

Parsley Culture. In our cookery we often miss those little tricks which give so much zest to European dishes. We generally have meats and pastries in abundance, and even, in many cases, a fair show of fruits and vegetables; but an infinite variety may be given to even every-day things by a judicious use of pot herbs.

A Curious Naturalist. The New Haven Press holds itself responsible for the truth of the following: Mr. Mendell, of St. Louis, Mo., who has been for the last few days staying with some friends in this city, has a singular hobby for insects, and a most intimate knowledge of the character and temper of several members of the insect family which he carries about him for the purpose of diversion and study.

Again, the manner of living among the workmen is equally deplorable. Their dwellings are the garrets, cellars, and back buildings, all of which are small or else partitioned off into small apartments, dirty and unhealthy. Many take up their abode in a cave in the open square, or along the wider streets, where they sit during the day exposing petty articles of merchandise. In Rome, Naples, and other southern cities, they often live out-of-doors altogether, lying about in the sun, and sleeping at night in the squares and parks.

Parsley could be used for the very earliest sowing into the ground, and it would have selected for rather dry soil; and yet one not much exposed to the full sun in summer. Many like to have plants in the fall to lift and put in pots or boxes to keep in the window and gather from all winter.

The Oldest Timber in the World. Probably the oldest timber in the world which has been subjected to the use of man, is that which is found in the ancient temples of Egypt. It is found in connection with stone work which is known to be at least four thousand years old.

Valentine Manufacturer. Here is a large room, fitted up with long benches and occupied by some scores of girls of various ages. Each girl has on one side of her a pile of incomplete valentines, and the other a heap of little objects of some one kind, which it is her duty to add—little bunches of flowers, or glittering mottoes, or aching hearts, or hearts transfixed by arrows, or it may be a heap of undying little cupid figures.

Brain Power. The fact that Mechella, the criminal who was executed in Hudson City, N. J., on Friday, was the possessor of an extraordinary heavy and well-developed brain has puzzled the experts, and seems likely to lead to an interesting inquiry.

How to Succeed. The young man who thinks he can carry his boyish pranks into the serious business of life is not a man and defrauds himself and his employer.

Wholesome Water. Of surface waters, Prof. Newberry observes: "There is much apprehension in the public mind in regard to the purity of water of streams which drain the surface of our own and other countries. Water is itself a disinfectant, and a large volume of water, when exposed to the air, so rapidly forms a protective film of its organic impurities, that when cooled and settled or filtered to remove its suspended ingredients, the water of most of our streams is even more palatable and a wholesome than that taken from wells."

Fancy and Reality. In the morning of life we paint with the brush of fancy, our beautiful picture of the future lying out before us—a picture of cloudless skies and brilliant suns, of flowers and paths and tropic blooms—a picture where joy and love, and friendship and fame stand holding out their beautiful offering as the central figure of the whole.

Don't Know the Topes. Western officers were proverbial for seeking bad uniforms, and in a majority of instances it was rather difficult to distinguish them from the privates. Among this class was a Brigadier General named James Morgan, who looked more like a wagon master than a soldier.

Where is the rest of it? Soon after the first inauguration of Governor Seward as Chief Magistrate of this State, Virus W. Smith, then and for many years afterward a potential man in the Whig party of Gaonaquia County wrote to Mr. Thurlow Weed, requesting him to call upon the Governor, and ask him to appoint a certain man as Indian Agent for the Onondaga tribe of Indians.

Where is the rest of it? A DUBLIN merchant named Johnson was very hard on his clerks, and when a visitor called at his store without a purchase he would discharge that clerk, and put it off till late in life, the usual age for marrying being from twenty-five to thirty years.
