evil of which he speaks. The writer is evidently lead into error by outside parties who know nothing about our borough affairs, and who make it a practice to cast reflections upon our town whenever opportunity presents. The fact late companion-in-arms, Sir Knight Thomas G. of his quoting from the Selinsgrove Times as authority, would destroy the effect of the merit his from a buggy on Monday evening, April 20, recommunication contains. While our town is ceiving fatal internal injuries, from the effects of cursed with its low rum holes, as are all thriving places in the State, which is to be deplored, the charge made by the Times that we are "burdened with more paupers, and a heavier debt than any other town in a wide region," may be accounted for from a want of knowledge on the part of the editor, of the expenditures and revenues of a first 16,793 71 class, thriving town. As to expenditures relating to paupers, which he attributes to the "multitude" of rum holes, we would state that not a single resident of this place was kept during last | wear the usual badge of mauraling for a period | & year who was known to be a idicted to drinking. of thirty days.
