

Save the Best Fowls for Breeding.

It is the worst possible policy to kill all the best and handsome fowls, and save only the meanest and ugliest ones to breed from.

Nothing is lost by a little self-denial to start with. The extra pound or two of poultry flesh that you leave on its legs instead of sending it to market, is good seed, and will bring forth tenfold and twentyfold in your future broods.

USE OF MANURE.—Fisher Ames, one of the most popular and distinguished men of his day, and always regarded as one of the great statesmen of Massachusetts.

When a wholesale dealer is questioned as to the proportion of really fine butter he receives in his consignments, he replies five per cent.

Few persons are aware, probably, of the extent to which the percentage of cream is influenced by the condition of the cow.

It is astonishing what effect excitement has on the percentage of cream in milk that comes from a cow.

It would really be seen how important it is to keep the cow quiet and free from fright and all excitement.

The Campaign of 1840.

The great political storm that swept over the country in 1840, was one of the most remarkable events known in the history of our government.

with John C. Calhoun and nullification. In a word, the political atmosphere was in a condition to be violently disturbed and even torn.

As early as February, 1840, the campaign began. On the 21st of February, in Columbus, on the 22d of February, and appeals to the people to come up to the work were loud and frequent.

Business generally was at a standstill; the state that specie to such a extent was almost beyond reach; banks had been in a state of suspension for a long time; our State was full of bank notes from other States; mechanics and laboring men were out of employment.

On the 22d of Columbus was filled with a mighty throng of people. The rain came down torrents, the streets were one vast sheet of mud, but the crowds paid no heed to the elements.

Having gone thus far, and seeing our surprise and perplexity, he seemed animated by a desire to justify his statements.

And I cannot see how either of these plans can succeed, said he, and forthwith throwing aside all reserve and speaking with as much apparent frankness as though conversing with his confidential adviser.

It was known that Mr. Lincoln depended military opinions quite as often as those of his advisers; and I had before had a striking proof of the correctness of his judgment.

With this characteristic climax he practically closed the discussion. Hising the chorus, rich and whenever heard was learned to be repeated.

The stock of songs soon exhausted, and the chairman (Charles Delavan, I think) arose and requested any one present who could sing to come forward and do so.

For a short time he was bewildered, but remembering that he was in the household of his faith, soon regained his composure.

military chiefs, never very high previously, was proportionately diminished. As before, the army forces were beaten off from Charleston; the Army of the Potomac was hurled back upon the north at Chancellorsville; and Grant and Porter were completely baffled in their ill-judged experiment in the swampy country of the Mississippi, which they attempted to penetrate through streams too narrow to turn a gunboat in, and surrounded by a restless force ever ready to exhaust all the means of impediment and destruction.
