Texas Cow Boys.

A correspondent of the Courier Journal thus describes the Texas cow boys, to whom he looks for valiant soldiers in the event of what he says the border men went, viz.; a war with Mexico: "The 'cow boys' of Texas are a peculiar breed. They are as distinct in their habits and characteristics from the remainder of even the Texan population as if they belonged to another race. The Lipan and the Comanche are not more unlike the civilized white man than is this nomadic herdsman to the Texan who dwells in the city or cultivates-the plains. The Texan NO. 12, rangers who galloped after Hays and McCullough were wild and daring men, and a life of adventure stamped them with strange peculiarities. But back, never leaving their "bunches"
