The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their truitful application to the industrial and useful arts, and the convenience and refinement of social life.—
Great wars and consequent revolutions have occurred, involving national changes of peculiar moment. The civit war of our own country, which was at its height when the last volume of the clid work appeared, has happily been ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the industrigable explorers of Africa.
