Zed. came, and was astonished. He had never been in a big hotel before. The gaudy carpets; the spacious halls; the staring mirrors, and the bright pictures bewildered him. He went up into Peters private room, where he gave vent to his won-

'Crotch all broomsticks !" he exclaimed, "it is the tarnalest place I ever did see. I should think you would be flambusterfecated in such a tangle of gewgaws."

'O, it's nothing when you get used to it, Zed. You ought to travel.'

'What-on them pesky steam ingines and ships? Not's you knows on. I read enough about 'em in dad's paper.' 'Well, well-enjoy yourself as you can, old fellow. 'That's jest what I mean to do.' 'You'll take dinner with me ?'

'If you say so-yans.'
'Won't you have a little drop of some thing warming before dinner ?" "Eh? D'ye mean tod?

'Yes.' 'Sartin I will. Where'll we git it ?' "We'll call for it."

'Who'll ye call ?' 'Just you pull that cord that hangs by your elbow.' . Zed. reached for the bell-cord and gave it a smart pull, and at that instant the gong sounded for dinner :- Whir-r-r-rang -- crash-bang-bang-bang! The din was frightful, penetrating to every corner of the big house and shaking the very walls. Zedekiah leaped to his feet, pale and quivering. 'What have I done?' he gasped. 'What the thunder did you tell me to pull that rope for ? O, Pete ! Pete !- What is it ?' Just then Mr. Dow opened the door, and looked in, asking rather hurriedly,

'What is wanted ?' 'Noth'n !' blurted Zed.

'You rang the bell, didn't you?' 'Biast your old bell ! there haint nobody ouched a bell. I haint seed no bell. If there's been a smash don't com a lookin' for it here, 'cause nobody in this ere room ever did it, I swan !'

Dow, in perplexity, turned to Peter and asked him if his bell had not been rung. Zed, fearful that his cousin might own up, sprang toward him, and caught him by the collar.

'Look here, Pete, ef you go to lettin on about that tarnal' rope, I swan to man you'll have to pay the damage, for I'm blamed of I've got a cent.'

At this point Peter burst. When he could control himself he explained to Dow the cause of his friend's alarm, and also elucidated to Zed, the nature and the uses of the gong.

'Waal, I declar! But Jewhittaker! wa'nt I skeered! Triberlation take yer gongs, I say !

But later over a mug of streaming punch, Zedekiah so far forgot his tribulation as to be able to smile .- C-New York TOO REFINED FOR TEXAS SOCIETY .-

A few days ago a wagon; drawn by a yoke of long-horned Texas cattle, halted on Lafayete street. The wagon contained a good looking woman, seven children, and considerable punder. A man, a small boy, and a dog that had run to tail were the adjuncts. The party were from Texas, and were returning to their old home in Decatur county. An Alderman of the city who had passed many years of his life in the Lone Star State approached the wagon. He said to the woman, "From Texas, I presume ?" "Yes, sir." "Didn't you like the country ?" "No, sir." "Didn't you like the climate?" "O, yes." "Did you have good health out there ?" "Yes." "Wan't the land good ?" "Yes." "How about the crops ?" "O, we made splendid crops." "Well, then, ma'am, what on earth is your objection to Texas ?" "Why, sir," she replied, "I couldn't stand the society in that rough country;" and then she turned to the small boy, her son, and cried, "Sam drive that dam dog out'en the dinner pot ; don't you see he's got his nasty snout into the vituals."- From the Jackson Whig and Tribune.

"MR. SMITH, you said you once officiated in the pulpit; did you mean by that that you preached ?" "No, sir: I held the light for the man who did preach," "Ah, the court understood you differently. They supposed that the discourse came directly from you." "No. sir, I only threw a little light on it."

A SUBURBAN minister applied to a ticket agent, on one of the railroads, for a "clergyman's ticket," and on the official expressclaimed : "If you don't believe I'm a clergy-The agent passed over the ticket, but did not insist upon the proof.
