One of the phenomena of New York just now is the abundance and cheapness of fruit.

There are a few of the reasons why the Republican party ought to be kept in power in Pennsylvania.

Because it has administered the State government with fidelity and economy.

Because it has paid off more than fourteen millions of dollars of the State debt in the last twelve years.

Because it has faithfully maintained the credit of the State by promptly paying the interest upon its obligations.

Because it has protected the people from imposition and fraud by bogus, rotten insurance companies.

Because it has protected the people from oppression from unscrupulous and exacting corporations.

Because it has, since it obtained power, been true to the best interests of the people; and finally,

Because it was loyal to the country in the years of its peril when the Democratic organization was in sympathy with armed treason.
