RELIGION AND DOCTRINE. BY JOHN HAY.

He steed before the Sanhedrim The scowling rabbis gazed at him. He recked not of their praise or blame; There was no fear, there was no shame, For one upon whose dazzled eyes

The whole world poured its vast surprise The open heaven was far too near, His first day's light too sweet and clear, To let him waste his new-guined ken On the hate-clouded face of men.

But still they questioned, Who art thou? What hast thou been? What art thou now? Thou art not he who yesterday Sat here and begged beside the way; For he was blind. -And I am her

For I was blind, but now I see, He told the storr o'er and o'er; It was his full heart's only lore; A prophet on the Sabbath-day Had touched his sightless eyes with clay, And made him see who had been blind. Their words passed by him like the wind Which raves and howls, but cannot shock The hundred-fathom-rooted rack.

They could not touch his Hebrew pride. Their snoars at Jesus and his bund, Nameless and homeless in the land, Their beasts of Moses and his Lord, All could not change him by one word. I know not what this man may be, Sinner or saint; but as for me, One thing I know, that I am he Who once was blind, and now I see.

Theirthreats and fury all went wide:

They were all doctors of renown, The great men of a famous town, With deep brows, wrinkled, broad, and wise, Beneath their wide phylacteries: The wisdom of the East was theirs, And honor crowned their silver hairs. The man they jeered and laughed to scorn Was unlearned, poor, and humbly born; But he knew better far than they What came to him that Sabbath-day; And what the Christ had done for him He knew, and not the Sanbedrim. NEW REVISED EDITION. Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with several thousand engravings and maps.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important sleger maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers of in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the chicor to oring down the intermation to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoverice in science, of every presh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress of political and historical events.
