An Important Invention

An inventive genius at Minneapolls, Minnesota, has patented an apparatus, which he calls a car-shee, for preventing cars from leaving the track in collisionaer by running upon a broken or dislodged rail. It was given trial a short time since, in which it did all and more than was claimed for it. A rail was taken from one side of the track, and a car, with the shoe attached, backed down flew scross the break, the front track striking the track all right, and the the shoe gripping the track and step-
