

One Sunday morning, during the war of 1812, if we recall the case...

But not to explore so remotely, there have, in our own day and generation...

The case was tried on this narrow issue, Madame Felial, it appeared, was a Spiritualist, and usually attended public religious services conducted by ministers of her own faith in her own neighborhood in Charlestown.

On Sunday evening, November 26, James and Gamaliel, when they left the meeting house, about half past eight o'clock in the evening, perceived that the tide was coming in, and that there was a fresh breeze blowing in such a direction as on former occasions had caused seaweed to float away from the beach which the tide rose, and he would not.

We think that the railroad corporation were righteously mulcted. Their plea of Sunday traveling to avoid the just penalty of their negligence, was a mere plea at best.

Old Mr. Collamore is very deaf. The other Sunday, in the midst of the services, Mr. Hoff, who sits immediately behind Mr. Collamore, saw a spider resting on the latter's bald head.

The American telegraph managers have allowed the foreigner to get in front of them in introducing an important innovation in the details of their business.

Life in Portuguese Towns.

There is nothing that would strike a traveler fresh from England, Germany or France more than the great variety of dialects in this practice.

A Portuguese nobleman, if he be rich enough, lives in a town or in a villa, and if he has a country house will visit for a month or two in autumn; even then he will often rather endure the misery of a sea, rather than lodging among a crowd than go inland.

A large house with a plot of cabbage, an independent kitchen, with whitewashed walls, floors uncarpeted, a dozen wooden chairs, one or two deal tables; no fireplace, not even a stove, either in sitting room or bedroom; no curtains to the windows; no covers on the tables; no pictures on the walls; no mirrors; no table pleasantly strewn with books, magazines, newspapers, and ladies' work; no such thing visible as a pot of cut flowers, no rare china, no clock no broom—none of the usual trappings and curiosities, and in our houses, show our taste, or want of it, but which either way give such a charm and individual character to our English homes.

On the subject of cooling milk, Mr. Arnold said, before the American Dairy-men's Convention, that the circumstances in cooling milk for butter and cheese are different. The odor in milk is considerable in a liquid form.

There are not even fashions for them to think about; young men and old men dress alike; but the younger ones wear exceedingly tight boots, and "wheeler" they take their walk abroad. It is only when they do so in considerable numbers that the young men, however, have one occupation more important even than wearing tight boots, and which almost, in fact, goes with it—that of making the very mildest form of love known among men.

When in Kentucky last week we saw a two-year-old colt broke—dead-broke—in a half-hour, so that he worked as nimbly as a trained horse.

The world is full of tired people, merchant tired of business, farmers tired of raising the crops, mechanics tired of building houses, housekeepers tired of preparing food, operators tired of the rushing wheels.

Some men offer a pillow not stuffed with cotton, but with the down of an angel's wings. But a man who puts his head on it gets rid of his cares and anxieties. It is a pillow stuffed with promises.

Watering Horses After Meals.

It is the practice of many horsemen to give their horses no water until after they have eaten their allowance of food.

Mr. Cassie is quite correct in the views set forth regarding the injurious effects of large quantities of water swallowed immediately after eating.

Speaking of the white cravat which Commodore Vanderbilt always wears, one of his friends asked him one day if it did not secure him a great many clerical favors.

Queen Employment.

We heard a pretty good story the other day, which we think merits a wider circulation than it has yet got.
