The U. S. District and Circuit Courts are still in session. The former presided over by Judge McCandless, and the Circuit Court by Judge Strong. On Monday Judge Strong forbid the jurymen to be excused from attendance, and those in attendance were notified to remain in the court room during the sessions of the court.

In the District Court the trial of Thompson and Postlewaite was resumed. This was a case of ellicit distillery, and took up the time during Monday and the greater part of Tuesday. In the Circut Court the case of Benson, vs., Herdic, was resumed, the National Government that it appears and consumed Monday, and Tuesday forenoon. The latter case was for damages of water pipes, and an amount of some three or four thousand dollars are involved. On Monday morning, Robert M. Last week he was brought before the court and plead guilty.

District Attorney Reed stated that the principal charge against him was for sending obscene matter through the mail much viler than that published in the Ranger, and that the public knew nothing about that. The punishment was very severe in such cases, but he only asked for sentence on one count of the indictment.

Herrington arose and stafed to the court that he plead guilty not willingly, but because he had no money to defend himself. "Parties have told me that they have been offered $10 to go into my office and steal printed matter. Some of this matter was printed in other offices in this city-I need not say where.
