It was mixed, placed in a junk bottle, the head held upwards and the ater with its charcoal poured downwards. In five minutes an improvement was visible, and in a few hours the animal was in the pasture quietly eating grass. Another instance of equal success occurred with a young heifer, which became badly bloated by eating green apples after a hard wind. The bloat was so severe that the sides were almost as hard as a barrel. The old remedy, salaratus, was tried for the purpose of correcting the acidity. But the attempt to put it down always caused coughing and it did ittie good. Half a teacupful of fresh powdered charcoal was next given. In six hours all the appearance of bloat had gone and the heifer was well.—Country Gentle-

THE COW'S INTELLIGENCE .- That cows have memory, language, signs, and means of enjoying pleasant associations, or combining for aggressive purposes, has been recognized, but scarcely to the extent the subject merits. Travelling in Italy, many years ago, we visited some of the large dairy farms in the neighborhood of Ferara. Interposed upon much low-lying unhealthy land, remarkable for the prevalence on it of very fatal forms of anthax in the summer season, are fine undulating pasture lands, and the fields are of great extent. We happened to stop at a farm house one fine summer afternoon when the cows were about to be milked. A herd of one hundred were grazing homeward. The women took their positions with stool and pail close to the house, and as the cows approached names were called, which we thought addressed to the milkmaids, at first. Rosa, Florenza, Gilio, Sopsa, and many other names which were not noted by us at the time, were called out by the overseer, or one of the women, and we were astonished to see how cow after cow ceased feeding or chewing the cud, and made direct, sometimes on a trot, for the woman who usually milked her. The practice, we found, was not confined to one farm; all the cows on each farm knew their respective names, and took up their position in the lot just as readily as the individual members of some large herd in the country, returning from the fields, take their places in the shed .- Milk Journal,

REMEDY FOR OVERFLOW OF THE GALL. -A sure preventive of the overflowing of the gall in cattle is soot and salt, given in equal quantities once a week, or as occa-sion may require. If soot is not conve-nient, copperas with salt to the amount of one teaspoonful to a creature, answers a good purpose. When cattle get very weak from the effect of this disease (which they sometimes will in the best condition.) take eggs, turn out the whites, and fill the shell with soot, and give three at a time, three mornings in succession, and then omit three, and so on until you have given three times, which has always effected a cure. A symptom of the disease is a dull, sunken eye, discharging a yellowish watery substance.

REMEDY FOR SORE SHOULDERS .- A correspondent of the Canada Farmer writes relative to sore or galled shoulders of horses: - "Wash them well every night and morning with a strong solution of oak bark, made by boiling the bark in water, then rub them well with linseed oil. Anoint them every night and morning with a salve made of three parts of linseed oll and one part of quick-lime. To make horses' shoulders though, wash the shoultier well twice a day, for a week before working, with working with the oak bark

To the Citizens:—Recent investigations demonstrate that Gas of 14 Candles quality, can be sold at $2.00 per 1000 cuble feet. The Directors of the Sunbury Gas Company have determined to adopt that price and 14 Candles as the standard of quality. This fixes the price of a 14 Candle burner at one cent an hour, or one-third less than Philadelphia gas.

A Kerosene lamp gives a light of seven to ten candles only—therefore, gas at the above price is much cheaper than kerosene, without causidering cost of chimneys and llability to accident. Let all come forward and become gass consumers. Make your applications for service pipes
