ELYSBURG, PA., March 25th, 1875.

Having noticed in the paper, the brief state ment made by the good people of Elysburg, re-lative to their institution, and feeling a great inundersigned, representing some of the students formerly in attendance at the Elysburg Acade my, now in the field of teaching, respectfully write in endorsing what has been said in the Cash market value of real estate statement referred to. A sense of duty which we own to Mr. Bartholomew, as a benefactor, compels us to take this method of expressing to him-the high regard we have for him personally, and of acknowledging ourselves debtor to him and the Institution of which he is the head. We have been referred to as evidence of the success of the Institution; whether we bear testimony to that fact or not is a matter left for others to decide, but we do testify as to the tho-roughness and practicability of the course of study pursued in the Elysburg Academy. The excellent discipline maintained in this Institution, and the thorough and practical training instilled
