Miscellaneous.

THE CHINESE.

On a tree there sat a crow.

On the ground a blue dove.

Said, "I'm a crow, if you please;

On you are beautiful of wing.

And I bet that you are a crow.

Chimed by the other, the crow.

Same, and dropped the dove below.

"I'm a dove, if you please;

To show I'm a dove of wing.

And I bet that you are a crow.

And he soiled the crow with mud.

When they got up on your back.

When they saw that you were a crow.

And when they saw they were on the track.

And how they were obliged to run.

When the crow was on the track.

They are going for your head.

You can do just as you please.

But you'd better watch your choice.

RETIRED FROM BUSINESS.

What the Colonel's business was personally knew any old body could not say. He purchased for cash, and he never grumbled at the price of anything that he wanted;

who could ask more than this?

Curious people continually wondered when it had been

two years since the Colonel, with every one else, abandoned Duck Creek to the Chinese, he managed to send money freely, and to lose considerable at cards and horse races.

To get the lower of the deal, he went to the Challenge Hill saloons, where he was not patronized, was once heard to absentmindedly wonder whether the Colonel had a money-bill somewhere, when he was turned out double eagles and "dogs"

(the name of the counterfeit money)

for a few dollars.

When he returned to the bar-keeper indulged publicly in an idea, inhabitants of Challenge Hill, considered themselves in duty bound to give him a consideration, and to

for a few days certain industrial professionists, who were money of the Colonel, carefully weighed some of the brightest pieces and tested them with acids and verified them and notified them up and had the tempo raised.

The result was a complete vindication of the Colonel, and a loss of considerable custom to the indistinct bar-keeper.

The Colonel was so good natured that he had ever been known at Challenge Hill, but being mortal, the Colonel had his occasional times of depression, and one of them occurred after a series of races in which he had staked his all on his own bay mare, Fistic and lost.

Looking reproachfully at his aching hand he failed to heed the aching pain of his pocket, and drinking deeply, swearing eloquently and giving defiantly a look at the crowd, he went to the bar, where he was equally unproductive of money.

The boys at the saloon sympathized

most feelingly with the Colonel;

they were unseeing in their invitations to drink, and they even exhibited considerable Christian forbearance when the Colonel, disheartened when the Colonel advanced any proposition, no matter how incoherent.
